House Rules Group Speeds Wage-Hour Amendments

Ignores Plea by Labor Leaders for Delay; Bill to Expand USHA Given Go-Sign

Dynamite-laden proposals to amend the wage-hour act and to expand activities of the United States Housing Authority were thrown squarely into the arms of the House yesterday.

Breaking a deadlock that had kept the measures bottled up for days, the Rules Committee granted legislative right-of-way to bills to alter the wage-hour law only a few hours after John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain, and W. C. Hushing, A. F. of L. representative, had pleaded for postponement of any changes in the statute.

Although it ran directly counter to Administration wishes on the wage-hour legislation, the committee, controlled by conservative Democrats, bowed to the President's desire that the housing bill be allowed to reach the floor. Another New Deal bill, to amend the Federal Home Loan Bank act, also was given right of way.

New Dealers Angered

At the same time, the Democratic caucus scheduled for tonight, which was called by a group of New Dealers angered at the slow progress of the Administration bills, was given official blessing.

After a conference among the House leadership, including Speaker Bankhead, Majority Leader Rayburn and Majority Whip Boland, on the one hand, and the principal backers of the caucus, on the other, Boland sent out a notice urging party members to attend. The leadership had been opposed to holding the caucus, but, once it was definitely scheduled, apparently feared that large-scale defections of conservative Democrats would indicate a split in the party.

The form in which the Rules Committee reported out the wage-hour amendments seriously threatened to emphasize this split when the question reaches the floor. The committee ordered that the Norton bill, which would moderately amend the wage-hour act, must be voted up or down without amendments, except that it may be supplanted by one of two other proposals One of these possible substitutes is the Ramspeck bill, containing only "non-controversial" amendments; but the other is the bitterly disputed Barden bill, which would make very broad exemptions in industries related to agriculture. It is the Barden bill which conservative Democrats and Republicans hope to enact over Administration opposition.

Ignore Labor Committee

Decision of the Rules Committee to permit the three bills to come to the floor was taken almost immediately after the Labor Committee had reported out a bill similar in most respects to Ramspeck's measure. In ignoring the new Labor Committee bill, the Rules Committee merely underlined the feud that has been progressing between the two groups for many weeks.

Chairman Norton, of the Labor Committee, indicated, however, that that she would attempt to bring up the new measure under suspension of the rules Monday. This maneuver—in which she already has been defeated twice by the conservative farm bloc—will require not only recognition from the Speaker, but also a two-thirds vote.

Mrs. Norton's latest bill was the outcome of an executive session of the Labor Committee, following an extraordinary hearing that had been especially requested by the Rules Committee in an effort to work out a compromise between opposing factions. It was at this that Lewis was joined by Hushing and also by W. D. Johnson, of the Railway Labor Executives Association, in opposing any changes in the wage-hour act at the present time.

Lewis Calls Garner An 'Evil Old Man;' Gets Quick Backfire

John L. Lewis shook his finger, stunned the House Labor Committee, and caused gasps of astonishment in the crowded hearing room when he blasted the Vice President as a "labor-baiting, whisky-drinking, poker-playing, evil old man"

Wage Act Changes Reported Out, Vote Set on Barden Bills After C. I. O. Chief Assails 'Poker-Playing' Texan

In an outburst of cold fury that touched off a Congressional explosion, John L. Lewis yesterday denounced the Vice President of the United States, John N. Garner, as a "labor-baiting, poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man."

Reaction was almost immediate. Hardly had Lewis' statement reached the ears of Congress before a host of friends rushed to the defense of Garner. And within a very few hours, practically the entire membership of the House was on its feet cheering, shouting and yelling approval of a resolution the Texas delegation had just brought in expressing "deep resentment" against "this unjustified attack" upon Garner's private and public life.

All but a handful of New Dealers joined in the demonstration, which climaxed a wave of Congressional indignation at Lewis' verbal assaut on the Vice President.

The pallid, heavy-browed chieftain of the C. I. O. poured out his vials of wrath upon Garner in the course of an appeal to the House Labor Committee not to recommend changes in the wage-hour law at this session of Congress.

Committees Spurn Lewis' Advice

Late in the day, the committee disregarded his advice by reporting out limited amendments to the act; and the Rules Committee went even further, in deciding to let the House vote on the far-reaching Barden amendments, which are anathema to organized labor.

In the clamor aroused by Lewis' observations, many members of both houses of Congres said that the attack would materially aid Garner if he were a Presidential candidate next year.

When informed of the labor leader's diatribe, Garner himself merely peered from under his bushy eyebrows—rivalled in Washington only by those of Lewis—chuckled, and said, "I have no comment."

Representative Warren, of North Carolina, one of the most influential Democrats, said Lewis' attack was "false as hell;" Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, opponent of the C. I. O. and friend of the Vice President, commented that Lewis' remarks "will be worth many millions of votes for Garner."

"Yes, I Make a Personal Attack"

Taking the committee by surprise, Lewis declared: "You know, the genesis of this campaign is not hard to find. It is within the Democratic Party. It runs across to the Senate of the United States and emanates there from a labor-baiting, poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man whose name is Garner."

As his audience gasped, Lewis went on in a heavy voice that gradually rose in crescendo:

"Some gentlemen may arise in horror and say, 'Why, Mr. Lewis has made a personal attack on Mr. Garner.' Yes, I make a personal attack on Mr. Garner for what he is doing, because Garner's knife is searching, searching for the quivering, pulsating heart of labor."

In a silence broken only by his own acrid sentences, the witness asserted that "I am against him. I am against him officially, individually and personally, concretely and in the abstract, when his knife searches for the heart of my people."

"Seeking to Debase Americans"

Lewis shouted, "I am against him in 1939 and I will be against him in 1940 when he seeks the Presidency of the United States. And I say to the people of the United States that he will never achieve the Presidency of this Republic by baiting labor and seeking to debase Americans."

In a sarcastic tone Lewis said, "I have no objection to Mr. Garner—if he wants to do it and his neighbors let him get away with it—to debasing sheepmen and cattlemen in Texas by charging them extortionate interest for loans through the banks that he controls. But I object to Mr. Garner putting his foot upon the neck of millions of Americans by conducting this intrigue that he has been conducting in recent weeks in this Congress on every proposal that protected the rights of labor or sought to give labor increased or additional privilege."

At the close of Lewis' testimony, Chairman Norton of the Labor Committee said, "Thank you, Mr. Lewis, for your very fine contribution to

Showers in Northeast Cheer Farmers of New Dust Bowl

Thundershowers swept into the drought-ridden Northeast yesterday, first heavy rains in 27 days, while President Roosevelt in Washington called on four Government agencies to stand by to lend aid if needed.

In some parts of up-State New York, where exhausted men and boys battled 57 forest fires, 2 inches of rain fell, the Associated Press reported. Intermittent showers drenched New York City, while Long Island farmers knelt in their fields and prayed for rain.

Heavy rains fell in Pennsylvania and broke the grip of drought almost a month old. New Jersey farmers were heartened by the first general rain in four weeks and occasional showers were predicted for Connecticut.

Manhattan Islanders saw for themselves yesterday the remorseless "black blizzards," familiar to the Midwest when hot winds rolled in from Staten Island, freighted with stifling dust.

Staten Island farmers have taken a loss of $300,000 in the drought, it was reported. Throughout the ten States that stretch from the Canadian border to northern Maryland the loss in the century's longest dry spell has gone into millions.

The situation in New York State and New England, where the areas have been exposed to drought dangers by the felling of millions of

Senate Keeps Roads Funds In Lend Bill

Retained 40 to 38; Attempts to Put PWA Grants In Measure Fail

By Robert C. Albright

The President's $2,490,000,000 lending bill survived three major thrusts at key sections in the Senate last night, but by so narrow a margin on one count that a movement was at once lauched to reconsider the vote.

By a bare two-vote edge the Senate rejected an amendment by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, to strike out the $500,000,000 lending authorization for express highways, tunnels and bridges. The vote was 40 to 38.

Then, before adjourning at 10:25 p. m., two attempts to write PWA loan and grant provisions into the bill were turned back by wider margins.

Defeated, 43 to 35

One proposal by Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, to substitute a $250,000,000 PWA appropriation for the $350,000,000 PWA loan section of the bill was defeated, 43 to 35. The amendment would have provided 45 per cent PWA grants and 55 per cent loans. Senate Majority Leader Barkley declared it would "uproot the entire philosophy of this bill."

The other PWA try was made by Senator Maloney (Democrat), of Connecticut, with an amendment to add a $350,000,000 appropriation to the loan sections of the bill for 30 per cent grants and 70 per cent loans to continue the work PWA has been doing. This was defeated 44 to 27.

Majority Leader Barkley closed the Senate for the night when Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, rose with his amendment to restore the WPA prevailing wage, a "rider" which, if successful, may tie up the measure in the House.

Favors Prevailing Wage

Barkley, who hopes to conclude action on the bill by holding the Senate in its third successive night session tonight said he will oppose the McCarran WPA rider, although he favors the prevailing wage principle.

Another amendment will be offered by Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, to abolish the 18-month WPA rotation on rolls enactment.

It was on the Byrd amendment to strike out the $500,000,000 Federal highway section that the program went to its first supreme Senate test. The vote was so close, and the number of absences so high, that Byrd may ask reconsideration of the vote today.

Barkley Yields

Throughout the day bipartisan opponents had kept up an oral bombardment of the program as "State capitalism" and "a moral fraud on the American people" until Majority Leader Barkley finally forced a vote on his modifications to the highway section.

Approving the Barkley amendments, requiring State consent for new road and bridge construction, and turning control and financing of the projects back to them, the Senate then heard Byrd's plea for elimination of the entire road sec-

Freak Rainstorm Hits Anacostia; Heat Fells Two

A freak thunderstorm, which drenched Anacostia with a 40-minute downpour, but missed the rest of the city, brought a 9-degree drop in temperature late yesterday after heat felled two persons.

Fifth Precinct police said rain fell at Fifth and Virginia avenue southeast, but none at the station, Fifth and E streets southeast.

Washington temperatures fell from 89 at 4 p. m. to 80 at 6 p. m. More showers were expected during the night and today.

Dickinson Spurns World's Fair Bid

Lansing, Mich., July 27 (INS).—Mayor LaGuardia and Grover Whalen will just have to get along without Gov. Luren D. Dickinson at the New York World's Fair celebration of Michigan Day, August 4.

The octogenarian executive, who vehemently decried a lot of fleshpots, sin and wickedness that no one else appeared to see on his last trip to New York, turned down an invitation today to return for his State's celebration.

G-Men Quiz D. C. Police On Numbers

Murphy Gives Force Clean Bill in Telling Object of Probe To End Tomorrow

Attorney General Murphy disclosed yesterday that agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are investigating the numbers racket in Washington.

The disclosure served to clear up some of the mystery that has surrounded the questioning of Washington policemen by F. B. I. agents.

Actually the Federal men are conducting two investigations here—one into the conduct of a Police Court judge and the other into the numbers racket. And while they are about it, the agents apparently are looking into all of the law enforcement machinery here, including the United States attorney's office, the corporation counsel's office, and the United States marshal's office.

Police Closely Questioned

Policemen who have been questioned by the Federal agents say that they have been asked about all of these offices.

Attorney General Murphy announced that he had asked the Federal agents to complete their investigation into the numbers racket by tomorrow. Consequently, he said, those policemen who have been "disturbed" may "rest easy."

"Nothing has been disclosed thus far that is unfavorable to the police," the Attorney General said.

He was asked what authority the Federal agents had for investigating local policemen. He said they had none unless they had reason to believe that a Federal law had been violated.

White House Didn't Ask It

"The District Commissioners say that they didn't ask for the investigation," the Attorney General was told.

"That's true, they didn't," he said.

"It has been suggested that the White House asked for it."

"No, that's not true."

He refused to say who asked for it, but he reminded reporters that any citizen believing that a Federal law had been violated, could ask the Department of Justice for an investigation.

Silent on Promotions

The Attorney General refused to comment on the action of the District Commissioners in holding up the promotion of 14 veteran police officers. There were indications at the time of this action that Murphy had asked for the delay.

When the Federal agents first went to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and asked to interrogate certain policemen, they explained that it was in connection with the case of the Police Court judge. When the questioning got under way, many policemen were surprised when the Federal agents ignored the case of the judge and began to ask them personal questions—questions such as, for example, how much money they had, whether they were buying their homes and so on. One policeman was asked bluntly whether he was receiving $300 a month from a racketeer and whether he had $35,000 in the bank.

Attorney General Murphy, asked about such questions yesterday, said he assumed that they related to the numbers situation here.

Molotoff Reported Making Agreement To Reach Pact

London, July 27 (U.P.).—Great Britain and France today asked Soviet Premier Molotoff to consent to an announcement that the three powers have reached "an agreement to agree" on a triple military alliance.

Reliable information reaching London said the Anglo-French negotiators had submitted to Molotoff in Moscow the draft of a statement which Prime Minister Chamberlain proposes to make before Parliament Monday.

French government spokesman said that, barring some unforeseen obstacle, the signing of the pact will be "only a matter of hours." He declared today's meeting in Moscow concerned only the phrasing of the final draft.

Dixie Davis to Quit Jail for Hope Dare

New York, July 27 (AP).—Shielded by four detectives, J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, 34, former "kid mouthpiece" of the Dutch Schultz policy racket, will be freed from the Bronx Jail early today.

Jail officials said Davis would probably be married soon to Hope Dare, former showgirl who stuck to him through the Hines trials after they were captured together in Philadelphia in February, 1938.

U. S. May Curb Trade Of Japan; Abrogation Of Pact Angers Tokyo

Any New Agreement Must Recognize Situation in Asia, Says Defiant Nippon

By the United Press.

Tokyo, (Friday), July 28.—If the United States wants a new treaty of friendship and commerce with Japan she will have to negotiate it "in conformity with the new situation in East Asia," the Japanese government announced today in a defiant formal statement.

The statement was issued after Premier Baron Hiranuma, Foreign Minister Arita and other officials had studied long reports from the Japanese Embassy in Washington announcing the "abrupt" action of the United States in canceling the 1911 Japanese-American treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation—the basic diplomatic agreement between the two powers.

"A new situation is now fast developing in East Asia," the statement said.

"Hoping" for Recognition

"The Japanese government have long been hoping that other countries of the world would frankly recognize this fact.

"In case the American Government desire to conclude a new treaty with Japan, in conformity with this new situation in East Asia, the Japanese government will, of course, be glad to do so."

The statement was taken to mean that the future of Japanese-American relations is entirely up to President Roosevelt and his associates and that, if they want an economic or even a diplomatic rupture with Tokyo, they can have it.

Government officials bitterly resented the American action, believing that it was a shrewdly timed political gesture designed to sabotage the current Anglo-Japanese conversations here for a detailed agreement covering Anglo-Japanese co-operation in the Japanese occupied areas of China.

Reprisals Threatened

Tokyo, Friday) July 28 (AP).—The Japanese foreign office announced today Japan's willingness to conclude a new trade treaty with the United States, but questioned "the hasty and abrupt manner" in which Washington denounced the 1911 accord.

The foreign office spokesman earlier had declared "Japan certainly will take retaliatory measures if there is discrimination by America."

Announcement of willingness to conclude a new treaty "if Washington desires" was contained in an official statement issued this morning.

Haste Assailed

Referring to the Washington explanation that re-examination of the treaty led to the conclusion that the American-Japanese pact contained provisions needing new consideration, the statement said:

"These reasons of the American Government, which serve equally well for revision of the treaty, fail to explain fully why the American Government should have found it necessary to give notice of abrogation in such a hasty and abrupt manner."

"Although the American Government claim the notification has no connection whatever with deliberations of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee" (a reference to Senator Vandenberg's (Republican, of Michigan) proposal to abolish the American-Japanese Treaty) "the present action, coming as it does at the time of the Anglo-Japanese conversations, is highly susceptible to being generally interpreted as having political significance."

Other official circles, apart from the foreign office, regarded Washington's action, taken yesterday, as an unfriendly act because of its abruptness.

2 Men Seized In Kidnapings; Girl Escapes

Arrested in Newport News, One Admits He Had Part in Holdups

Two men, one of whom police said admitted taking part in one of a series of holdup-kidnapings in the District and Virginia, were arrested last night at Newport News, Va.

A girl companion of the bandits who were believed to have held up six wayfarers and filling station operators in the last two weeks eluded capture. The men were taken after State troopers had chased an automobile 4 miles at breakneck speed, shot out a tire and enlisted bloodhounds to search a swamp into which its occupants fled near Williamsburg, Va.

One of those held gave his name as Robert W. Hendricks, 19, of Richmond, and according to Capt. James N. Peach, of the Newport News detective bureau, admitted taking part early yesterday in a holdup and kidnaping at Suffolk. The second man, listed as Nelson Baxley, 29, of Denbigh, Va., denied complicity in the crime.

Charged With Larceny

Capt. Peach added that Hendricks admitted taking part in two holdups of the same filling station at Richmond and another at Fredericksburg. Hendricks was booked on two charges of larceny in connection with automobile thefts at Newport News and Baxley was held for investigation.

With slender and sometimes varying descriptions of the holdup trio furnished by victims at Rockville, Md., and Alexandria, Fredericksburg, Suffolk, Richmond and Charlottesville, Va., police faced the possibility that more than one mixed trio was engaged in nocturnal forays against wayfarers and filling station operators.

Pay of Squalus Survivors Cut; Retroactive to Day She Sank

Survivors of the Squalus disaster are not entitled to continuation of the extra pay which goes to Navy enlisted men and officers attached to submarines, Assistant Comptroller General R. N. Elliott held yesterday.

In a decision forwarded to the Secretary of the Navy, Elliott ruled that the law is c... on the poin that, where circumstances make it impossible for the submarine's crew to assume its duties, the extra-pay provision ceases automatically to operate.

The decision means, in effect, a salary reduction for the Squalus survivors, with the exception of those who may have been transferred to other vessels or branches of the submarine service. The extra compensation rate is 25 per cent for officers and from $5 to $30 per month for enlisted men.

"The law makes no provision," ruled Elliott, "for extending the right to additional pay to officers for any period it is impossible for them actually perform service on board a vessel, as in this case. The rule as to temporary omission of duty not to exceed 30 days is not applicable to the enlisted men concerned as there cannot be a return to duty on the U. S. S. Squalus within 30 days."

Accordingly, the pay cut is retroactive to May 23, when the Squalus was lost.

Treasury Studies Action in Line With Ending Treaty; Hull Awaits Developments

By William V. Nessly.

Prospects for a new treaty of commerce with Japan to replace the one abrogated by this country late Wednesday had faded strikingly last night after a fast-moving series of international developments.

In the wake of America's surprise notice to Japan that she was terminating the 1911 treaty there were these quick reverberations:

Tokyo officials, expressing resentment at the "hasty and abrupt" manner in which the decision was announced, declared "Japan certainly will take retaliatory measures if there is discrimination by America" after the treaty dies.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said here that he was studying means of backing up the State Department's abrogation action, presumably through possible countervailing duties on Japanese exports or restricting purchases of Japanese gold and silver.

The Commerce Department, in an analysis of Japan's economy, said that nation's most pressing need "is for exchange to carry on its foreign trade," exchange it has obtained to a large extent through sale of gold here.

Secretary of State Hull indicated that developments within the next six months before the treaty actually ceases to exist will have a dominant bearing on the question of negotiating a new one.

There followed, in Tokyo, an official statement saying that if the United States desires a new treaty it must be negotiated on the basis of "the new order" in east Asia, a condition considered entirely unacceptable to this Government.

Treaty Blocked Embargo

The treaty denounced had clearly stood in the way of a Senatorial-proposed embargo on American materials used in Japan's war on China. Whether there shall be a Congressional decree for such an embargo, or whether steps shall be taken toward negotiation of a new agreement is expected to be determined in the few months of life remaining to the 1911 pact while officials here closely study Japanese policies and activities in the interim.

Cessation of the long series of assaults by Japanese sentries and other authorities on Americans in China and diminution of trade restrictions imposed upon American businessmen in the Japanese-occupied areas plainly is hoped for here. But continuation of the present Tokyo policies, it is conceded in official circles, will make difficult any formulation of a substitute treaty and probably will add to sentiment for imposition of an embargo when Congress returns to Washington about the time the old treaty expires next January.

Public Held Stiffening

The defiant tone of the Japanese official statement was not considered reassuring. The "new order" contemplated in Asia, to be controlled by Tokyo with greater restrictions on rights of other nationals, already has been rejected by this Government.

Officials here, meanwhile, have expressed gratification over growing indications of a stiffening of American public opinion toward the course of Japan. While heretofore State Department heads have been cramped in meeting continued Japanese encroachments by reports of a feeling of uncondern throughout this country, it is reported that they have been advised of a steadily increasing public resentment toward the course adopted by the Japanese militarists.

While dispatches from Tokyo said possibilities of reprisals against the

BACHELORS ON HIGH

One thing every candidate needs to show the voters is a family, a bunch of happy kiddies, a loyal wife, a typical American home.

U&U

Tom Hennings . . . one of 60

Some candidates manage to surmount the lack of a campaign family.

But it is an accepted American legend that a spotlight on a happy marriage means votes in the ballot box.

* * * *

So it is doubly astonishing that there are so many successful men who have reached the Capital via politics without chick nor child. It is, in fact, almost incredible that there are seven bachelor Senators, some of whom have been re-elected over and over. It would seem that to some constituents bachelorhood is not antipathetic.

* * * *

Senators Hale of Maine and McKellar of Tennessee have been in the Senate for 22 years without wives to share the pride and joy of their eminence. Walsh of Massachusetts has been a Senator for 19 years, and was Governor before that.

". . . the ladies overlook a bet"

Senators Green, Guffey, Russell and Holt are also bachelor Senators who have dodged the matrons and widows of Washington for from two to six years. Five of these bachelors now range in age from 58 to 72, but Russell and Holt are still in their thirties.

Hale, McKellar and Walsh were all in their forties when they first ran the Capital gauntlet; how gentlemen of such charm have escaped matrimony is a mystery.

* * * *

In a way, their escape is perhaps the greatest indictment of the ladies of the Capital yet discovered. The town is aflutter with eligible ladies, bachelor girls, grass and sod widows, many of them wealthy; yet they have not been able to seize these chances to influence the course of history over the breakfast table and to become eligible for the Senatorial ladies' luncheons.

* * * *

You will observe that three of these bachelors are from the New England States. Thus the proportion of bachelor Senators from the northeastern corner is three times as high as that from the remainder of the country. If you are a bachelor and want to run for the Senate, settle in New England.

". . . some hairbreadth escapes"

I can't quite figure out what effect bachelorhood has on a man's politics; apparently it makes him conservative. Only two of these seven are New Dealers—Guffey and Green, at 64 and 72 respectively. That's an advanced age for a New Dealer. The others don't really need wives to remind 'em how lovely is the status quo. Maybe they were conservative to begin with.

* * * *

The House is filled with younger men and an abundance of bachelors. Of these, Texas has furnished two of the most distinguished: Hatton Sumners and Sam Rayburn. Each has dodged the ladies during 26 years in Congress, and even a happy married man must admit they've done brilliantly unaided by wives.

Joe Martin, the able leader of the Republican minority, is also a bachelor after 14 years of salons and the insidious "social lobby."

There are about 60 House bachelors all told, enough to go around quite a bit. Tom Hennings of Missouri is one of the glamour bachelors. . . .

Outside of Congress in the Capital there are many more bachelors in official circles—Edgar Hoover, Frank Murphy, Ben Cohen, Justice McReynolds, Tom Corcoran, to name a few highly eligible ones. The diplomatic corps is lush with unmarried men. If you include the grass and sod widowers of note, you'd think Washington would be a happy hunting ground for marriage-minded minxes.

But this Capital is a notoriously bad spot for a lady to go a-hunting.

Even the married notables are often the objects of the chase. You should hear some of the tales in the Capitol Hill cloakrooms about members who have barely escaped with honor from a fair constituent with a crush on 'em.

Murphy Plans 2 Appeals in Doctors' Case

Grand Jury 'Quite Likely' to Be Asked to Weigh New Indictment

"Organized medicine" will have to defend its victory over criminal conspiracy prosecution against two appeals at once, Attorney General Murphy announced yesterday.

At the same time, Murphy said, a new special grand jury "quite likely" will be asked to consider a fresh indictment against physicians he blamed for blocking experiments to help the poor.

The triple offensive against "organized medicine" was announced shortly after Seth Richardson, general counsel for the American Medical Association, rebuked the Department of Justice for what he claimed its "impertinent and unnecessary" statement on the dismissal of criminal conspiracy charges against A. M. A. and its affiliates.

Opposed G. H. A. Plan

A. M. A. the District Medical Society, Harris County (Tex.) Medical Society, Washington Academy of Surgery, and 21 prominent doctors were indicted last December for conspiracy in restraint of trade after a three months' grand jury investigation, which went deep into the controversy here over formation of Group Health Association, Inc. The A. M. A. opposes group medical practice such as was attempted by G. H. A. Its opposition was claimed in the indictment to have violated the Sherman antitrust act.

Justice Proctor dismissed the indictment Wednesday on the grounds that medicine was not a "trade," and that the indictment was too badly drafted to be tried before a jury.

The Department of Justice shortly afterward announced it would appeal, and "warned" physicians its policy on boycotts against hospitals and physicians would not be changed until the Supreme Court decided the questions.

Murphy said yesterday that "in view of the importance of this suit, it is our intention to appeal to the Circuit Court and the Supreme Court, on proper issues, and endeavor to have the finding of the court reversed."

Two Concurrent Appeals

The Attorney General explained later that he did not mean one appeal, which would pass first through the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the District and then reach the Supreme Court, but two "concurrent" appeals.

This indicated the Supreme Court would be asked to rule on whether medicine was a "trade," while the drafting of the medical indictment was being reviewed in the District Court of Appeals.

Murphy disclaimed any criticism of Justice Proctor, saying "we have reviewed the opinion and have no desire to criticize it other than in a very proper legal way in the courts. The serious questions raised here of coercion against doctors and hospitals, with the result that experimental work cannot be carried on for the poor and indigent, caused us to feel an obligation to go ahead without delay. The department will not let the matter drop."

Silent On Legal Issues

Murphy said he did not wish to discuss informally what the "proper issues" were, which would be raised by the appeals.

Richardson contended in his statement that Justice Proctor's ruling was the law until the higher courts acted and that it would preclude further "legal experiments" on doctors in Washington. He said the Department's statement of its policy was impertinent "because the Government has no jurisdiction over the medical profession, save in the District of Columbia, and medical men elsewhere need pay no attention to the threats of the antitrust division."

"The warning was unnecessary," Richardson added, "because the members of the medical profession did not, do not and will not violate any of the antitrust or other statutes in the pursuit of their callings."

Hatch Believes Roosevelt Will Sign Curb Bill

Senator Hatch, New Mexico Democrat, declared after a conference with President Roosevelt yesterday he believed the President would sign the bill to curb political activity of Federal office holders.

Hatch, author of the bill, went over the bill with the President section by section. Mr. Roosevelt, he declared, did not indicate whether he would veto the bill, "and, of course, I did not ask him."

There was a growing belief in Congress the President would sign. Senator Norris, Nebraska Independent Republican, was confident of it.

Previously, Hatch had conferred with Attorney General Murphy on the measure's constitutionality. He was reported to have received encouragement.

President Names Fly To McNinch's FCC Job

President Roosevelt sent to the Senate yesterday the nomination of James L. Fly, of Tennessee, to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission, replacing Frank R. McNinch, who has resigned.

McNinch has been chairman of the commission. Fly has been chief counsel of the Tennessee Valley authority. He has been mentioned as a possible successor to McNinch as chairman.

The Gallup Poll

Michigan Voters Prefer Repeal Despite Dry Governor's Campaign

By Dr. George Gallup.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 27.—The majority of voters in Michigan, judging by American Institute of Public Opinion survey, apparently do not share the prohibitionist views of their "dry" Governor, Luren D. Dickinson, who has been conducting a one-man campaign against alcohol.

GEORGE GALLUP

The Institute has tested prohibition sentiment in the United States at regular intervals during the last three years, and ballots from Michigan indicate that the people of the Wolverine State are just about as satisfied with repeal as voters in the rest of the country.

Voters in Michigan were asked:

"If the question of national prohibition should come up again, would you vote to make the country dry?"

VOTE IN MICHIGAN

Yes	31%
No	69

The same question has also been put to voters in all the 48 States. The results show that there has been a slight trend toward prohibition, with an increase in dry sentiment of about 1 per cent a year.

VOTE IN NATION

Dec., 1936	33%	67%
Feb., 1938	34	66
Dec., 1938	36	64

Gov. Dickinson's alarm over the "evils" of alcohol and its effect on youth raises a question as to what the drinking habits of the Nation actually are. How many Americans drink? How many do not drink at all, and how many disapprove of drink? Do as many women drink as men?

A survey on these questions has just been completed by the American Institute. It indicates the following facts about the drinking habits of the Nation:

1. Forty-two out of every 100 persons in the adult population, judging by the survey, say they never touch alcohol in any form, while the other 58 in every 100 drink. Seventy per cent of the men reached in the survey say they drink, but only 45 per cent of the women. More persons living in cities drink than persons living on farms or in small towns.

2. Among persons who say they never touch alcohol themselves, about half (45 per cent) disapprove of other people drinking. This disapproval is higher among women than among men, and higher among farmers than among residents of cities or small towns. The greater degree of abstemiousness among farmers and their higher disapproval of drink correlates closely with the history of the prohibition movement. The dry movements of the last 100 years have nearly always started in the rural areas.

A summary of the vote follows:

Do you ever drink any alcoholic beverages, such as wine, beer, cocktails, high balls?

Yes		58%
	Yes.	No.
Men	70%	30%
Women	45	55

Small town voters	50	50
Farmers	43	57
Voters under 30 years	67	33
Voters 30 to 49	62	38
Voters 50 and over	42	58

If not, do you disapprove of other people drinking?

Yes		45%
No		55
	Yes.	No.

Senate Keeps Road Funds in Lend Bill

tion. A switch of two votes would have cut the total of the bill from $2,490,000,000 to $1,990,000,000.

An earlier amendment by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, provides that the interest rate on the new loans shall be one-half of 1 per cent above the Government's borrowing rate. Barkley sought to hold the rate below that amount, but finally yielded.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, led yesterday's assault with the warning that continuation of the policy of deficit financing and spending will lead to complete Federal usurpation of the fields of private enterprise and ultimately to state socialism.

"The question is whether we are going in the right direction or deliberately going in the wrong direction," George told the Senate. "I stand eternally against the whole meaning of this course of conduct, and the final inevitable result."

The Georgian charged the Government already knee-deep in state socialism in farm housing and labor fields, and it is a question of whether it will completely take over.

WPA employes and Workers Alliance officials thronged the corridors and Senate reception room, paging Senators, as word spread that the McCarran WPA prevailing wage restoration amendment would come up before recess.

Barkley's amendment to remove the toll onus from the highway program by transferring financing responsibilities to the States was on the verge of a vote all afternoon, but was delayed in a welter of dispute on questioned details. Barkley accepted one modifying amendment by Minority Leader McNary assuring the States the right to build the roads as well as the Government, and parried repeated attacks on toll proposals.

"Who Wants Toll Road"

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, shouted that toll highways were archaic, and George declared they would never self-liquidate themselves and "besides, who wants a toll road."

While Administration forces strove to break through coalition opposition in the Senate and force the bill to a vote before the week-end, House leaders attempted to smooth out growing House opposition in advance, with little results.

A bipartisan clique in the House Banking Committee avowed the bill would never win their approval if it carried a WPA prevailing wage rider and conservative Democrats and Republicans in the House Rules Committee failed to conceal their opposition. House Majority Leader Rayburn conferred with Rules Committee Democrats on the threatened housing and lending bill impasse, but it was said no understandings were reached.

Dam System Worth $380,000,00 to Midwest, Says TVA

The Tennessee Valley Authority yesterday appraised the potential value of its completed ten-dam system to dwellers in the lower Mississippi Valley at more than $380,000,000.

President Roosevelt sent Congress the report with the statement that TVA officials considered it "a contribution to the theory of valuation of the benefits of flood control," and, as such, commended it to the study of Congress and the executive departments "in considering flood control problems in general."

When all the proposed TVA dams along the Tennessee River, including Gilbertsville, now under construction, are in operation, the TVA report said, they will effectively lower flood control heights in the Mississippi Valley by 2 feet from Cairo, Ill., to the Gulf. The Tennessee is a tributary of the Mississippi.

Army Invites Pioneer Fliers To Celebration

'Early Birds' to Help Mark 30th Birthday Of Military Aviation

A reunion of pioneer American airmen will be held at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, August 2 in connection with the thirtieth birthday of military aviation, the War Department announced yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of Air Corps, who wears the fifth set of wings issued by the Army, issued a blanket invitation to all who learned to fly before 1913 to be guests of the Air Corps at Wright Field next Wednesday. Celebration of the anniversary of the purchase of the first military airplane will center at the Ohio field—the Army's chief research station.

The first two Army officers taught to fly by the Wright brothers, in 1908-9, will be on hand. They are Col. Frank P. Lahm, now air officer of the Second Corps Area, Governors Island, N. Y., and Brig. Gen. Frederic E. Humphreys, New York National Guard. Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, retired chief of the Air Corps; Brig. Gen. Walter Kilner, now assistant Air Corps chief, and Col. Thomas DeWitt Milling, retired, have accepted invitations.

Approximately 1,000 aviation leaders—Government officials, manufacturers and famous fliers—are expected at the birthday celebration. There they will see Air Corps laboratories and demonstration flights. The celebation will be Nation-wide, with mass flights over leading cities, and "open house" at all Air Corps stations. Bolling Field will be open to the public all day, and planes from Langley Field, Va., will soar over the city.

Byrnes Commends, George Condemns, U. S. Cotton Deals

By the Associated Press

Administration efforts to move part of the huge surplus of Government-held American cotton into international channels produced contrasting results in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, announced with pride negotiations had just been completed, subject to Congressional approval, for sale of 175,000 bales to France and Switzerland for cash at $6 a bale under world prices.

Shortly afterward Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, told the Senate the Government "nearly lost its shirt" in the recent exchange of 600,000 bales of American cotton for British rubber.

George credited the "shrewd British" with out-trading the United States and then launched into a critical attack on Secretary Wallace's program to subsidize exports of American cotton, starting today, at $7.50 a bale or 1½ cents a pound.

Rail Reorganizing Bill Passed and Sent to President

By the Associated Press.

The House completed action yesterday on the Chandler bill to facilitate voluntary railroad reorganizations and sent it to the White House for signature.

The measure would authorize railroads to make voluntary readjustments of their capital structures—if 75 per cent of their creditors approved.

Meanwhile Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee said the general transportation bill is "dead for this session." The House made so many changes in the Senate measure before passing it yesterday, Wheeler said it would be impossible to compromise the differences before adjournment.

On Capitol Hill

As a preliminary step toward Congressional action on President Roosevelt's proposed petroleum conservation program, Representative Cole (Democrat), of Maryland, yesterday indicated he will seek an investigation of the oil industry.

REP. COLE

Cole declared the President desires the House Interstate Commerce subcommittee, of which he was chairman, to bring up to date an investigation of the oil industry conducted in 1934. Cole said he is willing to undertake the inquiry with the consent of Congress.

A new "length" in titles for Federal officials was uncovered by the House Labor Committee yesterday.

It heard a witness on the wage-hours act, W. T. Ham, whose official title is:

"Chief of the labor, tenancy and rehabilitation division of the farm population rural welfare bureau of agricultural economics, the Department of Agriculture."

The House Rules Committee deferred action yesterday on a request that the Martin wool labeling bill be given legislative right of way.

Chairman Sabath (Democrat), Illinois, said no clearance would be given until further hearings could be held. Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, a member of the committee, commented that the measure was "highly controversial," and that members of Congress were being "propagandized from every source" concerning it.

The bill, approved by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, would require that labels show the percentages of virgin, reprocessed and reused wool, as well as the quantities of other fibers in a products.

A House bill giving the Post-office Department authority to issue postal savings stamps in denominations larger than 10 cents was signed today by President Roosevelt.

The department plans to issue denominations of 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.

Following a White House conference in which he invited President Roosevelt to attend a "Congress for Education for Democracy," at Columbia University next month, Winthrop Aldrich, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, said that although he looked for no sharp rise in business in the near future, he anticipated no decline. Just returned from Europe, Aldrich said he had not discussed the foreign situation or domestic business conditions with the President.

State Dept. Busy On 150th Birthday

By the Associated Press.

Echoes from all parts of a troubled world resounded in the State Department yesterday as it observed, without ceremony, the 150th anniversary of its founding.

When Thomas Jefferson took office as the first Secretary of State, the department consisted of five clerks in this country and three representatives abroad. It occupied two rooms in New York. Yesterday nearly 1,000 employes reported for work here, and 1,500 foreign service officers and employes were at their desks abroad. Relations now are maintained with 59 nations.

Martians Call Off Invasion Of Earth

World Not Worth Cost of Rocket-ship Attack, Army Says

Very Special Correspondence of The Post.

Mars, July 27.—The government of this planet tonight abandoned plans for invasion of earth a few minutes before the long-awaited "zero hour" when the two bodies came nearer each other than at any time in several years.

Cancellation of the rocket ship attack was announced by Sellew Nosro, youthful leader of the preliminary attack last fall, after members of the government had spent the night at their telescopes, studying closely the intended objectives.

No official reason was given for the government's decision, which came as a surprise to the populace, but it was apparent that fear of failure did not enter into the consideration. Last October's attack, which, despite its limited scope, aroused such terror in a section of earth which calls itself the "United States," was launched when the planets were 230,000,000 miles apart, whereas today they would have been separated by only 36,033,000 miles.

Earth Not Worth Invading

The assumption drawn by most observers was that the government had decided that conquering the earth would not be worth the expense and exertion.

This view was given further strength by an article in the Times of Mars, generally considered close to the ministry of astronomy, which vigorously opposed the expedition on the ground that, although the actual invasion would be simple, the task of governing the conquered inhabitants would be far more difficult.

This it attributed to the fact that the excessive oxygen in the earth's atmosphere gives its creatures a wracking nervous energy, making them extremely resentful of control except by the harshest of methods.

A high government official, who had a look at earth through the government telescope, said in an awed tone:

"You really should have a look at that place. There's the most amazing disorganization you can imagine. Although the creatures seem to have made some efforts along scientific lines, the entire planet seems to be in a state of chronic uproar. Their waterways seem to be entirely uncontrolled, in contrast to the order of our canals.

Too Much Quarrelling

"Too, these Earthlings have constructed a primitive form of rocket, which they use only for transportation about their own planet. The minister of astronomy tells me however, that at times these air machines abandon their regular routes and go hopping about dropping explosives upon the crowded areas into which thousands of the creatures huddle.

"Nosro tells us that the intelligence he picked up before escaping last October indicates that there are at least 50 different governments, each of which seems to be constantly quarrelling with at least one of the others."

Meanwhile, the public's wireless sets, all tuned in the direction of Earth, gave forth a conglomeration of sound. Although Martians enjoyed some of the musical programs, many of the Earth's wireless stations seemed devoted last night to a sort of primitive jungle rhythm beat, which their announcers referred to as "Swing." This, it was pointed out, should make the Earth too disagreeable for successful colonization.

The high Government official related, too, that the Ministers had focussed their telescope so as to get better view of some of the individual creatures on Earth.

Two of these, he said, in what Nosro called Europe, were constantly leading large groups of their fellows in some sort of exercise, raising and lowering the right upper extremity at great rate, shouting and glowering all the while.

"They seemed most unpleasant individuals."

Another individual he described as "a tall, gaunt, creature, gently waving a small black stick with a curved handle, and mentioning "Peace, Peace," without apparent effect on any of his fellow creatures.

Whatever the reason for the Government's decision not to attack, it appeared that the public agreed. Observers were inclined to believe that all Martians had decided that Earth was no place for a civilized individual.

Any semblance in the above story to truth, thrice crushed to earth, is here admitted to be ony a coincidence and no cause for alarm among the Milquetoasts or other timid louls.

Paul McNutt, 'The Boss,' Paid High Tribute By Indiana Booklet, for Which U.S. Pays Cost

FSA Chieftain 'Embarrassed' by Action of Friends

"The overenthusiasm of friends sometimes rises to embarrass."

This was the reaction yesterday of Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, when asked about the article devoted to him in the June-July issue of the Indiana Unemployment Compensation Advisor—House organ of the State Unemployment Compensation Administration.

The mimeographed pamphlet is paid for with Government funds. This is true of similar pamphlets in 12 other States, since the Federal Government bears the expense of unemployment compensation administration in all States.

Wouldn't Have Permitted It

McNutt, Governor of Indiana from 1933 to 1937, said he did not know in advance that he was to be featured. Had he known, he said, he would not have permitted it.

The Indiana Unemployment Compensation Advisor carried McNutt's picture on the cover page. Under the picture he is referred to as "Again, The Boss'." Then there is a succession of steps, showing the positions he has held, and ending with "1941" and a picture of the United States Capitol.

On page one is an editorial: "Congratulations! Paul. Good-Picking! Mr. President." The editorial is by Clarence A. Jackson, Indiana Unemployment Compensation director, whom McNutt has arranged to bring to Washington as an assistant.

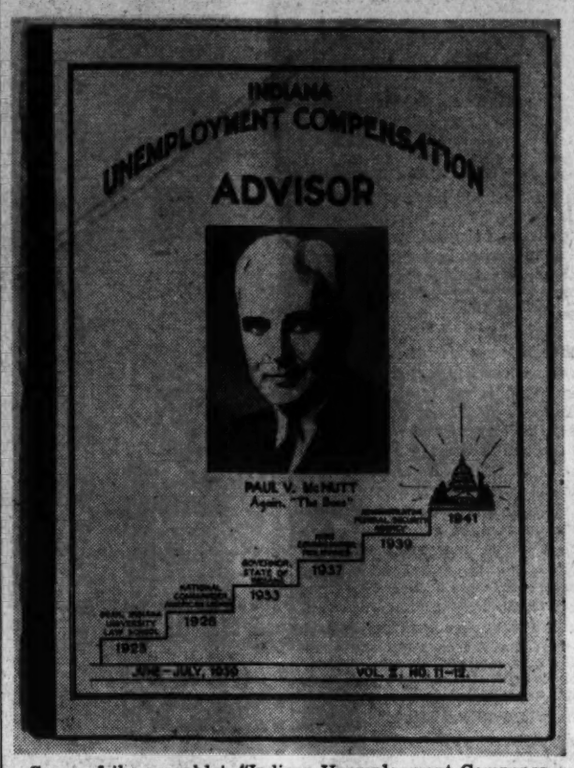
"Suppose It's Natural"

"I suppose it is natural," McNutt commented, "that the administration which I set up as Governor would have been happy about my appointment as Federal Security Administrator."

In McNutt's new job, he has general supervision over State unemployment compensation systems and other Federal welfare activities. Friends have insisted he accept the place on the condition his candidacy for the Presidential nomination should continue.

The Social Security Board passes on expenditures by State unemployment systems, among them printing.

McNutt said he was under the impression that the issue had been prepared before he took office, adding: "God knows I don't want any Federal money spent in promoting me personally."



Cover of the pamphlet, "Indiana Unemployment Compensation Advisor," paid for with Government funds. This June-July issue carries the picture of Paul V. McNutt with the underline, "Again, the Boss." Also on the front is a graph showing the positions he has held, ending with 1941, and picture of the United States Capitol

Growers to Get Tobacco Sale Issue in Md.

Type of Market Producers Prefer to Be Sought in Poll

The Southern Maryland Tobacco Growers Association will canvass growers in the five-county tobacco belt to determine what system of sales is preferred.

The association hopes to reach a conclusion in a question that has split the growers, the question of whether it is more satisfactory to sell on the auction, or open loose-leaf market, or on the sample system market in Baltimore which southern Maryland growers, until last May 2, historically used.

The decision to have the poll was reached yesterday by the association's executive committee. The committee members made a tour of the loose-leaf market at Marlboro yesterday to get what the president, Thomas Parran, described as a "bird's-eye view" of the auction system, in progress at Hughesville and Marlboro since May.

The association, he emphasized, has taken no action with respect to desirability of sales methods. Existence of the question came into the open at the annual picnic of the association at Seaside Park Wednesday, when several speakers, including Parran, dwelt on it.

Parran could not say when the poll would be taken. The Baltimore market, with which Marlboro and Hughesville compete, is not expected to close until late in the year.

Census Takers to Ask Women On Number of Times Married

The Department of Commerce is slated to take the decision in the battle of the century among American population experts, some of whom have been predicting that the population of the United States will soon become stationary or will start declining.

Commerce Secretary Hopkins announced yesterday that census takers in 1940 will ask a number of questions "designed to throw light on the decrease in the rate of population growth in the United States."

A special group of questions will be presented to a scientific cross-section of the population. One question will ask women who are or have been married, (a) the number of times married, (b) the age at first marriage, (c) the number of children ever born to this woman.

These special questions will be tested in a "trial" census to be taken in two Indiana counties next month. Every tenth family, after answering the regular population census questions will be questioned on certain special matters. The questions to be asked in the regular census next year will be selected after the results of the "trial" census are analyzed.

The special questions as composed at present will determine the proportion of families owning radio sets, whether running water and electricity are used in the home, how many families own their own homes and the size of outstanding mortgages.

The league has announced a 13-point improvement program for Greater Kensington, including recommendations for a new elementary school, improved transportation, increased salary schedule for school teachers, and reconstruction of Connecticut avenue from the District line to Aspen, Md.

Smith Island, Waterless, Soon to Dig for Wells

Smith Island, Md., July 27 (AP).—This Chesapeake Bay "desert" island—"desert" in the sense it has no wells or springs—may have a regular water supply before long.

The county commissioners, in fulfillment of an election pledge, instructed well drillers to bore a test hole to see whether water might be found at reasonable depths. In the past, Smith Island's 800 residents have been dependent for fresh water on rainwater collected on roofs and stored in cisterns on almost every back porch.

Mayor Criticizes State Police After 'Numbers' Raid

Hopewell, Va., July 27 (AP).—Mayor David Lane Elder, owner of a building raided by State police in a campaign against "numbers" gambling, denied today knowledge of the existence of an alleged numbers headquarters here.

Mayor Elder criticized the State and Richmond police for not taking Hopewell authorities into their confidence, saying "our local police are very much humiliated. They always worked with police of other cities and the State police before. I can't understand it."

A Richmond-State police squad, led by Maj. H. B. Nicholas, arrested sixteen men confiscated material which they said was used in numbers gambling.

Youth Plunges 60 Feet Through Skylight, Lives

Baltimore, July 27 (AP).—Mark Todd Smith, 16, fell 60 feet down an air shaft, crashed through a heavy skylight—but physicians said he'll live to tell about it. Doctors reported his condition "serious, but not critical."

Locked out, he essayed to "shinny" down a pipe to the open bathroom window of his third-floor apartment. He lost his grip and fell through the skylight into the apartment of an astonished householder.

Protest to Be Filed With Rumanian and Russian Envoys Here

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, July 27.—The Baptist World Alliance insisted today upon "full maintenance of absolute religious liberty" for all men, and voted to protest directly to Russian and Rumanian envoys against conditions in those countries.

The Sixth Congress of the Alliance unanimously approved two resolutions criticizing these nations and authorized deputations to "present, explain and commend" the resolutions to Washington representatives of the two governments.

"In continuance of our consistent Baptist practice," said a resolution on religious freedom, "we are imperatively constrained again to insist upon the full maintenance of absolute religious liberty for every man of every faith and of no faith."

Reiterating a racial stand taken in 1934 at Berlin, the Baptists declared:

"This congress deplores and condemns as a violation of the law of God . . . all racial animosity, and every form of oppression or unfair discrimination toward Jews, toward colored people, or toward subject races in any part of the world."

More Women Held For Murder in '39

Only 7 per cent of the persons arrested for crimes in the United States during the first six months of 1939 were women, the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced yesterday.

The FBI has examined 288,107 arrest records, according to Director J. Edgar Hoover. Comparison of the figures representing average groups of 1,000 women and men arrested indicated that there were more women than men charged with murder, assault and violations of the Federal narcotic drug laws.

Court Reverses Oil Convictions

Chicago, July 26 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed today the conviction of 16 oil companies and 5 individuals on charges of violating the antitrust laws by pricefixing in the gasoline field. The appeals court ordered the case to be retried.

The oil industry was one of the Federal Government's first objectives in a sweeping drive against alleged monopolies. The campaign embraced motion pictures, the milk industry, automobile financing and the medical profession.

Dead Man's Double A Dewey Witness

New York, July 27 (AP).—The man marked for death in the "mistaken identity" slaying of Isadore Penn, music publisher, was disclosed today to be an important witness in District Attorney Dewey's drive against the fur racket. He is Philip Orlofsky, and was placed under police guard six hours after Penn was shot. Also other Dewey witnesses were placed under guard after they had been fired upon.

7 Fugitives Appear, Vanish in West Virginia; Prison Clothing Found in Abandoned Auto

Charleston, W. Va., July 27 (AP).—The trail of seven Federal convicts who overpowered their guards on a bus in Virginia suddenly came out here today and, State police reported, just as quickly led 50 miles west in eastern Kentucky.

An automobile bearing Virginia license plates was found abandoned in South Charleston early this morning.

While officers were identifying clothing left behind as property of Federal prison guards, there came a report that an old Nash car had been stolen nearby.

A few hours later a patrolman at Catlettsburg, Ky., fired several shots at a motorist in a Ford which he said tried to run him down after crossing the Big Sandy River Bridge from Kenova, W. Va.

Two Kentucky State patrolmen, taking up the search at Catlettsburg, reported they arrived at Louisa just 30 minutes behind a car which answered the description of the one fired upon earlier.

The car found here gave signs it had at least two occupants, the State police said. Two pistol holsters were found, along with two guards' caps, a pair of handcuffs, a uniform coat, two uniform shirts, two convict shirts and a pair of convict shoes. The convicts took two pistols from the guards as well as a blackjack.

The abandoned car carried license plates number 268-362. It was identified as belonging to a Thornburg, Va., resident.

Mrs. Ruby Lee Thurston, owner of the car, who was forced into the bus at gun point for a ride of several more miles before the convicts released her, said when she first saw the men she thought they were police because they wore the uniforms they had taken from the guards.

"They didn't show their guns—just waved for me to stop," she said. "I did."

Diabetic Camp For Children Opens Tuesday

Washington's Most Exclusive Resort Is For Needy Alone

Washington's most exclusive children's camp, believed to be the only one of its kind south of the Mason and Dixon Line, will open for its third season on Tuesday.

It is the camp for underprivileged diabetic children conducted by the Christ Child Society at Rockville, Md. Five youngsters were registered in 1937, the same number in 1938 and seven are expected for this year's session, which will continue through August.

Under the medical direction of Dr. Robert A. Bier, the diabetic boys and girls, taken from families of low income or on relief, will receive skilled treatment, but at the same time be permitted to participate in all the camp activities of a normal child.

Dr. E. Clarence Rice, one of the Washington physicians who have co-operated in the venture since its inception, estimates that there are approximately 100 diabetic children in the District between the ages of 1 and 12 years. About 70 of these are white, he believes.

The first camps of this kind were established in New England several years ago and the idea spread. Through the initiative of the Christ Child Society, Washington opened the first one in this region.

Community Chest funds defray the expenses of crippled, heart-diseased and underweight children at the Rockville convalescent farm but the society depends entirely upon private aid to care for the diabetic patients, who range in age from 5 to 13.

Dr. Gray Names Six to Faculty At American U.

Six faculty appointments were announced yesterday by Dr. J. M. Gray, chancellor of American University.

Dr. John C. Patterson, professor of international affairs and director of Latin American studies at the University since 1938, was appointed director of the School of Public Affairs. Dr. Leon C. Marshall, professor of political economy and chairman of the Department of Economics since 1936, was appointed chairman of the "In Service" Training Program for Federal Employes.

Other appointments included that of Raymond J. Spaeth, to be administrative assistant to the chancellor; Dr. William Harlen Gilbert, jr., assistant professor of sociology and Robert D. King and Frank M. Hoadley, instructors of speech and English.

Dr. Marshall served as vice chairman of the National Labor Board, executive secretary of the NRA and director of the NRA Board of Review. Dr. Patterson taught at the University of Texas, the University of Chicago and Westminster College.

Flora Keefer, Concert Star, Dies by Gas in Home Here

Note Tells Husband, A Dentist, She Could Stand Pain No More

Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer, 50, concert singer and music teacher, yesterday was found dead in the gas-filled kitchen of her first-floor apartment at 1814 G street northwest. She was the wife of Dr. Charles B. Keefer, well-known dentist.

Long in ill health, Mrs. Keefer left a note saying she could no longer stand the pain. She was found by a friend, Mrs. Lucille C. Peddicord, of 1625 Columbia road northwest, wife of Thomas A. Peddicord, contractor.

Mrs. Peddicord told police she had talked with Mrs. Keefer yesterday morning. At that time, she explained, Mrs. Keefer told her the maid would be at the apartment for some time and not to come until after 3 o'clock.

A native of Indiana, Mrs. Keefer began her studies at the Chicago Musical College, where she won two medals for proficiency. She also studied with Herbert Witherspoon in this country and with eminent teachers in Berlin.

A mezzo-contralto, she had specialized in concert work and had been soloist at several local churches.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Keefer leaves a sister, Mrs. Ralph P. Barnard, and a brother, Ruel S. McGill, both of 1443 Euclid street northwest. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Senator Pepper, of Florida, Senator Mead, of New York, and Representative Wood, of Missouri, all Democrats, will speak from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m. over the Mutual network. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Ira Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the union label trades department of the A. F. of L. and past president of the Cigar Makers' Union, and R. E. Van Horn, present president of the union, also will speak.

Green presented Van Horn with an illuminated scroll yesterday in recognition of the diamond jubilee.

Russians Remove Far East General

Moscow, July 27 (AP).—Gen. Grigorio Shtern has been relieved as commander of the first special red banner army in the Far East and replaced by Gen. Popoff.

Removal of Gen. Shtern was disclosed soon after the official gazette had published a list of 70 men, formerly high in Soviet military and diplomatic life, who had been stripped of their decorations.

300 Navy Officers To Attend Dinner Honoring Leahy

Admiral William D. Leahy, retiring Chief of Naval Operations, will be given a testimonial dinner at the Mayflower Hotel tonight by naval officers on duty in Washington and vicinity.

Some 300 officers are expected to attend, including ranking officials of the Navy Department. Rear Admiral Walton R. Sexton will act as toastmaster, and Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison and Rear Admiral Harold R. Stark will speak. The Navy Band will play a march, written by its leader, Lieut. Charles R. Benter, in honor of Admiral Leahy. Admiral Stark will relieve Leahy on Tuesday.

D. C. Housing Bids Called for Aug. 10

Construction bids for the $1,000,000 low-rent housing project to be erected on Ridge Road southeast by the Alley Dwelling Authority will be opened August 10, John Ihlder, executive director, announced yesterday.

Originally the bids were scheduled to be opened yesterday but a sufficient number of requests for postponement was received from contractors to set back the date. The project is divided into five units and contractors may submit bids on all five or any part of them.

C. C. Lamborn Dies at Home In Arlington

Former Treasurer of National Savings And Trust Company

Charles Carrington Lamborn, 61, prominent in banking and church circles here many years, died Wednesday at his home, 6008 Wilson boulevard, Arlington, Va.

A native of Washington, he was a graduate of George Washington University and was a former treasurer of the National Savings & Trust Co. He recently had been a member of the staff of the General Accounting Office.

Mr. Lamborn had served as treasurer of the First Congregational Church and the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. He was a member of the District Bankers Association, Washington Golf and Country Club and the University Club.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Romye Burnes Lamborn; two daughters, Miss Ruth Barnes Lamborn and Miss Martha Jane Lamborn, and a son, Charles F. Lamborn, all of 6008 Wilson boulevard.

Four sisters, Miss Anne Lamborn, Mrs. Emery Wilson and Mrs. Tenney Ross, of Washington, and Mrs. Arthur Willard, of Urbana, Ill., also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church at 2 p. m. today. The Rev. Samuel Allison will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Donn Fendler To Get Medal

Bangor, Me., July 27 (U.P.).—Donn Fendler, 12, Rye, N. Y., Boy Scout, who battled his way out of the wilderness after being lost nine days, will be presented a hero medal by Gov. Barrows of Maine on August 2.

The gold medal will signify Donn as "the most courageous boy in America." Doctors said the plucky lad, "completely recovered from fatigue," would be released from a hospital within two or three days.

Two Men Arrested In Kidnap Series

day, Malcolm McMichael, 28, a Brentwood, Md., truck driver, was robbed of $2 by two men and a girl who held him up just north of Rockville, and Horace Butler, Suffolk filling station operator, was robbed and kidnaped by a similar trio. Butler told police he was locked in the trunk of the bandits' automobile and kicked his way free when they abandoned the machine to "find a faster car."

The time element involved in the two robberies also led police toward skepticism that they were perpetrated by the same bandits. It was pointed out that the distance between Suffolk and the point near Rockville where McMichael was robbed four hours after Butler was kidnaped is more than 200 miles. To cover the distance, even had the bandits lost no time, they would have had to average more than 50 miles an hour to cover the distance in the time elapsed.

Butler, who got out of the automobile trunk by kicking out upholstery of the rear seat, told police one of the men was 6 feet tall, had gray eyes, wore a dark blue shirt and light blue trousers and was about 18. The other man, he said, was 6 feet 3 inches tall and about 20 years old, and the girl wore a black dress with a white collar and was about 20.

Describes "Dirty Blonde"

McMichael, who said the trio missed $288 hidden in his truck, described the girl, who appeared to be the leader, as a "dirty blonde," with blue "squint eyes," dressed in blue slacks and khaki shirt, and had scars on her right wrist and between the eyes. He told police he had stopped to examine his lights when he was held up. His brother, Roy McMichael, 21, was asleep in the cab during the process, he related.

The series of holdups by the girl and her two consorts struck near Washington Monday night, when Roy Allyn, 19, was kidnaped from the filling station he tended at Alexandria and whisked away to a spot below Fredericksburg. There, he told police, he was tied to a tree and left after being robbed of $27.

Girl Called Brunette

Allyn said one of the men was about 25 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 148 pounds and dark, while the other was about 30, had brown hair, was 6 feet tall and weighed about 180 pounds. The girl, he said, was about 20, brunette, 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed about 130 pounds. He said she wore a white dress.

The other holdups in Virginia, police said, have occurred during the past two weeks. The trio explained to the Alexandria youth why they had taken up the pursuit of banditry.

"We want to go to the World's Fair," they said.

Barrett to Give Playground Program Today

Expected to Report There Is No Need to Open All Shut Areas

Appearing this morning before a District Recreation Board subcommittee, Lewis R. Barrett, the board's director, will propose a new personnel set-up for the Capital's reorganized playground system and probably report that there is no need for opening all of the 108 school playgrounds now closed.

While he indicated yesterday that some of the closed areas should and would be placed in use as soon as WPA supervisors could be obtained for assignment, Barrett emphasized that many of the 108 were either unavailable or unnecessary for recreational use during the summer vacation period.

For example, he cited the following school playgrounds which are locked up: Mann, Hardy, Weightman, Force, Cooke, Kingsman and Bowen.

Reasons for Closing

Mann is shut because last summer, when it was open, too few children went there to justify its continued operation. Hardy, because parents and teachers objected to its use during the summer. Weightman—in use as a nursery school. Force—same reason as Mann. Cooke — Langston - Slater playground, just across the street, was opened this summer. Kingsman—construction of an addition to the school prevents playground operation. Bowen—in use as nursery school.

Barrett asserted that to open all 108 playgrounds indiscriminately, even if funds and personnel were available to do so, would be to ignore the city-wide recreation plan which has been developed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

There is an acute shortage of WPA prospects for supervisory jobs at the white playgrounds, he said, pointing out that while 21 have been hired in the last few weeks, 17 others have been or are being discharged because of the 18-month cutoff provision in the current relief act. Thus the net gain is only four.

Barrett Confident

Working throughout the day to perfect the reorganization plan which he will submit at 10 a. m. today to Engineer Commissioner McCoach and C. Melvin Sharpe, who constitute the District Recreation Board subcommittee, Barrett was confident that a satisfactory solution was gradually being found to the city's gnarled playground problem.

A fresh complication yesterday was the disclosure by the District auditor's office that positions and salaries of 13 employes of the Board of Education's Community Center Department cannot be changed or abolished in connection with the reorganization unless new legislation is passed.

The positions in question are those of the department's director, the two general secretaries and the ten community secretaries. Barrett's merger plan, however, is expected to cope with this contingency.

Accidents Hurt 3 Children

Three children were injured yesterday in traffic accidents near their homes.

Playing in the rear yard of his home, 4819 Georgia avenue, Stanley Kirson, 6, ran out into the alley and was struck by a truck. His right ankle was fractured.

Thomas A. Queen, 4, of 35 Girard street northeast, was playing on the sidewalk near North Capitol and Evarts streets when he darted into the street and was struck by a car. He suffered cuts and bruises.

Another player in the street, 7-year-old Lonnie Pugh, colored, suffered a compound leg fracture when he was hit by an auto near his home. He lives at 11 Logan Circle.

2-State Police Rush To Warn Woman With Wrong Drug

Baltimore, July 27 (AP).—Maryland and West Virginia State police got a sweat up about a bottle of medicine.

Mrs. E. Colebank left Johns Hopkins Hospital with the wrong prescription. Hospital authorities notified State police. Officers intercepted the Colebank car between Cumberland and Morgantown, W. Va., and told her not to take the medicine.

Bandits Take $10,000 Gems in New York Rush

New York, July 27 (INS).—While the home-going rush was at its peak this evening, two colored bandits held up the jewelry firm of Ferriss Reeves & Co., and escaped with diamond rings valued at more than $10,000. Reeves, head of the firm, was threatened with death unless he opened the safe. Then he was gagged and bound with picture wire.

Hacker Returns $770, Gets Job for Honesty

Baltimore, July 27 (AP).—Honesty changed Joseph L. Camberdell from a taxi driver to a sailor overnight.

Arthur S. Williams, Lynchburg, Va., left his wallet containing $770 in Camberdell's cab. Camberdell turned the money in to the police station.

Today he was rewarded with a $50 bill and a steady $30-a-week job aboard Williams' yacht.

Mosquitoes Keep You Awake Nights?

Here's what to do. Before retiring, close the bedroom doors and windows. Use a good sprayer and fill the room with a mist of Bee Brand Insect Spray. Let the room stay closed for 15 minutes. When you go back, the only mosquitoes will be dead ones on the floor.

Don't confuse Bee Brand Spray with other insecticides. It has no nasty kerosene smell—only a clean cedar fragrance that soon disappears. And Bee Brand really kills flies, mosquitoes and other flying insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use in the home. Don't waste money on cheap, weak, smelly stuff. Get Bee Brand and get rid of flies. Insist on the genuine, quick-killing Bee Brand Insect Spray—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

NOTE: You can also kill flies and mosquitoes, as well as roaches and ants, with Bee Brand Insect Powder. Read directions on can.

Teachers Address Va. 4-H 'All-Stars'

Blacksburg, Va., July 27 (AP).—Two Virginia Tech faculty members were speakers on today's program of conferences at the annual 4-H Club State short course.

"The family as a co-operative group" was the topic of an address by Dr. Mildred Tate, head of the home economics department, which the subject of a talk by Dr. Leland Tate, professor of rural sociology, was "Getting Along In Our Community."

Vesper services and a puppet show last night concluded an all-day program highlighted by announcement of winners of a correct dress revue.

Paul Sleman, of Chevy Chase, Md., Montgomery County Republican leader for many years, left his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Helen Small Sleman and named her executrix, it was revealed yesterday in his will.

The instrument, filed for probate in the orphans court at Rockville, did not indicate the value of his estate. It was dated March 23, 1915.

Sleman was a prominent attorney and chairman of the Republican State central committee.

Frederick High Principal Shifted To Emmitsburg

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., July 27.—The Frederick County board of education today announced the transfer of Albert L. Leary from Frederick High School, where he has been principal for 14 years, to a school at Emmitsburg. Wilbur Devilbiss, at present principal of Brunswick High School, will succeed Mr. Leary here, and Arvin P. Jones, now at Emmitsburg, will take charge of the Brunswick institution.

The changes are effective for the new school term which commences September 5. No reason was given for the transfers.

The board announced today the resignation of Arthur Ahalt as agricultural instructor at Frederick High School to accept a position on the faculty of the University of Maryland. He will be succeeded here by Edward Holter, now at Middletown High School.

Oil Case Convictions Set Aside By Court of Appeals

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, July 27.—Conviction of five individuals and twelve corporations in the Madison, Wis., "Oil Trust" trial was reversed today by the Seventh United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The cases were remanded to the Federal District Court at Madison for new trials.

The defendants were fined last July after a Federal jury had convicted them of conspiring to raise and fix gasoline prices in the Mid-West. Individual defendants were fined $1,000 each by Judge Patrick A. Stone, while the defendant corporations were fined $5,000.

The reversal, according to the written opinion of Circuit Court Judge J. Earl Major, based largely on the fact the lower court had instructed the jury to find the defendants guilty of violation of the Sherman anti-trust act if it found that they had acted in restraint of trade. The circuit court held the jury should have been instructed the action, holding that an agreement which resulted in the raising of prices was not necessarily a violation of the law.

Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust department, announced tonight in Washington the decision would be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The defendant corporations, which may now have to face a retrial if the Government decides to pursue the case, include the Socony Vacuum Oil Co., the Wadhams Oil Co., the Empire Oil Refining Co., the Continental Oil Co., the Pure Oil Co., the Shell Petroleum Corporation, the Sinclair Refining Co., the Mid-Continent Petroleum Corporation, the Phillips Petroleum Co., the Skelly Oil Co., and the Globe Oil & Refining Cos., of Oklahoma and Illinois.

Individual defendants whose appeals were sustained include Charles E. Arnott, vice president, and H. T. Ashton, manager of the Lubrite division of Socony-Vacuum; R. H. McElroy, jr., Chicago tank car sales manager of Pure Oil; P. E. Lakin, St. Louis general sales manager, of Shell, and Robert W. McDowell, vice president of Mid-Continent.

Britain Urges People Get Gas Masks Faster

Take on Vacations, London Advises; Babies To Be Given Helmets

Special Cable to The Post.

London, July 27.—The British government asked local authorities throughout the country today to speed up the distribution of gas masks to the adult population, and advised vacationists to take their masks with them in August if they intended to stay away a month or more.

Plans were made to begin within three days the distribution of gas helmets for babies under 2, and of masks for children between 2 and 4½. By the end of August 200,000 children will have gas protection.

Fears of an impending emergency were discounted by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons this afternoon when he intimated that the normal parliamentary recess from August 4 to the end of October would not be broken, although the speaker would retain his customary power to recall the M. P.'s if trouble arose.

"We have no reason to suppose," he said, "that if grave events supervene they will do so in a fortnight or three weeks, or at any particular time."

Arthur Greenwood, deputy leader of the Labor opposition, jumped up to remind Chamberlain that although the Commons reassembled during the Czech crisis last September earlier than usual, "we were faced with a fait accompli when it was much too late for the House to meet."

"Well, sir," Chamberlain retorted cheerfully, "we did not go to war."

China Bank Seeks Export Exchange At 'Link Rate'

Special Cable to The Post.

Tientsin, July 27.—The Japanese-created North China Federal Reserve Bank recommended today the Peiping "Provisional" government empower the bank to buy all export exchange at the so-called "link" rate of 8¼ pence, or 16½ American cents per Federal Reserve Bank dollar change rate of 1 shilling 2 pence, or 27 American cents. The bank asked the government to allocate all import exchange in such a way as to make a private exchange link between importing and exporting firms illegal.

The "link" system provides that exports granted by exchange authorities for export exchange are equivalent to the amount of exported exchange, while imports exchange is sold to the importer at a rate above the open market, but much lower than the official rate to the importer, thus making it possible for both importer and exporter to do business at reasonable exchange rates. The system eliminates foreign banks, transactions being financed by the Yokohama specie bank.

Franco Postpones Cabinet Meeting

Burgos, Spain, July 27 (AP).—A cabinet meeting expected to produce a new "dynamic ministry" to hasten peacetime reconstruction today was postponed from tomorrow until Saturday, with indications that Gen. Franco might draw in high-ranking army men of special abilities to fill several key positions.

6 Dead, 40 Hurt In Algiers Fire

Algiers, July 27 (AP).—Part of the port of Algiers was destroyed today by a fire and explosion which killed six dock workers and burned ten others so severely they are not expected to live.

Thirty others were injured less severely. The explosion was set off by the sun burning down on gasoline drums.

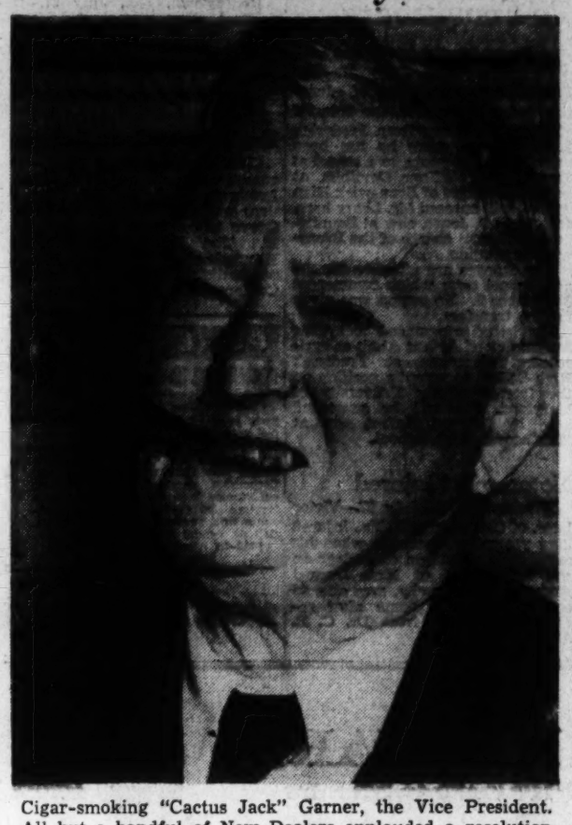
Damage was estimated at between $416,000 and $420,000.

4 Rescued From Cliff Near Hitler's Chalet

Berchtesgaden, July 27 (AP).—A honeymooning couple and two 19-year-old youths were rescued today after being marooned for 64 hours on Hochkalter Mountain, within sight of Fuehrer Hitler's chalet.

Gustav and Rosa Walthers, of Nurnberg, the newlyweds, and their young German companions were said to be in good condition despite their terrifying experience on the 8,000-foot mountain.

House Cheers Garner, Called 'An Evil Old Man' by Lewis



Cigar-smoking "Cactus Jack" Garner, the Vice President. All but a handful of New Dealers applauded a resolution of the Texas delegation expressing "deep resentment" against "this unjustified attack" upon his public and private life this meeting." She later declared, however, that his statement was in poor taste, and Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, ranking member of the committee, said hethought everyone was "too flabbergasted" to interrupt the C. I. O. leader. The sole Texas member of the Labor Committee, Representative Thomas, was absent from the hearing at the time the thunderclap burst.

Infuriated by the attack on their Presidential white hope, the entire Texas delegation assembled in the office of Majority Leader Rayburn, himself a Texan, to decide what should be done.

In the corridors, there had been some talk of proposing a resolution barring Lewis from all future House committee hearings, but this scheme faded away.

After considerable discussion, the Texans drew up the brief document which the dean of their delegation, Representative Luther Johnson (Democrat), read to the House:

"The Texas delegation in the House of Representatives has just been informed of the bitter personal attack made upon Hon. John Nance Garner, our Vice President, before the House Labor Committee today by John L. Lewis.

"We who know him best cannot refrain from expressing our deep resentment and indignation at this unwarranted and unjustified attack on his private and public life.

"The Texase delegation has complete confidence in his honesty, integrity and ability."

Individual members of the group were less restrained. Representative Kleberg stated that "my reaction to John L. Lewis' dastardly, untrue and unwarranted attack on Vice President Garner is that it should be considered as a priceless compliment to Mr. Garner's untarnished record of unselfish public service, personal honor, integrity, patriotism, courage and American heritage." Another Texan, Representative Patton, described Lewis' statement as "an infamous, low-down attack on a great American statesman."

Senator Connally, of Texas, classed Lewis' remarks as "pure bunk," while his colleague, Senator Sheppard, aredent prohibitionist, seaid "Mr. Lewis is entirely under misapprehension as to Mr. Garner's personal habits."

However, intimate friends of Garner admitted yesterday that "he might take a few drinks between 3 and 5 in the afternoon."

"He drinks a brand that used to be distilled by Andrew Mellon, and I remember that we used to chide him about this when he was feuding with Mellon," said one of Garner's old cronies. The Vice President prefers his drinks straight, with a chaser or "branch water" direct from the tap.

"He never takes a drink after supper," the friend added. "I have known him for 30 years and never in that time have I seen him intoxicated. He is too smart for that."

Garner used to be one of the canniest poker players in Washington. He was a member of the Capitol Hill coterie that would gather in a downtown club called the Boar's Nest. Among those with whom he played for rather modest stakes were "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Vice President James Sherman, Senator Charles Curtis, who also became Vice President, and Senator Albert Summings of Iowa.

Nowadays he and Mrs. Garner play a hand of rummy in their Washington Hotel suite before dinner. After dinner Garner usually goes up to the roof garden and smokes a cigar before going to bed. He retires almost invariably at 9 p. m., gets up around 6 and is in his office long before many members of Congress are out of bed.

The Vice President goes out to few formal functions. He gives a party for the President once a year, and the President gives one for him. Aside from these, Garner goes to the Gridiron and Alfalfa Club dinners. When he was invited to the British Embassy dinner for King George and Queen Elizabeth, he begged off.

Texans interested in the Garner-for-President boom said last night that Lewis had been anti-Garner ever since the Vice President angrily opposed the sit-down strikes in conferences with President Roosevelt at the White House.

British Rush Bill to Deport Irish Terrorists

Commons Sends Lords Measure on Expulsion; Chamberlains Guarded

Special Cable to The Post.

London, July 27.—As a sequel to yesterday's fatal bomb explosions made by Irish terrorists at two London railroad stations, the British government was reported tonight to be planning mass deportations during the week-end of hundreds of suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

It was understood that a warship would be sent on Saturday to Fishguard or Holyhead, the two principal Welsh ports on the Irish Sea, to await batches of Irish men and women who will be rounded up for expulsion as soon as the government obtains its unprecedented police powers of search and arrest under the prevention of violence bill, drafted specifically to smash the I. R. A.

The measure, rushed through the House of Commons in record time last night, was given a hasty first reading by the House of Lords today. Earl Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty and leader of the upper house, said the government wanted the bill passed by the peers tomorrow.

"No Effort Would Be Spared"

In the Commons, Prime Minister Chamberlain promised that "no effort would be spared to bring to justice those who are guilty of these criminal and cowardly attacks."

Before Parliament met today the buildings and cellars were searched for bombs as a precautionary measure.

All cabinet ministers and members of the Home Secretary's Department were shadowed by plain-clothes men. Two extra detectives trailed Prime Minister and Mrs. Chamberlain when they took their customary morning strolls.

'Interests' Fighting Gaming Ships Ban

By the Associated Press

Attorney General Murphy said yesterday that "large interests" had "contacted certain people in Washington" to prevent passage of legislation designed to put Pacific Coast gambling ships out of operation.

The Attorney General told reporters that "enormous" sums of money were involved in this gambling. The Justice Department has sponsored legislation to stamp out the ships.

Questioned about the source of opposition, Murphy declined specific comment.

THE DANCING STAR. Kay Taylor, the young dancer of whom Joe Moss, of New York's Hollywood restaurant, says, "She's the most gifted beginner I've ever discovered," will appear on the Shoreham Terrace next week. Since Joe sponsored the dancing debuts of Alice Faye, Harriet Hilliard and Dixie Dunbar, his pronunciamento carries weight. Folks who remember Joe from his Washington days, will also remember that he's a very hard fellow to please.

Gary Leon and Tut Mace will head next week's Terrace show, as previously announced. They have appeared at the top spots in London, Paris and Monte Carlo and their dancing was featured in the cinemas, "Let's Live Tonight" and "Dante's Inferno."

BIG SHOTS' PET TUNE. That old warhorse of the waltzes, Strauss' "Blue Danube," is the favorite tune of most important men, says Bert Bernath, of the Carlton's cocktail lounge. He cited G. O. P.'s John Hamilton, Gen. Hugh Johnson and others as examples.

"ABDALLAH GIRLS" INTO LOTUS. Proprietor Dick Lamm of the Lotus is walking on air. Because the "Abdallah Girls" will tumble into the Lotus come Monday. We don't know that they're Arabian, but it's guaranteed that they can do cartwheels like a bunch of Arabian tumblers, are beautiful as Turkish sultanas, dance in the Broadway manner.

NEWEST OLD CAR. Maryland Garden's owner, Mrs. Mary Inez Stamm, has the distinction of owning the "newest old car" in town. Back in 1932 Mrs. Stamm gave a new auto to a relative just before she went to Europe. Lately, it developed that the relative didn't care for motoring, had only driven the car around 2,000 miles in seven years. So now Mrs. Stamm is driving a new car, vintage 1932.

RAINBOW STATISTICS. More than 100 diversion seekers were turned away from the Rainbow Room last Saturday eve. And 175 people were unable to get into the Rainbow on the night of its recent anniversary party. Who says that figures don't have glamour?

VIBRA HARP COLOR. That you listen to Valencia warble. It's made of black currant brandy and French vermouth, highly refreshing . . . Hall's seafood restaurant. Are frog legs sea food? Anyway, a frog leg platter combines all the good qualities of chicken and lobster . . . O'Donnell's Farms. A tall rum Collins will give you just the right start on a "plantation dinner" . . . Dick's Grill. The fried shrimp are super-super. Proprietor Dick Ashby says it's partly because they're fried directly from the new state, partly because of a special mode of dressing them.

CRAB FEAST. If anyone goes hungry in our town tonight, it won't be the fault of the A. T. & S. Barbecue down on the Alexandria pike. Just save out 35 cents and gas money and you'll be able to eat crabs to the limit of your capacity at the A. T. & S.

PHOTOGENIC FOLK. Jack Menning, leader of Hi Hat's "Strings of Romance," who looks like Georgie Jessel. And Al Lewis, Hi Hat's steel guitarist, resembles Peter Lorre.

Dot O'Connell, handsome and cordial hostess of the Neptune Room. You'll see her picture at the top of this column pretty soon.

Fred MacDowell, steel guitarist of Hour Glass' Cocomos. Looks like Richard Greene of the movies, sings a lot better.

Prussians Weld Danzig Groups Into '1st Army'

Nazi-Controlled Senate Deprives Jews Power To Run Own Business

By International News Service

London, July 27.—Various "defense organizations" in Danzig are being welded into an army under the direction of Germany's East Prussian command, Reuter's news agency reported tonight in a dispatch from the Free City.

It is to be known as the First Danzig Army, according to the message.

The Nazi-controlled Danzig Senate adopted a decree today depriving Jews of power to administer their own business investments and land holdings, Reuter's stated. The edict will apply to Polish Jews living in the Free City's areas as well as to Danzig Jews.

Protest Shooting of Pole

Warsaw, July 27 (INS).—Marian Chodacki, Polish commissioner in Danzig, today delivered a note to the Free City's Nazi Senate sharply protesting against the fatal shooting of a Polish border guard last week.

The note demanded the "most severe punishment" for three Danzig German customs officers alleged to have opened fire across the frontier near Hudziewicz killing the Polish soldier.

Donn Fendler To Get Medal

Bangor, Me., July 27 (U.P.).—Donn Fendler, 12, Rye, N. Y., Boy Scout, who battled his way out of the wilderness after being lost nine days, will be presented a hero medal by Gov. Barrows of Maine on August 2.

The gold medal will signify Donn as "the most courageous boy in America." Doctors said the plucky lad, "completely recovered from fatigue," would be released from a hospital within two or three days.

Slobodkin Lincoln Purchased by U. S.

Louis Slobodkin, New York sculptor, who was the center of an uproar last spring when his statue of Abraham Lincoln was ordered removed from the New York World's Fair grounds, found vindication yesterday in the Capital.

It was announced that he and Rear Admiral Christian J. Peebles, representing the Secretary of the Treasury, have signed a contract calling for installation of another statue of Lincoln in the new Interior building, to be 7½ feet tall, for which Slobodkin will receive $1,600.

Zoo's Penguins Mourn for Baby

The black in the plumage of Mollie and Moe carried sad significance yesterday for they were in mourning for the baby.

Zoo officials disclosed that the young penguin died Tuesday, but it lived 37 days, considerably longer than any other penquin ever bred and hatched in captivity. Mollie and Moe became the parents of two little ones last year, but one lived less than a week and the other about ten days.

Leche Testifies To U.S. Grand Jury

New Orleans, July 27 (U.P.).—A Federal grand jury, extending its investigation of the Louisiana scandals on many fronts, tonight considered brief testimony of former Gov. Richard W. Leche.

Leche was closeted with the jury ten minutes and told to appear tomorrow.

Drinkers' Pants Gone

Laurel, Miss., July 27 (AP).—Chief J. E. Brown gave his blessing today to Laurel's pants thief as a force for temperance.

This fellow trails drunks until they collapse, then shucks them out of their breeches.

Said Brown: "If he keeps on he may stop some of the drinking."

Girl Charges Fall Broke Skull, Sues D C Riding School

Mary A. Warner, 24-year-old Federal Housing Administration worker, blamed a fractured skull on a horse named Stormy Weather and asked District Court for $10,000 damages yesterday.

MARY A. WARNER

Miss Warner sued Norman Corbin, Jr., of 2814 G street northwest, and Lillian Corbin of 2150 F street northwest, proprietors of Our Riding Academy. Her complaint said that on April 9 she asked the academy to supply her with a docile animal, but the defendants gave her Stormy Weather, which she described as a "wild, rough riding, vicious mount which threw her."

Her injuries will keep her inactive at her home, 2440 Sixteenth street northwest for months, Miss Warner deposed. Her attorneys were Morris D. Schwarth and L. A. Moses.

Weasel Warfare

Every Irish person whose patriotism stops this side of paranoia must have read with anger and shame the account of the latest activities in the war that is being conducted in the name of the Irish Republic.

Wednesday a bomb explosion in King's Cross Station, London, maimed 15 persons after blowing into bits an inoffensive young man, who, to judge by his name and place of residence, was blameless even of the guilt of being one of the hated Sassanach. He was a Scots professor of Latin, returning from his honeymoon, and it is rather terrible to imagine the connotations the word "Irish" will have hereafter for his widow. Of course the victim might as easily have been someone else—one of the many young children, for instance, who were in the station at that moment.

Three more were hurt by another bomb that went off at Victoria Station. Two further bombings, one of them wrecking a bridge and the other a postoffice, concluded the day's action in behalf of Irish freedom. Thus the total of these outrages since January 1 was brought up to 132.

The most tragic thing about the bombings is not so much the senselessness of the whole business but the fact that they represent a complete reversal of the traditional pattern of Irish patriotism. At a recent mass meeting in Trafalgar Square, held under the very nose of Scotland Yard, an orator openly warned the British government that the bombings will continue until the British garrisons are withdrawn from Ulster and that troubled province is reunited with the rest of Ireland. That mass meeting was ostensibly held in celebration of the birthday of Theobald Wolfe Tone. Yet unless history has strangely misrepresented him, the chivalrous Wolfe Tone would have been the first to sicken at this species of weasel warfare. The same could be said of Emmet, Mitchell, Rossa, Pearse and all the rest of the pantheon of Irish nationalism. Will it now be necessary to rewrite the song?

> The minstrel boy to the war has gone,
> But it's safe in bed you'll find him;
> He's been to the station to check his bag
> And to leave his bombs behind him.

Anyhow, in the Irish Senate, Mr. Frank MacDermott, demanding a statement from the Irish government, expressed fear that I. R. A. members, whom the British government is now preparing to deport, might return to be "acclaimed as heroes." Mr. DeValera completely disavowed the activities of the I. R. A., saying, "Last spring we created a favorable attitude in Britain toward ending partition, but this campaign in England has put us back."

Thus, unlike other forms of frightfulness pandemic in the world today, the bombings have not even the excuse of serving any purpose. The only possible explanation is that they are evidences of a fanaticism that has crossed the borderline into lunacy—unless, of course, Sir Samuel Hoare is right in hinting that behind the shamrock looms a swastika.

Grim Rehearsal

The "blackouts" and simulated air raids staged in Berlin this week follow closely on the recent mass demonstration flights of British bombers to distant points in France. And while the German press has not emphasized that airplanes can reach Berlin from London as easily as they have reached Bordeaux, the moral is implicit in the elaborate defense precautions which all residents of the capital of the Reich have just witnessed.

It is just as well that the people of Berlin and other great German cities should witness these defense activities, with their realistic tabulations of gutted buildings, blasted streets and potential casualties. Germany experienced very little physical destruction in the last war and her people have been taught to believe that in another conflict the soil of the Fatherland would be equally inviolate.

The Nazi authorities know that this is not the case. They realize that the rapid development of the British and French air forces would mean, in the event of war, terrible destruction in every vital German city, no matter how efficient their own aerial weapons. The air-raid rehearsals in Berlin are a tacit admission of this, and one with implications which the German people will be quick to realize.

A nation which realizes that war will bring utter ruin to its cities, just as extensive as the damage which may be inflicted on others, will reflect very soberly before it casts the dice. Such thoughts, in Germany, have not been lessened by the elaborate air-raid rehearsals which the army has deemed essential, regardless of its effect on popular morale.

The Break With Japan

There is no mystery about the Administration's denunciation of our commercial treaty with Japan. It was designed to serve notice on Tokyo that relations between the two countries are anything but satisfactory. This is the "real intention," which the Japanese Foreign Office says it "fails to understand."

The treaty in question has been in effect since 1911, supplanting a similar one which came into force in 1894. So its abrogation, now scheduled to take place next January, will mark the end of a cordial relationship dating from Japan's emergence as a great power. There is deep regret that it should be necessary to terminate an international engagement which was specifically designed "to strengthen the relations of amity and good understanding" between the two nations. But there is no doubt in the public mind that it had become imperative to take this step.

Amity between the United States and Japan has been steadily evaporating since that nation first embarked on the conquest of China, nearly eight years ago. We have never recognized the seizure of Manchuria and we have no intention of recognizing the fruits of the even more outrageous Japanese aggressions in the rest of China. All this conquest has taken place in direct violation of treaties which Japan has never formally denounced, and has been accompanied by purposeful and increasing encroachments on American rights and interests.

Under the circumstances it has become absurd to talk of "relations of amity and good understanding" between the United States and Japan. The basis for them has been destroyed.

From the beginning of the invasion of China, and with increasing force as the Chinese have courageously refused to be battered into submission, the indirect assistance afforded the aggressors by this country has deeply stirred the American conscience. It is fully realized that the bombs which have blasted Chinese cities have to a large extent been manufactured from American metal, and dropped from planes propelled by American gasoline. Sentiment for an absolute embargo on the export of such commodities to Japan is very strong and is growing. But for its application denunciation of the 1911 commercial treaty was an essential preliminary.

That treaty provides—until its lapse in January—that no prohibitions such as an embargo shall be applied by either contracting power on a discriminatory basis. Therefore, in the case of a country which honors its pledges, this treaty has to lapse before an embargo on exports to Japan can properly be applied. With this barrier out of the way there will no longer be any legal obstacle to the application of a sweeping prohibition on shipments of war materials to Japan. And this also the Tokyo foreign office should not "fail to understand."

There is little doubt of the willingness of Congress to impose, and of the American public to support, such an embargo. Whether or not it is applied, bringing terrific pressure on Japan's overstrained economy, is a matter which that nation will really decide. In the next six months the Japanese have ample time to make known their real intentions in China, and to show how they can be reconciled with their treaty obligations. If they are not reconciled the chances are excellent for the step to which the present action is clearly preparatory.

Another feature in the denunciation of the 1911 treaty should be noted as clearly by Americans as by Japanese observers. This important step was taken by the Administration, with complete propriety, while Congress was considering its advisability. Here is an important reminder of the very great latitude possessed by the executive in the field of foreign policy, and of the fact that while this latitude may be limited it cannot possibly be eliminated by Congressional action or inaction.

There may be countries, perhaps Japan among them, which really think that a handful of Senate isolationists can prevent the United States from having a reasoned foreign policy, and acting on it. If so, the action of Secretary Hull on Wednesday night will be educational abroad as well as popular at home.

Well worth consideration is the fact that this vigorous executive action was taken without asking either the advice or the consent of the Senate. It may not be the last time in which a similar forthright move will have to be made without first ascertaining what Hiram Johnson thinks about it.

The Wheat Debacle

The recent sharp decline in wheat prices, here and in other parts of the world, is chiefly due to an abnormally large carryover, about double that of a year ago. However, a number of other factors have contributed to the suddenness and precipitancy of the drop in prices. War threats, for instance seem, momentarily at least, less menacing. Furthermore, export subsidies and other governmental devices affecting marketing processes are thought to be partly responsible for the market's weakness.

Such explanations are plausible. For whether wheat is being forced on world markets at Government expense, or withheld with the aid of Government loans, the result is interference with normal marketing processes and the introduction of new elements of uncertainty into the price outlook. When the defunct Federal Farm Board was trying to stabilize wheat prices by holding supplies off the market it was frequently charged that its large stored stocks had a depressing effect. Similarly, the present loan plan, which results in wheat being taken off the market, produces a feeling of uneasiness, although ultimately such withdrawals may bring about a stiffening of domestic wheat prices.

The current sharp fluctuations in the wheat market call attention to the wholly disruptive effect of Government efforts to stabilize prices of world commodities. Instead of increased stability, the net result is greater instability. Instead of being able to forecast price trends with some assurance, by studying demand and supply factors, the trader is forced to take account of the incalculable and unpredictable effects of shifting Government policies. The result is chaos, even though Secretary Wallace did not "plan it that way."

A Momentous Precedent

Last spring the Department of Agriculture devised a plan for distributing surplus foods among relief families through a system of stamp sales. Persons participating in the plan receive blue stamps, free of charge, equal in value to one-half the amount of the orange stamps which have to be bought and paid for out of relief allowances. With the blue stamps, specified surplus commodities may be bought through regular retail trade channels. The orange stamps are available for the purchase of other staple foods, thereby affording a more abundant and better balanced diet to relief recipients.

This plan has the obvious advantage of utilizing private distributive channels to dispose of surpluses in ways least likely to disorganize the market. There is, however, always a danger that abuses will creep into a system of this sort unless it is subject to most careful supervision. For that reason the Department of Agriculture has proceeded slowly and cautiously with its initial experiment, testing it first in the city of Rochester and subsequently extending it to a few other municipalities.

Now the department, encouraged by the results of its earlier efforts, is preparing to expand its program to include families in low-income groups, earning less than $1,000 yearly. Shawnee, Okla., will provide the first test of this plan for giving food to families not on relief. The modest scale of the venture, and the fact that only the poor will benefit, does not in the least detract from the major political significance of this departure from customary practice. If the non-relief residents of Shawnee are given free rations, it may not be long before millions of other Americans with low incomes will reasonably be demanding the same benefits. They will challenge the equity of a system that bestows free food upon some, while denying it to others equally necessitous.

The possible consequences of such an extension of relief to groups able to maintain themselves without Government aid, are incalculable. Where, for instance, ought the line to be drawn between those entitled to free food at Government expense and those forced to subsist off their own earnings? In the long run, that decision will not be left to the discretion of Secretary Wallace. It will become a question that the public will insist upon deciding for itself. Already, it is said, complaints of favoritism have hastened the extension of the stamp system to the poorer non-relief families.

The Department of Agriculture is undoubtedly wise in proceeding slowly with its plans for the distribution of surplus foods. But a system of this kind, once started, may easily get beyond control of the authorities. Charges of discrimination, demands for a broader coverage, might easily lead to an extensive system of food rationing that would have the effect of equalizing incomes to a large extent.

Such a system is only compatible with a highly regimented form of economic society in which the state is the wholly dominant factor. It certainly does not fit into the American system of free enterprise, in which the man with a job is not expected to look to a socialistic government for free food and balanced diets.

Next year is general election year and leap year, and a large number of men will be running—some for offices, and many from women.

Maybe this will be of some small comfort to you: A geologist learns that the earth is cooling off at the rate of 1 degree centigrade in 8,000,000 years.

America and Japan

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: America, long particeps criminis, no longer slumbers on her destiny, neglects her duty, forgets her morals, forgets humanity's recourse or her own self-preservation. The President's initiative vision be praised, the Secretary of State, Mr. Hull, included. The national shame, from Panay to Tientsin, through lethargy to action, is erased. America has dedicated herself not only to the preservation of her own independence but her own self-respect. A new and glorious day has dawned in American diplomacy.

The Labor Unions

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The greatest menace to the prosperity, peace and happiness of these United States is not Hitlerism nor communism, but the labor unions. And to show that I am in favor of unions of the right kind, I will state that I was a member of a labor union for over 20 years and have today an honorable withdrawal card which was given me when I changed my occupation that required no union membership.

But it is a far cry from the trade union of 25 or 30 years ago to the present time. Now we have strikes, bloodshed, destruction of property and coercion of the vilest type, and exorbitant demands for wages. And however these demands are met they still cry for higher pay and shorter hours.

The present Administration, of course, is responsible for the labor chaos, as it has aided and abetted the National Labor Board and the beetle-browed John L. Lewis, the boss of the C. I. O.

At least this is the opinion of one who believes in decent unionism.

Speaking Of Uncertainty

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President was unquestionably right in saying that uncertainty will slow up business.

This is true because one of the chief characteristics of law is certainty, a uniform rule, unchanging, inflexible, according to which man can plan his future conduct. Anything that is changeable and flexible is not a standard to which man can conform and is therefore deadly to human effort.

The President specified only the uncertainty arising in connection with the neutrality act. Among other uncertainties which slow up business are the power of the President to manipulate the dollar and what Congress will do next to promote "the general welfare" and "to regulate commerce."

Already Congress has given enormous sums to foreigners under the silver purchase act. Now it is proposed to lend them money.

General welfare now includes the conduct of banking, insurance, housing, power and light, transportation, etc., each in deadly competition with citizens, and the regulation of commerce includes attempts to fix wages and hours.

Through the acts of the President and of Congress and especially of the Supreme Court, we have attained the condition described by President Van Buren (message December 5, 1840) of a "latitudinous construction" of "that sacred instrument," the Constitution, which has rendered it "of as little value as an unwritten constitution, dependent, as it would alone be, for its meaning on the interested interpretation of a dominant party, and affording no security to the rights of the minority. . . ."

The Constitution should be amended to restore the rule of law, and so restore certainty.

Washington Subway

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington's traffic problem would be in large part solved by construction of a four-track belt-line subway around the Federal Government buildings, flanked at suitable locations by large automobile parking lots and garages. Existing street car lines would be routed over the two outside tracks—one track for cars going in one direction, and the other track for those going in the other direction, around the loop. The two inner tracks would be used for subway trains carrying two types of traffic: (a) persons driving their own automobiles to and from work and parking their cars in the garages adjacent to the subway; and (b) persons going from one office to another.

This subway would be able to carry the morning and evening peak loads of traffic, and would take a large part of both street car and automobile traffic, and a large part of the all-day automobile parking off the streets in the congested parts of the city. The subway would also have a large volume of interoffice traffic, and of traffic to nearby stores and business offices during the day.

The parking spaces for automobiles should be operated by the same corporation or agency which operates the subway, and combination auto-parking and subway fare tickets sold on a weekly or monthly basis. The subway should be air-conditioned throughout.

Since a subway of this type would be of primary benefit to the Federal Government, and would be used chiefly by Federal Government employes in coming to and leaving their offices and in their business throughout the day, the subway should be built and operated by the Federal Government, either directly or through a controlled corporation. It would be a self-liquidating project, however, and could be financed through guaranteed bonds or as part of the proposed lending-spending program.

Washington Police

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You have been writing quite a bit about the police investigation by the G-men.

For a quarter of a century I have been the president and directing head of the Prisoners Relief Society and have handled a large part of the returning convicts from the Federal and local major prisons, and I have talked with many hundred men charged with crime and those discharged from prison and all along the way. I believe that I know as much about the Washington Police Department as any man.

Now and then I have found some officer guilty of being drunk on duty, of having love affairs, matching nickels, accepting a gift of a box of cigars and getting a discount on merchandise. And I knew one policeman to hook two dozen eggs. If there was much wrong with this Police Department I would have some knowledge of it. I also believe that the Police Court has been above criticism.

Attorney General Murphy is barking up the wrong tree in my judgment. I cannot say as much for the G-men as I have said for the police.

Depression And The WPA

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Persons who think they have said the last word on the intention and continuation of WPA work have taken for granted that the object of the organization has been met when the unemployed have been given temporary employment.

But back of the need for such a movement on the part of our Government was a condition. We have elected to call it "the depression." The theory was that when "happy days had come again" there would be no need for a WPA or anything of the sort. Have those happy days arrived? Is the commercial world ready to absorb the unemployed as was theoretically proclaimed? If the unemployed are like a shipload of passengers in a harbor, given protection there until the storm at sea has subsided, would it be kindness to say, "We have kept you for a time in kindness, for which you must thank us; but now we must make you meet the storm and fight it out, though the conditions are no better than when you took refuge with us?"

White-collar workers, as they have been called, including writers and research workers, have been the objects of newspaper attacks particularly. But are the newspapers of the country ready to take these men and women, when discharged from the WPA, on their pay rolls? Or are there any departments of non-governmental employ ready to suit their actions to their complaints and show some signs of employing persons who have demonstrated in the WPA a very high type of work and ability?

Until the "storm" abates—if it ever does—the unemployed who have been kindly sheltered by governmental provision must still look to their Government to do everything possible to keep faith with that contingent of the WPA who have been found truly sincere and worthy as well as willing to serve for less than their abilities would normally demand. I do not know any in the WPA who would not get out tomorrow if he or she could find something like permanent employment in any branch of honorable commercial work.

Irish Republicans

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that wise old England has determined to make illegal the so-called Irish Republican Army, this citation from an Irish-American paper in the year of our Lord 1881 is startling in its horrible frankness:

"We are at war, and the belligerent code of our own making which we lay down is that we shall set fire to London in 500 places at once; that we shall burn and blow up people in the street at random; that we shall kill by bombs and fire and knife, and care nothing as to whom or how many we kill, so long as they are found within the four corners of England. We have no grievance—we advance no reasons. We simply say we want a certain thing, and we shall have it because we think fit. Else indiscriminate slaughter."

Why does not England follow Scotland's example where employers discharge members of the senseless Irish army and where the employer refuses employment to them? A bit of hunger might perhaps cause a wee bit of sense to seep into the craniums of the England-hating Irish misnamed Republicans.

Mirth Control

I HAVE TOYED now and then with the idea of going to a voice teacher to learn how to laugh. Not, I hope, that I have no sense of humor, but it is wayward and stubborn and refuses to produce more than a faint and creaking smirk at anything that it does not happen to consider funny. Yet when my boss or my guest tells me a joke, it is obvious that the response on my part should be a little more wholehearted. My muscles cooperate in the enterprise, but the inner opposition, whatever that is, wins out and nothing comes forth but a short croak which I do my best to cover up with, "That's good! Pretty good! Where'd you ever hear that!" etc.

Now, one of the most useful weapons in business is fine sincere laughter always on tap, and business being the main event in the Twentieth Century Circus, it stands to reason that I would make a more successful performer if I could greet all sallies, funny or otherwise, with appreciative guffaws. I turn from reading the tax bill to answer the telephone: I have a headache and a run in my new stockings; and I find our best customer on the wire feeling playful. I must be merry whether I am so inclined or not (and I'm not).

It's then I wish I had had a few lessons from the one who taught Nelson Eddy to sing "Ho-ho-ho, a Flea!"

I am not the lone sufferer. One of the most horrible sounds I have ever heard was a lawyer supposedly laughing at a quip of one of his clients. All the best books on how-to-be-a-big-success report that a suggestion, complaint or reprimand ought to be served with a light relish of merriment, and not the sour sauce which is often all I can find on the pantry shelf of my reflexes. I know people, too, who can laugh off an embarrassing moment in a manner miraculous. There is one super-extrovert who can laugh his way across any barrier. He has been known to put a joke over to a Chinaman who knew even less English than he did Chinese.

Since the gift of laughter was left out of my Christmas stocking I decided to remedy the lack. At first I thought of trying to remember the best joke I ever heard and just think of that whenever I felt requisite laughter freezing in my esophagus. But even the best jokes pall after a time. And that couldn't be called sincere laughter, anyway.

It was reported that Colleen Moore trained herself to weep at will. One of her self-imposed tests was to gaze at streetcar advertisements—"Lose that Weary-Willie Look; Take Twitches' Tablets Twice a Day"—and cry. Some of those ads are enough to sadden the gayest of mortals, but such streams of hot tears would pour down Miss Moore's cheeks that kindly old gentlemen would inquire solicitously whether they could be of some assistance to her. Perhaps, I thought, I could train myself to laugh. I considered going out and staring at a fence post and practicing, but I could guess what effect that would have on the neighbors.

Then the voice teacher idea occurred, but I gave that up, too, for I knew all the time it wasn't so easy as all that. In fact, what I had to undertake was a major revision of attitude. For the only way to laugh sincerely is, not surprisingly, to laugh sincerely. It meant that I must learn to forget myself and enter completely into the spirit of the other person. In reality, it is easy to understand that other person, for, after all, I found, he is just like me. I can remember sympathetically many times when I have felt just as he does, and the memory makes me laugh.

As soon as I have conquered my recalcitrant risibilities I intend to take up yawn control. Not the way you think. I am already proficient at the grimace which betrays the stifled yawn. I want to be able to yawn with devastating spontaneity at the salesgirls who tell me things are "smoht," at ancestor worshipers and at people who tell me the plots of books and movies.

Star-Spangled Banner

To the Editor of The Post: Sir—The Post of July 19 says, a court attack on the legality of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and on the right of Congress to declare it the national anthem was being prepared in New York last night by attorneys for Frederick Jagel, a Metropolitan Opera tenor who was born in America.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" is good enough as a national anthem for the "boys" of the Third Division, American Expeditionary Forces. They so decided at the twentieth annual reunion of the Marne Division at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Twenty-one years ago they were holding a section of the allied lines in France, and participated in the Somme defensive, Chateau Thierry sector, Aisne defensive, Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Casualties were during the World War, of this division, 4,310 killed and 13,650 wounded.

On Saturday, July 8, the closing day of the convention, 800 men and their wives opened the meeting by singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and I don't think anyone could say that it did not sound good. I believe any group can sing it if played in the right key.

On Tuesday, June 6, this year, the subject of the national anthem came up at a meeting of the Third Division Society, Washington Branch 7, and it was voted unanimously to retain it as the national anthem.

Secretary, Society of the Third Division at Washington Branch No. 7.

Invisible Government

LABOR UNIONS maintain courts within themselves which have authority to try charges against individual members and, in certain cases, to expel them from membership. In the case of a trade having a nation-wide closed shop, this expulsion would amount to an economic death penalty. The condemned man would be forever barred from employment at his occupation and, even if he were to learn another trade and apply for membership in the union governing that one, he might be rejected and thus again excluded from employment.

Such decisions may be appealed to the public courts, but that is an expensive process and one which the individual victim would be unlikely to resort to. He would be deterred from appealing to the public courts until he had first exhausted all the appeals provided by the union constitution, a method which makes for delay and distress, and, on his appeal, he would be opposed by the most expert counsel and the union treasury.

Free Speech Right Gravely Impaired

THE EFFECT of these possibilities on the individual member amounts to impairment of his right of free speech, for open criticism of his union might be construed as hostility to the labor movement, which is a grave offense. If the union also has a by-law providing for the expulsion of individuals whose interests are deemed to lie with the employer rather than with the employes, the individual takes a reckless risk in daring to express opposition to the union principle or to the policies of his own particular union.

Theoretically, under the American laws and constitution, a man's right to express his opinion or to work at his trade is subject to no curtailment by any private organization, and theoretically no courts but the public courts may try him for offense. As long as he obeys the laws he is supposed to be protected in all his rights.

'Super-Governments' Discipline Members

BUT UNIONS, like some organizations of businessmen, have created sub-governments or super-governments to discipline their members, govern their practices and collect taxes and assessments. Such business organizations have been closely examined and where they are shown to be operating in restraint of trade or to the detriment of a member's legal rights, they may be enjoined or punished. The practice of ganging up on an independent operator to put him out of business is severely condemned, and, rather oddly, the most scornful condemnation comes from persons who not only approve but apply equivalent means of coercion to individual workmen.

It is doubtful that it ever was intended by the nation that private organizations, whatever their declared purposes, should assume over their members governmental powers which the public government very pointedly waives. If it had been intended that a man must believe in unionism and that he could be penalized for refusing to believe in it, that thought would have been enacted into some plain law.

Unions 'License' Right To Work

SIMILARLY, if it had been intended that he might be required to obtain a license to work, at an initial cost rising, in one spectacular instance, to $3,000, that restriction on his rights as a free American also would have been legally enacted. And, also, in that case, the Government doubtless would have claimed the license fees for itself, not permitting them to go to private, collective organizations which might then use great masses of money to place themselves in a position to govern the Government from a detached, irresponsible position.

The public Government, at the insistence of the sub- or super-governments existing in unions, has outlawed physical and other coercion and intimidation of individual workmen by employers and groups of employers. But it has neglected to forbid equally the employment of similar coercion and intimidation by unions themselves and unions interpreted this silence as an unspoken license for them to use such methods.

"Invisible Government" has not been abolished, it has merely shifted from one field of operations to another.

Douglas Corrigan Goes Wrong Way In Senate Lift

By International News Service

Grinning Douglas Corrigan took another "wrong way" flight yesterday—but this time on an elevator in the Capitol.

Corrigan and his bride stepped in an elevator on the second floor of the Capitol to go up to the third floor visitors' galleries over the Senate.

The young flier told the elevator boy he wanted to go up, but upon recognizing Corrigan, the operator became flustered and started down. He quickly regained normalcy, however, and started it up. Corrigan broke out with a wide grin and wisecracked:

"Wrong way again."

Roosevelt Plans Fishing Trip Off Va. Capes

President Roosevelt is planning a week-end fishing expedition for marlin off the Virginia Capes, the White House revealed yesterday.

The President and a small group of friends, to be announced later, will leave aboard the White House Yacht Potomac sometime this afternoon, and return Monday.

Export Decline Strains Japan, Says U.S. Government Analysis

Publication Held Evidence of Firmer American Attitude; Scarcity of Exchange, Cut in Reserve to a Third Is Stressed

The Commerce Department yesterday reported a "drastic" decline in Japanese export trade in a 21-page analysis of the island empire's "purely wartime economy."

Released by Secretary Hopkins 12 hours after abrogation of the 1911 treaty opened the way for an American embargo against Japan, the official description of Japan's severely strained economy was seen as further evidence of a firm Far Eastern policy.

Japan's most pressing economic need, according to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce experts, is for exchange to carry on its foreign trade. "Control measures are considered essential in order to protect the currency and bring about the desired state of productivity; yet these measures are a drawback to the revival of foreign trade," the survey points out.

Industrial production, foreign trade, prices and distribution in Japan are under "practically complete government domination," the report states.

Gold reserves of the Bank of Japan have fallen from 548,000,000 yen at the end of 1936 to approximately one-third that amount today, the analysis shows. The government's bonded indebtedness has increased from 6,000,000,000 yen in the fiscal year 1930-31 to 16,222,700,000 on January 1, 1939.

Efforts to expand industrial production in Japan, "Manchukuo" (Commerce Department quotation marks) and the occupied provinces of North China have been "seriously impeded" by a labor shortage resulting from army requirements, according to the survey.

Exports from Japan proper last year fell off 15 per cent from the 1937 total, the bureau notes, and imports declined by 30 per cent. In the first four months of 1939 exports to foreign currency countries were 1.2 per cent less than for the corresponding period of 1938, but exports to yen-bloc areas gained 23 per cent.

Last year the United States still sent Japan more than one-third of her imports, the report points out, and took about one-sixth of Japanese exports.

New Tokyo Pact Found Unlikely

United States were being explored there was no expectation here of any quick action in response to the abrogation notice.

Six Months to Tell

At his press conference Secretary Hull declined to go beyond the terms of the notification presented to the Japanese councellor of embassy here, which said provisions of the old treaty require "new consideration" with a view "to better safeguarding and promoting American interests as new developments may require."

Asked directly, however, for details as to the "next step" relating to discussions for a new treaty, he said they would be determined according to developments during the next six months.

When a reporter mentioned implications that perhaps some political issues in the Far East are involved in cancellation of the treaty, he insisted that for the present the notice, which he said was couched in well understood and well established terms so far as the meaning is concerned, should best be allowed to speak for itself.

Textile Pact Separate

He said he had received no definite reaction from Tokyo, and replied to questions that he had not talked with Secretary Morgenthau on the question of increased duties on Japanese goods.

The "gentlemen's agreement" between Japan and the United States limiting the amount of cotton textiles that Japan undertakes to export to the United States is completely separate from the 1911 treaty, he said.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, called for application of the present neutrality act to embargo shipment of all arms, munitions and implements of war for the Far East conflict.

"Believing as I do," he said, "that the furnishing of arms and munitions and implements of war by a neutral nation to nations engaged in war is not only immoral but calculated to involve us in war, I would apply our laws with reference to that matter rigidly to all nations engaged in war."

British Strengthened

London, July 27 (AP).—Encouraged by the United States' abrogation of the American-Japanese trade treaty Britain was reported tonight to be considering stronger measures to protect her rights in the Far East unless Japan observed the spirit as well as the letter of the new British-Japanese agreement.

Other factors influencing Britain toward a firmer attitude included:

The reported progress in negotiations in Moscow for a British-French-Soviet assistance pact; continuance of the anti-British campaign in Japanese-controlled areas of China; unfavorable reaction to the British-Japanese agreement.

Some quarters said it was a possibility the government might follow the United States lead and denounce the 1914 British-Japanese trade treaty. One official said the government wanted to try to settle the difficulties by the Tokyo conferences now in progress.

Zoo's Penguins Mourn for Baby

The black in the plumage of Mollie and Moe carried sad significance yesterday for they were in mourning for the baby.

Zoo officials disclosed that the young penquin died Tuesday, but it lived 37 days, considerably longer than any other penquin ever bred and hatched in captivity. Mollie and Moe became the parents of two little ones last year, but one lived less than a week and the other about ten days.

Roosevelt And Farley

By Ernest K. Lindley

Open Break Delayed

IF THERE IS an open break between the President and James A. Farley it probably won't occur before January.

The open break may be inevitable, as this column has noted previously. The possibility that it will occur was not removed by the Roosevelt-Farley parley at Hyde Park last Sunday and Monday. What the two men said to each other is their secret. There is reason to think, however, that they talked more frankly than they had talked in several months—but that they did not reach, and did not attempt to reach, a full agreement.

Farley, I am confident, left Hyde Park with the conviction that the President wants him—as his chief political lieutenant. Farley, of course, would be extremely reluctant to break with "the boss." They are held together by personal affection and the bonds of common experience.

But Farley was obviously unhappy when he left Hyde Park. I have seen him in quite a few tight spots during the last ten years, and I have never seen him when his smile was thinner than it was last Monday while the President was telling the press about their conference. My guess is that he got no assurance on the main points that are bothering him: the President's plans concerning a third term and the President's attitude toward Jim's Presidential candidacy.

Farley's Personal Wounds Salved

ON THE OTHER HAND, the President undoubtedly salved Farley's personal wounds. At his Tuesday press conference he ridiculed the frequently published reports that various New Dealers were trying to "purge" Farley from the Cabinet and the chairmanship of the National Committee.

The next day the President named Harold Maurice Kennedy to be United States attorney for the Eastern District of New York. Kennedy is the candidate of Frank Kelly, Democratic leader of Brooklyn. Tom Corcoran and his New Deal group had cooked up a plan to give this job to another man: David Schenker, an assistant to Ferdinand Pecora during the Wall street investigation and later a high-ranking employe of the SEC.

Corcoran obtained the approval of Mayor LaGuardia of New York for the Schenker appointment. The mayor was ready to let loose a blast against Kelly and his candidate, on signal from Washington, but the signal didn't come.

Farley, of course, supported Kelly. And now the President has taken Farley's advice in this matter. Only a few months ago, in filling the office of United States atorney in the adjoining Eastern District of New York, the President ignored Farley and took Corcoran's candidate.

Feels Responsibility As Democrat Head

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that Farley made a real fight for Kelly's candidate. If he had been set for a break with the President, Farley would have said only enough to keep the record straight and hoped that the appointment would go to Schenker. But, instead, Farley warned the President of the danger of alienating Kelly, who will control a nice block of delegates to the next national convention.

The Brooklyn appointment does not presage the acceptance of Farley's advice in every similar case. Nor does the President's pooh-poohing of the stories about "purging" Farley necessarily take Tom Corcoran completely out of politics—although Corcoran's ability as a practical politician is not rated much higher by quite a few high-ranking New Dealers than it is by Jim Farley.

Unquestionably the President would like to be able to put Farley in full command of his 1940 pre-convention plans. Unquestionably Farley would like to have full command. But Farley no longer looks upon himself as merely a lieutenant of the President. He feels his responsibility as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Different Ideas On Party's Future

NO AMOUNT of salve can conceal the fact that the President and Farley have different ideas about the future of their party. Farley's chief loyalty is to the regular Democratic politicians—a loyalty which serves also his ambition to be on the national ticket in 1940. Roosevelt's chief interest is in obtaining what Robert H. Jackson has neatly called "a third term for Roosevelt's ideas." Farley is frankly against every New Dealer who has been mentioned so far as a possible successor to Roosevelt. He has taken no flat position on the question of a third term for Roosevelt but he has told plenty of people that if the President wants a third term he must say so, the sooner the better, and not later than next January. And he has hinted also that he will appose a third term.

Farley will return from his European jaunt on September 11. He has refused to make any speaking engagements on his return, pleading the need of time to get his bearings. His friends think that he will string along with the President until the end of this year, but that with the advent of the primary and convention season at the beginning of 1940 there will be a showdown—with what result, no one can foresee.

Japan And The Axis

By Frank H. Hedges

Tokyo Decides Against A Military Alliance

Special Correspondent to The Post.

Tokyo.

AFTER SEVERAL MONTHS of conference, debate and study among the highest Government circles, Japan has definitely reached the decision to enter into no military alliance with Germany and Italy which would commit this nation in advance to support these two Fascist semi-allies in the event of a European war.

This is most distinctly a victory for the bloc of democratic nations, although it is a passive rather than an active victory. It is quite possible, despite the virulent ill will entertained against Great Britain in Japan at this moment, that before another 12 months have passed it will have become an active victory, and that the world may witness a decisive movement by the Japanese empire away from the totalitarian states with which she has been playing and back in the direction of the great democracies, notably the United States, the British Empire and France.

Rapprochement with Soviet Russia will be far more difficult if not impossible, for there exists a genuine clash of interests between Tokyo and Moscow of the nature that ultimately breeds war. Likewise, because of the intensive anti-British campaign in Japan, fostered by the army and certain civilian elements, genuine friendship with Britain has become more difficult, and an equally effective pro-British campaign will have to be conducted to win the public away from its present belief that the English are possessed of cloven hooves, horns and a forked tail.

IF THIS expected development takes place, the question arises as to whether the democracies will welcome the return of Japan to their camp. That they will welcome her abandonment of the fascist type of ideology and government is a certainty, but will they desire her as a copartner, or cold-shoulder her into an isolated neutrality? Apprehension that this may take place undoubtedly exists in Japan, and acts as one powerful deterrent to those who favor throwing over their fascist friends in Europe. Japan has no desire to be absolutely friendless.

The attitude of the democracies if and when Japan slowly and delicately approaches them depends in large measure on necessary changes in Japanese policy and methods. There can be no doubt that Japan has sacrificed a substantial part of the former good will and trust of the democracies by her policy and activity first in Manchuria and during the past two years in China proper. By the conclusion of the anti-Comintern pact with Berlin, to which Rome, Hsinking, Budapest and Burgos later adhered, this alienation of the Anglo-Saxon powers and those other nations which think as they do was increased.

If Japan should conclude a fair and just peace with China, should enter into and respect reasonable treaty obligations, should curb the vaulting, limitless ambitions of a section of her people; if Japan should, in a few words, actually practice the Good Neighbor Policy, there is no question but that she would be welcomed with wide-open arms.

The democracies are most anxious to have Japan as friend, rather than foe, but it must be genuine friendship, and that ever involves sacrifices on both sides if it is to endure. In order to gain much, something must be given. Within Japan there is a strong, influential but not yet dominant group who favor this course and who are straining every ability that their empire may adopt it. Time will show whether or not they are to win out. The writer is of the conviction that they will, but it will be a comparatively slow process. Precipitate haste would spell disaster.

IN THE MEANTIME, the saner, more level-headed, moderate and intelligently informed leaders of Japan have chalked up a notable victory over their headstrong and glory-inflamed compatriots. In weighing the advisability of whether or not to enter into the type of military alliance offered the empire by Germany, the Japanese government was confronted with making a decision bound to affect the very destiny of the nation during the life of living men. That the proposed alliance has been rejected is the first great and decisive step taken by Japan along the path that leads to a safe and happy future rather than to tragedy.

When the anti-Comintern pact with Germany was signed on November 25, 1936, Japan made a serious blunder, but one which need not prove fatal. From the commercial, strategic, intellectual and nearly all other viewpoints, Japan's destiny lies in co-operation primarily with the two great Anglo-Saxon powers, with neighboring China and, with the exception of absolutely antagonistic ideology, with Russia, but not with a Communist Russia. The alignment with Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy is unnatural and detrimental. If not voluntarily broken, it will destroy itself in time, to the grave injury of the nations concerned.

Even more unnatural, even more disastrous, would it be for the Tokyo government to agree to aid these two European states, with the might of the Japanese navy and the Japanese army in the event they become embroiled in European warfare. Japan must look at the world from her own base, and that base is in eastern Asia.

Fortunately for the world—more fortunately for Japan herself—this is realized in Japan today and so no military alliance with European powers is to be concluded. There may, and probably will, be some new agreement drawn up and signed by the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis, but it will be innocuous and largely a face-saving device. Japan cannot move too rapidly away from her semi-allies, but a gradual reorientation of policy is imperative to the ultimate benefit and goood of the empire.

BOTH BERLIN and Tokyo announced when the anti-Comintern pact was concluded that there was no secret military alliance accompanying it. Many observers, perhaps some governments, did not believe this statement then, but certainly the attempt to form such an alliance during recent weeks is proof positive of its truth. But when Japan and Germany got down to talking about the actual terms of such an alliance they discovered that their viewpoints were so far apart, that their interests were so conflicting, that their aims, ambitions and even potential dangers were so varying that it was impossible to reconcile them and draw up an alliance beneficial to both governments and of which both approved. Hence the collapse of the attempt.

What Germany and Italy wanted was an alliance aimed at the democratic states of Britain and France, the two potential enemies they fear most. What they desired of Japan was that, in the event of a European war, this nation's naval and military strength should be thrown in the balance on their side. Specifically, as far as can be ascertained, Japan was to obligate herself to send a squadron to the Red Sea and to attack with the bulk of her fleet either India or Australia; if possible, both. In other words, Berlin and Rome wanted Tokyo to take care of everything British and French east of Suez, and perhaps even aid a bit in the Mediterranean Sea itself.

The reaction of the Japanese navy was instantaneous. Not for a single second could the navy think of agreeing to such a program, for it involved leaving Japan's own home waters defenseless, and across the Pacific Ocean lay the United States.

JAPAN DID HAVE, and probably still has, ideas of her own in regard to a military alliance with Germany first and with Italy secondarily, but they were of an alliance wholly in Japan's interests. What Japan would like in this respect is an alliance whereby Germany would guarantee to attack Soviet Russia in the west while Japan fought that country in the east in case there should be a second Russo-Japanese war. In addition, Japan desired that any European allies she might have would aid her in the present struggle in China, with credit, munitions of war and diplomatically at least. Germany and Italy, faced with the dangerous and critical situation in Europe, could no more entertain such a proposition than could Japan agree to their own program. They were not willing even to promise the withdrawal of their Ambassadors from the Chiang regime.

It is only because Japan moves slowly and cautiously, studying every angle of a problem, before striking with lightning-like rapidity, that it required weeks of deliberation on the part of Tokyo before Berlin was informed that Japan could not agree to the military alliance as drawn up in Hitler's capital. In addition, there was the group of powerful Japanese military men and of fire-eating diplomats who actually favored the plan and who were bringing all the pressure they could command to force Tokyo to adopt it. In fact, Japan's Ambassador to Berlin, Gen. Oshima, who is no diplomat but a retired army officer, actually exceeded his authority and pledged Japan to support Berlin in a policy which his home government had not yet approved.

Rain Brings Cheer To New Dust Bowl

feet of timber in the hurricane of last year, has already reached critical proportions. Government agencies referred to by the President—Agriculture, Interior, the CCC and the WPA—indicated yesterday that they were ready with aid when called upon.

President's Message

The four units received a message yesterday from Stephen Early, secretary to the President, saying, "The President has asked me to invite your attention to official and unofficial reports of the damage in the States affected by the present drought—damages to crops and timberlands and to the danger of low water supplies, said to be growing more acutely daily.

"The President asks that these conditions be most thoroughly observed and that the Federal agencies be prepared in the event of an emergency to render all possible assistance."

Officials in the Agriculture Department said the stricken communities might require food, feed for livestock and finance. There are sufficient surpluses to care for human need, it was thought.

Hundreds Fight Fires

The Agriculture Department here said that the scope of the drought included northern Maryland. Parts of New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania have reported increasing water shortages.

In New York, the drought has boosted vegetable prices, and the scorched pastures and feed shortage has brought a demand from New York State's milk producers for increased prices.

2 Testify Bridges Was Enrolled Red

San Francisco, July 27 (AP).—The Government produced two witnesses in the Bridges deportation case today who testified they knew Harry Bridges, waterfront labor leader, was a member of the Communist Party.

John Ryan Davis and Gordon C. Castor, both of Aberdeen, Wash., testified they participated in a Communist "top fraction" meeting at Magnolia Bluff, Seattle, which also was attended by Bridges.

Price Urges Abolition of Fee System

Alexandrians Hear Governor at Outing Of Commerce Group At Fort Belvoir

It is time for Virginia to abolish the fee system, raise the pay of school teachers, establish a nine-months school system and "strictly enforce compulsory education," Gov. James H. Price yesterday told 300 residents of Alexandria, gathered at Fort Belvoir for their second annual Chamber of Commerce outing.

"We must wipe out illiterarcy in the State," the governor insisted, "and bring our educational system up to date." He promised to recommend to the next General Assembly the adoption of a "substantial increase in teachers' salaries."

$720 Urged for State

Recently, in a radio address, the governor called for a minimum State contribution of $720 to the salaries of city and county school teachers, "which amount shall represent a maximum of 80 per cent of the total annual salary, the locality being required to pay at least 20 per cent of the total salary."

The system whereby sheriffs, sergeants and court clerks take their pay in fees from citizens for services rendered is "hopelessly out-moded," Price maintained. "Virginia must follow other States and introduce a salary arrangement," he said.

In addition, he said he would recommend to the General Assembly appointment of an advisory committee "to serve as a voluntary service unit and help the counties solve their governmental problems."

Although the Governor limited himself to State problems, he did not touch upon the revision of the poll tax, which was condemned recently by State Comptroller LeRoy Hodges. He stated later he was studying the problem and intends to recommend the reduction of the tax from $1.50 to $1 and relaxation of time requirements. At present the tax must be paid six months before the general election.

Brehaut Introduces Him

The Governor was introduced by Ray Brehaut, president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, who first thanked Col. T. M. Robins, commander of the Army Post, for use of the Fort.

A motorcade of 70 cars awaited the Governor at 5 p. m. at the entrance to the Fort and followed him and a State police motorcycle escort to the parade grounds, where a salute of 19 guns greeted him.

The Governor, Brehaut, Col Robins, Maj. H. B. Cole, Lieut. Col. R. C. Crawford and National Guard Capt. Cameron Roberts, the Governor's aide, inspected the seven companies of the Fifth Regiment. A chicken dinner, picnic style, followed.

Clyde B. Lanham, Alexandria attorney, was acquitted by a court of three judges in Corporation Court yesterday of any unprofessional conduct, which had been alleged in a rule against Lanham.

The decision, which was unanimous, was handed down during the progress of the hearing, while Lanham was on the stand. Judge Frederick W. Coleman, of Fredericksburg, in dismissing the charge, said if any error was committed it was of judgment without corrupt intent. The case hinged around a certificate of title and there was no money involved. Charles Henry Smith, of Alexandria, represented Lanham, and the prosecution was by Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan.

The three judges were designated by the State Supreme Court of Appeals and were Judge Coleman, Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of Arlington, and Judge William P. Woolls, of Alexandria.

Mr. Norris is in charge of the singing committee and is assisted by Leslie Harris and Forest Haden, of the local church.

The camp meeting is presided over by the Rev. J. M. Jennings, a former pastor of the Alexandria church.

Arlington County Employes Are Allowed Local Politics

Civil Service Chief Bars Only General Partisan Activity; New League to Back Candidates on Merit

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon Va. Tel OXford 0509.

Arlington County employes may engage in county politics under the executive order of May 20, 1931, provided they do not indulge in "general partisan activity," H. B. Mitchell, president of the Civil Service Commission, said yesterday in a letter to Dr. Victor Meyers, chairman of the Home Government League. Dr. Meyers said organization of the league would be completed next week.

The organization, he pointed out, will support candidates for local offices on merit without regard to politics.

A temporary organization has been functioning for the past month while its leaders sought to determine if Federal Government employes could take part in county politics without violation of any regulation.

Home Government League is similar to the Better Government League organized in 1931. The new group, it was stated, has no affiliation with any existing civic organization, althouh many civic leaders have expressed that interest. A. D. Adams is acting temporary secretary.

Sewer Work to Start

Arlington—Proceeding with plans to carry out provisions of this year's budget for installation of storm sewers, the engineering department has announced plans are being prepared for work to start with county forces at Key boulevard and Hancock street; sections in vicinity of North Fourth and North Fillmore street and Seventeeth street and North Utah street. Portions of work on North Utah street are now under way.

Plans also are being prepared to lay sidewalks and install curbs and gutters in many sections.

Va. Roads Board Lets 4 Contracts, Rejects 2 Bids

Richmond, Va., July 27 (AP).—The State Highway Commission awarded four contracts totaling nearly $500,000 for road construction today and called for additional bids August 10 on six other projects.

The Commission rejected low bids received July 20 on construction of a bridge and approaches at the Blackwater River at South Quay on Route 189 and on 9.5 miles of soil roadway on route 642 in Fluvanna and Albermarle counties near Simeon. The route 189 project was immediately readvertised. The contracts awarded included:

Widening of 12.15 miles of Route 1 in Dinwiddie County near Nottoway River, West Construction Co., Petersburg, $378,835.

Bridge over Hazel River, Culpeper County, on Route 3, 8 miles from Culpeper, R. W. Moore, Staunton, $9,450.

Bids were asked on the following:

Route 460, Appomattox County, 1.1 miles of water-bound macadam near Appomattox Courthouse.

Route 50, Frederick County, 0.7 mile of grading and draining near the West Virginia line.

Route 42, Bath County, 394-foot bridge at the Cow Pasture River.

Route 189, Southampton and Nansemond counties, bridge over Blackwater River at South Quay.

Route 42, Craig County, 1.2 miles of macadam west of New Castle.

Route 151, Nelson County, overpass and approaches at C. & O. Railroad in Afton.

6 Finalists Named To Make Model of Jefferson Statue

Names of six finalists were announced yesterday in the competition to select a sculptor for the statue of Thomas Jefferson to be installed in the Thomas Jefferson Memorial at the Tidal Basin.

They are Rudolf Evans, Raous Josset, Lee Lawrie, Maurice Sterne, Sidney Waugh and A. A. Weinman, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission announced.

Each has until December 31 to prepare a model for the monument, for which each will receive $1,000.

Among Evans' works are statues of Robert E. Lee in the Capitol at Richmond and of William Jennings Bryan at the United States Capitol. Josset is represented in Chicago by the Aviators Memorial in Marquette Park. Lawrie did the reliefs for the National Academy of Sciences Building here.

Sterne's works include the Rogers-Kennedy Memorial at Worcester, Mass. Waugh executed the pediment group and mail carrier figure for the new Postoffice Department Building. Weinman is noted for his sculpture in the Supreme Court and at the Archives Building.

Mrs. Ford died at her home Wednesday. She was the widow of James M. Ford, former Washington restaurant owner. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. May Ford Kelley, of 7907 Falkland drive, Silver Spring; a sister, Mrs. A. Van Ness, of Washington; five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Paul Sleman, of Chevy Chase, Md., Montgomery County Republican leader for many years, left his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Helen Small Sleman and named her executrix, it was revealed yesterday in his will.

The instrument, filed for probate in the orphans court at Rockville, did not indicate the value of his estate. It was dated March 23, 1915.

Sleman was a prominent attorney and chairman of the Republican State central committee.

Hamburg, Pa., July 27 (AP).—Carol Woodman, 20, disappearing step-daughter of Dr. James Rowland Angell, Yale University president emeritus, was found today "vacationing" in a cabin at an isolated tourist camp. Ten days ago she left a waitress' job in an inn at nearby Krumsville.

Arlington Safety Group Asks Speed Limit Be Lowered

Alarmed over accidents on Lee boulevard between Courthouse road and Glebe road, the Arlington County Safety Council yesterday went on record favoring some change in the present State speed limit of 55 miles an hour. The council voted to support legislation at the next session of the General Assembly to lower the limit.

Austin J. Matthews, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, offered the council assistance of his organization in connection with the work already started by W. A. Richardson, director of playgrounds, in organizing bicycle clubs for children in the county.

The council requested Richardson to continue his work in the county schools and said it hoped to take advantage of any help from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and any other organization interested in prevention of accidents.

Commission Plans Prince Georges Park

Anacostia Valley Land Being Bought With $66,000 Fund Provided by U. S.

With $66,000 of Federal funds, the Maryland Park and Planning Commission yesterday was concluding negotiations to buy the first park lands in Prince Georges county.

T. Howard Duckett, Park and Planning official, said the Federal Government had made available $66,000 of $300,000 voted by Congress recently under provisions of the Capper-Crampton Act. Negotiations were being concluded, he stated, with property owners in the Anacostia River Valley from Kenilworth to Hyattsville.

Two-thirds of the Federal money is a loan, made without interest for eight years, and the remainder is an outright grant. A park tax of 4½ cents on each $100 of property evaluation is expected to raise enough money to amortize the loan.

Actual park development, it is understood, must await action of the Engineer's Office of the War Department on proposed plans for a flood-control program in the river valley. It is planned to co-ordinate the two projects if flood cotnrol is approved.

Prince Georges County is considerably behind Montgomery in the acquisition of park lands under the Capper-Crampton act. Congress recently approved a $200,000 appropriation to Montgomery, which will bring the total Federal funds for the county park lands to $1,000,000.

Adolescent Love Smites Andy in New Hardy Film

"Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever" Outranks Predecessors in the Same Series; Ina Ray Hutton to Play on the Potomac

"ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen play by Kay Van Ripper, featuring Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone and Fay Holden, with Cecilia Parker, Ann Rutherford, Sara Haden, Helen Gilbert, Terry Kilburn, John T. Murray, George Breakston, Charles Peck, Sidney Miller, Addison Richards, Olaf Hytten, Erville Alderson and Robert Kent. Directed by Woody S. Van Dyke 2d. Previewed Tuesday, July 25. At Loew's Palace Theater.

AS HAS BEEN INTIMATED here before, there is an implication of laziness in the title of "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever" that is completely belied by the zestful content of the picture. It is the most up-and-coming item to date on the list of seven screen plays founded upon the diverting domestic adventures of Judge Hardy and his largely unpredictable family. Instead of being based on the usual interpretation of "spring fever," this film is amusingly predicated upon the romantic assumption that "In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

BELL

Only in Andy Hardy's case they didn't turn so lightly. The adolescent adoration of a youth for his dramatic teacher, several years his senior, was so virulent that his mother's best cooking held no interest for him. Polly Benedict—being chiefly courted by a young visiting lieutenant—became a matter of secondary consideration and only the moon, the stars and love mattered. When Rose Meredith's fiance put in his appearance, the night of the school play, Andy's castle of dreams crashed about his head and only the persuasiveness of the well-balanced woman he wanted to marry restored him finally to the waiting Polly.

This central theme of the play has been tricked out with much humor, effective production, Woody Van Dyke's expert direction and practically flawless work on the part of every member of the cast. While the picture is preponderantly Mickey Rooney's, there are other movements of plot that afford ample opportunities for Judge Hardy to get himself into the familiar financial difficulties, Mrs. Hardy to worry about her children and Ann Rutherford to be appropriately disturbed by Andy's strange behavior.

This strange behavior is precipitated by Andy's discovery that, for the moment, at least, he is running second to the trim young lieutenant who seems to be courting Polly with disconcerting success. It is aggravated when Rose Meredith comes to town to stage the school commencement play.

Completely fascinated by this charming new teacher, Andy buckles down to writing the play finally chosen to be produced. He also essays the stellar role, with the piqued Polly as leading woman. The play is a slightly bizarre work, transplanting the story of "Romeo and Juliet" to the South Seas and supplanting the Montagues and Capulets with the United States Navy and a colony of beautiful Polynesians.

Amusing Play Within Play

It is in the preparation and enactment of this volcanic drama that most of the film's humor resides. Andy's woong of Miss Meredith is a very serious business, highly amusing to everyone but Andy, Rose and Judge Hardy. They take it pretty seriously and thus convert "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever" into by far the most substantial bit of entertaining story-telling the Hardy series has produced.

Mickey Rooney proves himself a young actor of considerable dramatic stature in this one. He loves Rose Meredith until it hurts and conveys that impression unmistakably to the audience. In the role of Rose, Helen Gilbert, discovered playing a cello in the M-G-M recording orchestra, does a poised and utterly charming piece of work in her first assignment before the cameras. Miss Gilbert seems to have a brilliant future before her. Lewis S. Stone, as Judge Hardy, who escapes financial disaster by another eyelash; Fay Holden, as Mrs. Hardy; Sara Haden, Ann Rutherford, Cecilia Parker—with rather less to do than usual—and Terry Kilburn who has himself a terrific time with the "prop" moon, all contribute in generous measure to the rounded excellence of an unusually engaging film play.

Foremost among the short-reel subjects at the Palace this week is "Prophet Without Honor," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer miniature, starring Tom Neal, recently seen in the leading male role in the same company's feature production of "They All Come Out." Pete Smith also enlivens the bill with his salty humor and the "News of the Day" further augments a bill that should appeal equally to all ages, all classes and all shades of amusement taste.

It will be of importance to those interested in the latest quirks in music and rhythm—plus a dynamic personality and some agile dancing—to know that the "blond" bombshell," Ina Ray Hutton and her orchestra will be aboard the S. S. Potomac for two cruises tomorrow night. The first will leave the wharf at 8:45 p. m., the second at 12:30 a. m. Miss Hutton and her instrumentalists already are too well known to Washington to need any "sales talk" beyond the mere statement that they are going to tootle on the S. S. and river Potomac for these two trips only. The boat should sell out.

Hilarious Complications Depict Surprises of Bogus Motherhood

"BACHELOR MOTHER," RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Felix Jackson, adapted to the screen by Norman Krasna, costarring Ginger Rogers and David Niven, with Charles Coburn, Frank Albertson, E. E. Clive, Ernest Truex, Elbert Coplen, jr., Ferike Boros, Leonard Penn, Paul Stanton, Gerald Oliver-Smith, Leona Roberts, Dennis Moore, Jung Wilkins, Frank M. Thomas, Edna Holland and "Donald." Directed by Garson Kanin. Reviewed Thursday evening. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

By Nelson B. Bell

Never rescue a crying baby from the doorstep of a foundling's home, unless you wish to marry a millionaire!

This seems to be the "moral" of "Bachelor Mother," RKO-Radio's new comedy for Ginger Rogers and David Niven, which opened last evening on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater to the tune of hilarious and sustained laughter. For that is the way the fable turns out.

It is not a "big" picture that Director Garson Kanin has contrived from Norman Krasna's script, but it is a thoroughly businesslike one that sticks to the main issue and tells its story with directness, "punch" and cumulative fun. There is no lost motion anywhere along the way and frequently laughs that spring from deep down in the torso are fashioned from the simplest of incidents.

Fired and Hired

But to begin at the beginning. Polly Parrish is a temporary, Christmas-rush clerk in the flourishing department store of J. B. Merlin & Co., who gets her "services no longer required" notice as a Christmas Eve memento from the firm. On her way to lunch she discovers a woman leaving a snugly blanketed parcel on the steps of the orphanage and reaches the squirming bundle just in time to be ushered into the refuge as its mother. Her protestations that she knows nothing of the parentage of the baby fall on exceedingly deaf ears. The orphanage people have heard all that before. In fact, it is practically a fixed routine on the part of all delinquent parents, caught red-handed. The superintendent will see to it that her employers hear of this. And does. So as a second Christmas present Polly is reinstated in her job at a $5 raise in order that she may care for her infant. The Merlins are a philanthropic lot.

Intent on ridding herself of the child, of whose forebears she knows nothing, Polly drops the kid off at the Merlin residence, en route to a jitterbug contest with Freddie Miller, a clerk in the stock room at the store. Slightly dissatisfied with this arrangement, David Merlin, his father's junior partner—very junior—sets out to overtake the fleeing pair. That is where he made his mistake.

The situations that follow in a quick cascade involve the entire Merlin menage, Polly's roominghouse keeper and her son, the Merlin Department Store almost en toto and a New Year's Eve celebration that is a honey. The outcome is not hard to guess. Polly falls in love with her counterfeit baby, the younger Merlin falls in love with them both, Merlin, pere, doesn't care who is the youngster's father as long as he is its grandfather—and there you are.

Situations With Some Ginger

Ginger Rogers, in the role of Polly, here perpetuates the impression created in the seance scenes of "Carefree" that she is an uncommonly competent comedienne. She plays naturally, seriously and without mannerism, but manages to pack a tremendous amount of meaning into the tilt of an eyebrow or the twist of her lips. The comedy in the part goes beyond that. The lines are brittle and amusing almost from the start of the film. David Niven, in the co-stellar role of David Merlin, affords quite as much fun as Miss Rogers.

Charles Coburn, as the pompous store owner, and Frank Albertson, as the flip stock clerk, lead the supporting cast with the finesse that comes from long experience. E. E. Clive, the Merlin butler; Ferike Boros, as Mrs. Weiss, the landlady; Ernest Truex, as one of those inexplicable orphanage functionaries, and Leonard Penn, roped in as one of Polly's bogus husbands, complete the major group that motivate the action and keep it in high gear.

Donald Gets a Gift

"Swingust," which seems to be a bit on the side of glorification of the Arthur Murray dancing classes, deals with group dancing in the old days of classic measures and in the present era of "swingusts," instead of minuets. The setting is a night club. Also among the supplementaries is "Donald Penguin," one of Walt Disney's Technicolor conceits.

The Pathe News completes a bill that was made to order for those in search of a brief period of surrender to almost continuous mirth instead of mercury.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., July 27.—No wonder Charles Laughton chose Maureen O'Hara out of a dozen tests to play in his British picture, "Jamaica Inn," and then brought her to America for lead in "The Hunchback." She's one of the most refreshing personalities I've met up with in a long time, pretty, and as undiplomatic as a boy. She is one of six children, her oldest sister is in a nunnery and her oldest brother will be a priest. Mama O'Hara was one of the Abbey players.

HOPPER

And Maureen says: "Me brother's as handsome as the devil, with Mummsie's acting blood in him. He'll need it, a priest has to act. 'Twas Mummsie who got me into the Abbey apprentice school, where my screen test was made, sent to England, and Mr. Laughton saw it and signed me."

She's disappointed at R. K. O. studio. They won't let her swim in the surf, ride (because she takes wild hunters over the bumps and gets a few herself), or wash her hair. Gypsies shouldn't be clean. She's a riot—you'll love her.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and daughter were Edith Hughes' guests at Helen Hayes' opening. That sweet Helen put seats in the orchestra pit so Mrs. Hughes could see. She's having eye trouble.

The studios clamor for drawing names, yet Dick Powell is still loafing as far as pictures are concerned. So he and Joan are off on another fishing trip.

While Otto Brower was shooting "Stanley and Livingstone" in Africa, daughter Barbara was shooting at the heart of Stanley Brown. They'll marry in the Brower garden, July 30.

I must say for England, they wrap the history of their country in a cloud of glory for the screen and still stray very little from authenticity.

Darryl Zanuck signed Gene Autry to clean up the small towns. Jane Withers will do likewise with cities. And the film "Jubilo" should help pay for some more epics.

You'd never recognize Julie Hayden. No powder, lipstick, hair dangling, more mousey than ever. Her constant companion is George G. Nathan. Maybe art's like that!

With all the contention going on, you might call Hollywood "The Cross Words of the World."

Franchot Tone will do two pictures here, then go back to Broadway for a new play. He spent the day after his arrival with Joan Crawford, who had completely filled his apartment with flowers the day he landed.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

By International News Service

Hollywood, July 27.—As you read this, a fast cable is whizzing to Oslo, Norway, bidding Sonja Henie to be back in Hollywood no later than September 1 to start "Everything Happens at Night." When the little Henie left, she expected a much longer vacation at home than this. But the truth is that "Second Fiddle" the first picture the skating queen made without depending on her figure eights, is such a smash, Twentieth Century-Fox is anxious to get her started on another romance.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Until the box office reports started rolling in, it was a toss-up whether the studio had been wise in limiting Sonja's ice activities. But Darryl Zanuck always claimed she was a good little actress—and John Public backed him up. "Everything Happens at Night," authored by Art Arthur and Robert Harari is not to be confused with the S. S. Van Dine who-dunit, "Shadow on the Snow." The mystery opus will be temporarily shelved, while Sonja makes "Everything" with Harry Joe Brown producing.

Maybe I shouldn't tell it, but, being a woman, I just have to give my readers this bit of inside information. Whom do you think Charlie Chaplin is considering for the role of the other dictator in his comedy? Jack Oakie, no less. The whole thing is, of course, a burlesque and, since Charlie is not openly referring to Herr Hitler or Mussolini in his play, he is making no effort to sign an actor who in any way resembles either dictators. So far, only Paulette Goddard and Henry Daniell have been signed. Ten important characters remain to be chosen. But that's typical of my old friend Charlie, who always takes his time in making a picture.

No baby was ever ushered into the world with more attendant glamour than Walter Richard Lang, jr., the new son of Madalynne and Walter Lang. Waiting in an adjoining room in the Good Samaritan Hospital with the anxious papa, were Carole Lombard and Clark Gable. Early in the evening Hedy Lamarr stopped by. Hedy was at the hospital with her husband, Gene Markey, who is threatened with pneumonia. Carole, who is Fieldsie's closest friend, had been making tests all day for "Vigil in the Night," in which she plays a nurse. She said she was sorry she hadn't worn her nurse's costume. But even without it, Dr. Norman Williams permitted her to remain right by Fieldsie's side until 3:26 a. m., when the young man made his appearance, weighing 6 pounds 10 ounces. Had a small bet with Clark that it would be a boy and this is just to remind him.

I listened with interest to a friend who had seen Gregory La Cava's "Fifth Avenue Girl" in advance. He tells me that Tim Holt, Jack's son, will be the most talked of boy in the movies after this comedy is given a public showing. Gregory, according to my sleuth, has a charming picture, with Ginger Rogers just as good as she was in "Bachelor Mother." Nice that Tim, who is such a swell kid, has this chance, for all any actor ever needs is one good picture to start him up the ladder to permanent fame. And maybe this is it for young Tim, who is shortly to become a father.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Jim Farley flies in Monday for a visit with Corinne Griffith and George Marshall. The Marshalls are living at Malibu and Mrs. F. will spend a few weeks here while her politically minded husband is in Europe; Lynn Bari's honeymoon with Walter Kane, planned for next week, will be postponed again in favor of an appendicitis operation; Barbara Brewster and Bob Howard, related to Seabiscuit's family, whiling away the hours at the La Maze; Jerry Wald's ex-wife, Eleanor Rudolph, today became the bride of Aaron Rosenberg, one-time all-American football hero; Charlie Murray, just back from Egypt, celebrated his return by taking his bride of thirty years to Klapsie Maxie's.

Constance Bennett is the house guest of Elsa Maxwell in Cannes. Elsa telephoned to Darryl Zanuck from Cannes to inquire about her movie debut in "Hotel for Women"; Nils Asther, back in Hollywood after four years' absence in Europe at Victor Hugo's with Charles Bennett; Venita Varden and Peggy Fears at the Ball, highly amused over Brux Fletcher's new songs; Bradford Ropes and Queenie Smith, who used to be a twosome, that way again; Billie Seward and Nino Martini La Congoing; Claire Windsor stepping out with Melville Wakeman, who got himself in the newspapers when he was jilted by a New York society girl.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Luscious Peach Recipes Lead All Entries in Week's Contest

Mrs. Lawlor Wins First Prize Award

Delicious Dessert Will Be Remembered By All Who Eat It

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

NO MATTER if the luscious peach had not been glorified from the time it was originally introduced by the Romans into Italy from Persia, it would be in the orchid class now, after the hundreds of glorious recipes submitted in The Post recipe contest this week. For special occasions which dot the calendar—from the most formal entertainment to the casual meal for the family—there are arresting suggestions for using the peach to provide the crowning touch for a meal.

Musical Note

Mrs. Lucille Lawlor, 1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest, sings a song of the peach, and wins the first award for her "Peach Bars With Hot Lyric Sauce." This delicious dessert will be remembered like a melody that lingers on. Even if it is as James Whitcomb Riley said, "the ripest peach hangs highest," you will want to get it to make this tempting dessert.

Mrs. Lawlor

Peach Bars With Lyric Sauce

Thoroughly wash 6 large freestone peaches (do not peel). Cut in halves and remove stones. Scoop out the centers, leaving enough of the peach meat and peeling to form a strong cup. Reduce 12 macaroons to crumbs, crush scooped-out peach meat and mix well. Fill peach cups with the mixture and top with small cubes of butter, using ⅛ pound. Place on well-buttered pan and bake 20 minutes. Serve on dessert plates while hot. In a separate container pass Hot Lyric Sauce, to be poured over the peach bars in quantities pleasing to individual tastes. To make the sauce, bring one No. 2 can apricots and 2 cups of sugar to a slow boil. Continue boiling 5 to 7 minutes. Remove and press through a colander or sieve and carefully mix ½ cup of brandy into the mixture. Serve immediately.

Midsummer Dream

Jean MacC. Gannon, 120 South Eleventh street, Newark, N. J., wins the second prize of $2 with her recipe, midsummer tarts. Miss Gannon writes, "I buy The Post often and always on food page days. I like it better than the Jersey and New York City ones. I was reared in Washington, lived in Georgetown and suppose I will always be a D. C. resident at heart. Peaches are my favorite fruit and we revel in them all season. The midsummer tarts are a grand company dessert—a bit of work, but well worth the trouble."

Midsummer Tarts

Sift 2 cups flour and ½ cup sugar. Cut in 2-3 cup creamed butter to make consistency of corn meal. Gradually blend in the egg, mixing lightly. Press together, wrap in waxed paper and chill. Roll to ¼-inch thickness. It is very fragile, so handle with care. Line 16 muffin or tartlet pans. Chill 1 hour. Bake in a very hot oven, 8 to 10 minutes.

Tart filling—Beat 5 egg yolks. Add ¼ cup sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Beat until thick and lemon colored. Cook 3 to 4 minutes in a double boiler, stirring constantly. Cool and place equal amounts in tartlet shells. Lay sliced peaches (about 10 ripe, fine peaches) on this. Then put on the cherry glaze.

Cherry glaze—Use 1 cup sugar. Sprinkle enough of the sugar over 2 cups of large pitted cherries to cover them and let stand 1 hour. Pour ¼ cup water over fruit and drain off the juice. Add remaining sugar and stir until dissolved. Soak 1 tablespoon gelatine in remaining water until softened. Add to heated sirup. Stir until dissolved. Cool. Place cherries over filling in tarts. Carefully spoon thickened glaze over them. Serve immediately. Makes 16 tarts.

Scotch Allure

The peach blossoms with new flavor by its odd combination with sour cream, when prepared according to the recipe submittted by one of our Post food readers from the deep South. Miss A. G. Collens, Almadora Apartments, Memphis, Tenn., wins a $1 award with her use of peaches. It is a refreshing departure in peach preparation.

Butterscotch Peaches

Bring 2 cups sugar, 4 cups water and the grated rind of ½ lemon and 1 orange to the boiling point. Poach 6 large, perfect peaches until tender. Place in a baking dish. Strain the liquid, combine it with ¾ cup sour cream and 1 tablespoon flour. Bake about 10 to 15 minutes, covered. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla, sprinkle with sugar and place under the broiler flame for 1 minute.

Peachy Jack-o'Lantern

Mrs. Ebel

Mrs. Frank D. Ebel, the Brawner Apartments, Alexandria, Va., remembers the delight of children for foods that they can help prepare, as well as eat. To Mrs. Ebel goes a $1 prize for her teen-age food thought, expressed with peaches and other healthful foods. She writes as follows: "This is a simple littie salad that youngsters will love to make as well as to eat—a grinning jack-o-'lantern face topped by carrot curls. Naturally, it is scarcely appropriate for adult guests, but for children's parties, it's loads of fun for them."

Carrot-Top Salad

On a salad plate put curly-edged lettuce leaf. On lettuce place a peach half, rounded side up. Use 3 raisins for eyes and nose, a strip of pimiento for a smiling mouth. Sprinkle grated carrot around the "forehead" for hair. Tuck a dot of mayonnaise under the "chin" and 2 strips of pimiento crossed to form a bow. And there is the cheerful face, framed by its frilly lettuce "bonnet" ready to be devoured with enthusiastic "ums" and "ahs."

The golden color and rich flavor of peaches make them a general favorite. Peaches fresh from the basket as shown above may be the starting point for many refreshing foods. Serve them in different guises—peach pie, cobblers, shortcakes. Canned peaches, peach preserves, pickled ones, and jams and butters are all delightful ways to present them

Peach Glamour

Mrs. Margaret Beckett, 2212 Fairlawn avenue, Washington, D. C., wins $1 with her recipe which combines two general favorites—peaches and ice cream. For a hot day the very name of her creation—Peach Snowbank Pie—would send one's temperature down. This is a dessert that will not play second fiddle for those who crave peaches with their ice cream.

Mrs. Beckett

Peach Snowbank Pie

Brunswick Stew Recipe in Rhyme

The recipe for Brunswick stew was taken from a very old cookbook, and contains all the necessary instructions to make a delicious dish.

First, catch your chickens, clean and cut them;
And in an iron pot you put them;
And water nearly to the top,
And in it salt and pepper drop;
Boil slowly, your tomatoes peel;
Put in a shin or so of veal;
And for flavor, bear in mind,
A chuck of middling with the rind;
Next, some onions you throw in,
The young and tender skin,
And butter beans do not forget
And what is more important yet,
The corn; but do not be too fast,
This you must grate and add it
last;
For better than the flour you'll find it'll do
To give a thickness to the stew;
Some lemon peel cut very thin
May now be added and stirred in,
And e'e it is taken from the fire,
Give it a dash of Worcestershire;
And soon you'll hear its praises ring,
This is a dish fit for a king!

Grape Juice Souffle Recipe Is Given

Strike a happy note on scorching days by serving grape juice tartness in a new way. Grape juice used to make a souffle is a summer dessert both refreshing and of marvelous color.

Grape Juice Souffle

Soften 1 envelope gelatin in ½ cup cold grape juice. Add ¼ cup sugar and ¼ cup hot grape juice and stir until dissolved. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Half fill individual serving glasses with this mixture. To remaining grape mixture add whipped cream and fill glasses. Garnish with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, or with ripe grapes.

Raisin Sauce Good on Tongue

An unusual dish—delicious and inexpensive—is beef tongue with raisin sauce. Noodles with buttered crumbs or a noodle ring filled with fresh peas is a splendid combination to serve with tongue.

Simmer in boiling water to cover for about 3 hours the tongue, 1 medium-sized onion, 2 ribs of celery, a few sprigs of celery and 1 teaspoon salt. Peppercorns may be added if desired. Drain when tender and skin the tongue. Place the tongue where it will remain hot.

Make a sauce by combining 1 cup of vinegar, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 lemon sliced thin and two dozen whole cloves. If a thicker sauce is desired 1½ tablespoons flour may be used.

Mushroom Suggestions

Add canned mushrooms, chopped, to left-over mashed potatoes, shape into patties and fry.

Put a thick slice of canned tongue into a baking dish, cover with sliced canned mushrooms and bake in moderate over (350 degrees F.) until brown. Try baking hamburger steak that way, too.

Add button mushrooms in French dressing made with lemon juice; add them to your recipe for chicken salad. Or chill a can of consomme madriiene and add marinated mushrooms, just before serving.

Bread Pudding Is All In the Way It's Made

Bread pudding, along with hash and stew, at times seems common food, but it is all in the way you make it. Bread pudding, properly made, is a tender, delicate custard with only a minimum of crispy bread topping. Chocolate, coconut, spice, date and caramel bread pudding are variations of the old-fashioned kind we all have eaten as children.

Chocolate Bread Pudding

Heat 1 square crocolate and 2 cups milk in top of double boiler, beating with rotary beater until blended. Arrange 1 cup bread cubes in oiled baking dish. Dot with butter. Add 1-3 cup sugar and salt to 2 eggs, beaten slightly. Add a small amount of the chocolate mixture and stir until smooth. Add the remaining chocolate mixture and 1 teaspoon vanilla and blend. Pour over bread cubes. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 40 to 50 minutes, or until firm. Serves 4.

Individual Beef Hash Out of Leftovers

There is no set rule about making hash. In fact, it makes an immense appeal to the imagination. Cooks lacking that nerve-racking quality will find the following recipe a very good way of using leftover potatoes and meat.

Combine 1 cup chopped cooked beef, 1 cup chopped cooked potatoes, one medium sized onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup beef broth or milk and 1 teaspoon chopped celery. Pack firmly in well buttered muffin tins, about two-thirds full. Bake in oven at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove from oven, break an egg on top of each hash. Return to the oven for 10 minutes until eggs are set. Unmold and serve on hot platter.

Frills on Jelly Shelf Add to Food Appeal

Gay Decorations Raise Housewife's Handiwork to Art

NOTHING sets a lady up half so high as achieving a grand array of home-made jellies and preserves for her pantry shelf. Just listen to any homemaker who has spent a morning canning and does she rave about the color or the taste of her efforts? She dos not! She straightway tells you that she did 14 glasses of quince jelly and 11 of grape, so it's very easy to see that she has impressd herself by the simple method of counting jars!

In The Shade.

Now we're not such a bad preserver and jelly maker in our own right ad we claim that pride in the preserve shelf shold be not only numerical but decorative as well. We have a friend who puts us in the shade about that. She dresses up her jelly and preserve glasses by frilling them with colored cellophane in place of plain old wax paper—in colors contrasting with the color of the jelly, or preserve; bright green on the deep red of current or grape jelly, blue on the peach jam and the orange marmalade. And then she does a cut-out job on the seed catalogue, pasting pictures of luscious peaches on the glasses containing peach jam, pictures of giant strawberries on the strawberry jam, ripe tomatoes on the tomato juice, cucumbers on the pickle jars. The effect is gay as can be and makes each jar more exciting. Besides it's nice to have the glasses all perked up when she wants to give a visitor a little parting gift.

There are all sorts of bright things you can do with the shelves themselves. The rich tones of preserves and jellies always look twice as luscious against pastel shelves—but just imagine the deep red of grape jelly against a pale dusty background, or picture your peaches against a pale sunny yellow, or your marmalade against light green.

Slick as a Whistle.

If neatness is your delight and you don't like to examine a shelf of of jellies to find just the flavor you are seeking, why not use the same type of shelf-markers that your grocer does. These little metal slots in which you slip marked cards can be bought in any hardware store and attached to the edge of your preserve shelf and will give you a finer sense of efficiency, not to mention making the preserves easier to identify. To simplify matters still further, you might have a preserve shelf built in small, quite modern sections and assign one type of jelly or jam to each section.

Now don't accuse us of making too much to-do over something that isn't of world-shaking importance. We don't claim that it is. But such gracious gestures are what makes the difference between the art and the drudgery of housekeeping.

Many Household Uses Found for Artificial Rubber

NEW AND IMPORTANT advances in man-made rubberlike material have extended into the household field. Chemists have long been working to eliminate the impurities which have caused an unpleasant odor, and have now succeeded in producing an odorless product. As a result of this achievement the material has been adopted by manufacturers of articles for the home and is increasing the durability and usefulness of such items as household gloves, dish scrapers, dish drainers, drainboard mats, sink strainers, electric heating pads and many other household products.

Such products look and use like rubber but have superior resistance to deterioration. This makes them adaptable for services where rubber products would not be suitable. They resist such deteriorating influences as sunlight and heat, and contact with oils, fats, grease, gasoline and vegetable oils.

Test of gloves made of this material prove that contact with commonly used cleaning fluids does not cause swelling which destroys the fit or bring about deterioration which makes the gloves tear easily. Dish scrapers made of this material immersed in fats for four days show no signs of swelling, while a rubber scraper exposed resulted in distorted edges. A complete set of sink utensils, including sink strainer and drain-board mat, is said to be non-tarnishing—that is, non-staining to articles such as silver which might be placed on them.

Sour Cream Gives Familiar Dishes an Exotic Fillip

Gingerbread, Cauliflower and Peas, Salmon And Chocolate Cake Are Among Foods Which Acid Dairy Product Enlivens

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor

SUMMERTIME menus can blossom with new flavor when an exotic addition, such as sour cream is made to foods. "Change is the sauce that sharpens the appetite," words spoken long ago, are the watchword of many a wise menu planner of today. To home-makers faced with the eternal question of what to serve, new recipes featuring the familiar in tempting dishes are welcome news. When sour cream is mentioned many people think only of the cream in their home that becomes sour by accident. Dairy-made sour cream is quite different in that it is a uniform product, made under controlled conditions, and thus its use can be more easily directed and better results insured. Learn its many uses to bring new zest to old recipes.

Martha Ellyn

Hasen pfeffer and sour cream custard pie are old Dutch dishes made with sour cream that are general favorites. Southern cookery, so famous for its griddle cakes and flapjacks, hot breads and plantation cream cookies, uses sour cream as the ingredient to make its superb foods. In present day recipes, originating in the great test laboratories, there is a fast growing use of sour cream as an ingredient. The following recipes using sour cream are especially palatable foods.

Sour Cream Gingerbread

Mix and sift 1 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon ginger, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ teaspoon cloves. Heat 2-3 cup thick sour cream, remove from the heat, add 3 tablespoons butter and stir until melted. Add 1-3 cup molasses and pour into 1 well beaten egg, gradually, while stirring constantly. Add this mixture to the dry ingredients and stir in quickly. (Mix just enough to make the batter smooth). Pour into a buttered 8-inch square pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 25 to 30 minutes, or until done. Serves 6.

Cauliflower and Peas

A vegetable dish as attractive as it is delicious is made with the combination of cauliflower, peas and sour cream. This is excellent with baked ham.

Remove the tough outside leaves and stalk from 1 medium sized cauliflower and soak, head down, in cold, salted water for about 20 minutes. Break into flowerets, place in a large amount of boiling salted water and cook uncovered until tender. Drain and place in serving dish. Drain 2½ cups of fresh cooked or canned peas and heat with 1 cup thick sour cream, ¼ teaspoon salt and few grains of pepper. Pour over the cauliflower and sprinkle with paprika. Serves 6.

Salmon Baked in Sour Cream

Fish and acid accompaniments are famous food amnities. The blandness of fish and the spice of sour cream give a finishing touch acclaimed by the best food fashion.

Wipe 3 to 4 pounds of salmon with damp cloth and arrange in a baking dish, with skin side down. Mix the juice of 1 lemon and 2 tablespoons grated onions. Spread over the fish. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Carefully pour over the fish 1 cup sour cream and bake. If a large whole piece of salmon is used, bake 45 minutes to 1 hour. Serve garnished with watercress.

Sour Cream Chocolate Cake

A chocolate cake is especially welcome right now, since it is made with sour cream. Ice it with a chocolate butter frosting, and it is ready to serve with the chilled fruits of the season as a family dessert or for refreshments when you entertain.

Combine 1 cup thick sour cream, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons vinegar and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Beat thoroughly. Sift 2 cups soft wheat flour, 2-3 cup cocoa, 1 teaspoon soda, and 1 teaspoon baking powder together. Combine the two mixtures. Add 1 cup boiling water gradually. Pour into 2 greased, paper-lined 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Cool. Frost with chocolate butter frosting and decorate with whole nut meats.

It Is Fish Day Any Old Day for Jimmy Stewart

Fish is the favorite food of Jimmy Stewart, who was a guest recently at the Hay - Adams House while he was in Washington being filmed for his next picture, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." When Chef Meissner asked Mr. Stewart for his favorite dish, Jimmy answered, "Don't laugh, but it's fish. I like it so well that I don't wait for Fridays to order sea food. Any day in the week is fish day for me. Especially do I like filet of sole Marguery."

Many persons favor this fish because of its delicate and excellent flavor. The following is the recipe by which Chef Meissner prepared it for Mr. Stewart.

Filet of Sole Marguery

Broil sole or whitefish, basting with butter. Bone the fish and cover with a sauce made as follows: Melt 2 tablespoons butter in pan, add 1 cup milk, gradually adding ½ cup finely sifted flour. Cook 2 or 3 minutes until creamy. Stir in a dash of paprika, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, salt, black pepper, dash of garlic salt and ½ teaspoon mustard powder, and ½ thinly sliced green pepper, and cook until well blended. Pour sauce over boned sole and serve immediately.

Peanut Dressing

Peanut salad dressing is excellent with tart fruit salads, such as orange, grapefruit and pineapple. Add a tablespoon of peanut butter to salad dressing, then beat it very thoroughly. This dressing may be served with a shrimp or crab salad plate, accompanied by tomatoes and half slices of pineapple, and toasted cheese sandwiches.

Murals Urged In Laundry to Ease Washday

Light-Hearted Job Made Possible by Gay Surroundings

WE'RE REALLY VERY tired of hearing all this sighing and groaning over wash day. We women have been feeling sorry for ourselves over washing so long that we've forgotten that splashing around in fresh suds is really a lot of fun (well, try and keep the children out of water!), and for a healthy energetic woman there's a fine, hearty gusto about washing that she feels, even if she doesn't admit.

At the worst, the rub board and the heavy flat iron were the chief complaints, and they're ancient history. Washing today is certainly nothing to mope over. In fact, if we're honest, we'll admit that it's one of those jobs that a lady likes to roll up her sleeves and get at.

Credit to Equipment

Modern laundry equipment deserves plenty of credit, no doubt about that. So grand is the new type of equipment that it's high time the place we wash got a little attention, whether it's a shed, a basement or a corner of a kitchen.

The trend now toward using the kitchen as a laundry is an excellent one, for electrical laundry equipment tucks itself very neatly out of the way when not in use. And when it is located in the kitchen (or on an adjoining porch or in an alcove) it is so much handier for all-of-a-sudden jobs as well as for the regular wash. If you're building or remodeling, by all means consider the idea of having the laundry in or opening into the kitchen.

Casual, Sketchy Murals

If the laundry has to remain in shed or basement, doll it up. Paint walls white or light blue, paint a clothesline full of flopping garments sketchily around the walls. Or else splash kindergarten pictures of the sunbonnet babies washing and froning. Or do a little library work on the subject, then draw a map of the world on the walls with diagrams of laundry customs around the globe.

Such murals don't require a lot of artistic ability . . . they want to be casual and sketchy. And how much more light-heafted the job of washing and ironing will be in such a setting. Such a room could very well double as a game room.

Angelic Dessert For Parties

The angel pie recipe given here no doubt realized its name because of its heavenly flavor and appearance.

Beat together 2 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons water, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 cup sugar. When the mixture is ropy, add 1 tablespoon vinegar and beat until stiff. Pour into a pie pan lined with waxed paper. Bake in oven of 300 degrees for 45 minutes. Remove from oven and turn upside down on a serving plate. When cool, cover with sweetened whipped cream and top with strawberries. Place in refrigerator at least for 4 hours.

Salad Container

Spiced, jellied, tomato juice molded stiff in ring forms makes interesting containers for egg salad. Serve on a crisp salad green and pass mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

Notables Pay Tribute to Gen. Trujillo At Record-Breaking Reception Here

Secretary and Mrs. Hull Attend Fete at Dominican Legation; Mrs. Vandenberg And Mrs. Borah Are Among the Guests

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

GEN. RAFAEL L. TRUJILLO, the Dominican Republic's "man of the age," was summer society's man of the hour yesterday afternoon when he was feted at a record-breaking reception at the Dominican Legation.

More notables than I had ever suspected still were lingering in town turned out for the party that was well under way at 5:30 p. m. and lasted until dinner time.

The spacious rooms of the Legation at 2633 Sixteenth street were a riot of color, with tall vases of red roses and crimson gladioli decorating every nook and cranny. A long table centering the dining room was lighted with tall white tapers and lavishly laden with tea-time dainties, several of which were Latin-American favorites.

SMALL TABLES had been set up in the garden, but the weather failed to co-operate, so the company stayed inside and seemed very happy about it, as mammoth fans blew a cool breeze over the guests and made them forget it was July in Washington.

With William, the doorman, on duty at the front (and very dapper he was, in his tall silk hat and silk summer coat) and a receiving line in order in the drawing room upstairs, the party was full speed ahead at the opening hour . . . and even before. A bevy of newspaper reporters arrived shortly after 4 o'clock for an informal chat with the guest of honor, and that get-together was dispersed only a few minutes before the first party guest arrived.

THE DOMINICAN MINISTER headed the receiving line, with Gen. Trujillo standing next to him. Senora de Pastorica was in the group, too, wearing a stunning frock of aqua chiffon, fashioned with a full skirt and a short jacket, and set off with a wine-colored belt and sandals to match. Others receiving included several members of Gen. Trujillo's entourage.

Very much a center of attention among the guests were the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, as the former rarely attends afternoon parties. Arriving during the first half of the party, they were completely surrounded for the time they remained. Mrs. Hull, whose handsome ensembles are always "fashion news," had chosen a black chiffon frock with white and green accents and a becoming black hat trimmed in green. A triple strand of pearls, white gloves and a black bag were accessories for her attractive outfit.

AS WOULD BE EXPECTED at this time of year, vacation plans made up most of the talk over champagne glasses and teacups. Mrs. Hull said she and the Secretary had no plans for a trip as yet; that they might remain in their apartment at the Carlton right on through the summer.

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, who was also among the earlier arrivals yesterday, said she and Senator Vandenberg would get away to their home State, Michigan, for a couple of weeks after Congress adjourned and that their plans from then on were still nebulous. Mrs. William E. Borah was another who averred her vacation was uncertain.

"Of course Billy and I always eventually go to Idaho," she added.

But the honor guest at the reception has his plans for a further vacation already well outlined. Leaving Washington last night for New York, he will be there a few days and then sail for France to meet his wife, who has been in Paris for some time, and his baby son, who was born there and whom he has not yet seen.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT: The Minister of Finland, Hjalmar J. Procope, who is dividing his time between Washington and New York these days, but will be off soon for a brief visit in Fitchburg, Mass. . . . Mrs. Claude Pepper, receiving congratulations on all sides about that stunning portrait of her that Howard Chandler Christy has just finished. . . . The German Charge d'Affaires with Frau Thomsen, who wore a smart dusty pink suit with a small matching hat (she will leave August 1 for a month in the West) . . . Representative Robert L. Mouton, stopping to chat with Mrs. McGuire of the Dominican Legation staff . . . Sergio Osmena moving from one group of guests to another, seeming to know everybody.

STILL OTHERS THERE: Mrs. Pete Jarman and Mrs. Luther Johnson, chatting together and wondering if their Congressional husbands will ever be off Capitol Hill duty for the summer . . . Dr. Oscar Albertini shaking hands with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson . . . Mrs. Abner Drury slipping away early to be guest of honor at a farewell dinner—she will be off to California today . . . Mrs. Edward Wilber telling friends she will leave soon for New Brunswick, Canada . . . The Ambassador of Ecuador, Capitan Alfaro, a popular guest.

AND STILL MORE: The Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb arriving toward the latter half of the party, and staying to the end . . . the Counselor of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Fuentes with Senora de Zanni of the Argentine Embassy . . . Maj. Parker West, slipping through the crowd . . . the Cuban Counselor and Senora de Valdes Rodrigues, among the guests; also, Senora de Herrera-Arango, Mrs. Austin Kautz, the Cuban Minister-Counselor, Dr. Jose Baron; Dr and Mrs. Frederick Benton, Mrs. George Oakley Totten, whose late husband built the house that is now the Dominican Legation; Povilas Zadeikis, the Lithuanian Minister; the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, and around three hundred others.

Mrs. McCracken Now 'Princess Fisher Woman'

Paul Baades To Leave City

Col. Paul W. Baade, who has completed a four-year tour in Washington, where he was on duty with the General Staff in Brig. Gen. George P. Tyner's office, will leave town this week-end with Mrs. Baade.

They will spend the summer in New England and about the first of September will go to their new station on Governors Island. Among the recent farewell parties given in Col. and Mrs. Baade's honor was the dinner given last Tuesday evening by the Adjutant General of the Army Maj. Gen. Emory S. Adams and Mrs. Adams at their home on Thirty-fourth street.

Among the guests at the dinner were the Chief of Engineers of the Army, Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, and Mrs. Schley; the Commandant of the Soldiers' Home, Maj. Gen. Frederick W. Coleman, retired, and Mrs. Coleman; Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Haig Shekerjian and Maj. and Mrs. John S. Grable.

Luttrells to Take Trip to Honolulu

Miss Nancy Luttrell and her brother, Nat, will leave their Falls Church home next Wednesday for Honolulu. They will first fly to Colorado Springs, Colo., where they will visit their father, Horace Luttrell, who is summering there.

From Colorado Springs the two plan to fly to California, where they will catch a boat to Honolulu. They will not return to Washington until September 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Off to South America

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Miles are sailing today for South America, where Mr. Miles, solicitor of the Postoffice, will represent the Postoffice Department at a conference in Rio de Janeiro.

Mrs. Miles has taken along a movie camera to film some of the beautiful scenes in Rio and Buenos Aires.

Mrs. MacCracken Given Title of Indian Princess

It seems to be quite the vogue these days to become a member of the Blackfeet Indian Tribe.

The latest recruit is "Chic" MacCracken, dynamic wife of William P. MacCracken. Princess Fisher Woman was the named bestowed upon Mrs. MacCracken by the Montana Blackfeet when she visited Glacier National Park en route home from the American Bar Association.

The chieftains who inducted her into the tribe were Chief Bull Child, Chief Wades-in-the-Water and Chief Night Shoots.

At present, Mrs. MacCracken is in Chicago, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Price at their home in Indian Hill. She is expected to return to her home here the first of next week.

Mr. MacCracken, who accompanied his wife to Chicago from San Francisco, returned to Washington on Wednesday. The special train chartered by members of the American Bar Association for the return trip from the meeting stopped at Crater Lake and Mount Rainier as well as Glacier Park.

Col. J. P. Marley Visits in Capital

Col. James P. Marley, of Governors Island, N. Y., is registered at the Martinique.

Among other recent arrivals at the same hotel are Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Bealle, of Carlton, Ga., and Mrs. Leland Hammer, of Houston, Tex.

Elizalde Plans Europe Flight

The Resident Commissioner of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde, will board a California-bound plane following the adjournment of Congress. After a short stay on the West Coast, he will fly to Europe, to visit Mme. Elizalde and their two daughters in Switzerland.

The last lap of Mr. Elizalde's plane trip will include the Orient and Manila. He does not plan to return to the Capital until the early winter.

Recently, Mr. Elizalde had his motor sail yacht, the Limbas shipped here. At the moment, it is anchored off the Corinthian Yatch Club. This is the first time the lovely ship has been on this side of the world—although it has sailed Asiatic waters for some time. The Commissioner had the craft shipped from Kobe, through the Panama Canal to New York.

Gibbins Leave For Week-End

The quartermaster general, Maj. Gen. Henry Gibbins, accompanied by Mrs. Gibbins and their daughter, Miss Margaret Gibbons, will leave today for their summer cottage near Front Royal, Va.

They will spend the week-end there and return to Washington Monday. Miss Gibbins, who was a member of the World's Fair committee last year, is making a career of interior decorating, at which she is being kept very busy in Washington.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Former Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson have left West Hills, Long Island, and are at Chicora cottage at the Ausable Club, New York. They will be there for several weeks.

Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, who had been at the Plaza in New York since her arrival from Hot Springs, Virginia, is in Bar Harbor, where she will be until September.

Dr. Fernando Sacasa entertained a small company at dinner last evening on the Terrace of the Shoreham.

Aubrey L. Clarke, of Washington, is sojourning at the Ambassador Hotel in New York City, as are Mr. and Mrs. Andre Claude of Paris, France.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo L. Snow were hosts to a small company at dinner last evening on the Terrace of the Shoreham.

Mrs. L. C. Johnston is a recent arrival at the Waldorf-Astoria from 2001 Q street in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Jordon, of Washington, are at the Ambassador Hotel in New York City. During their stay they will visit the World's Fair.

While visiting the New York World's Fair and attending the Equitable Assurance Society convention, Maj. and Mrs. Guy Withers, of 1735 New Hampshire avenue, Washington, are stopping at the Beekman Towers Hotel, in New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harbison are recent arrivals at the Waldorf-Astoria for a stay of about a week or ten days from their home on Vermont avenue, in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hendrick, of Washington, have arrived at the Claridge Hotel, Atlantic City, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Kaufman and Miss Joan Kaufman motored to Hartford, Conn., where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Newfeld for a week.

Mrs. Joseph Sworzyn is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kanner, of Hempstead, Long Island.

Mrs. Hendrick's Daughter Wed To Englishman

Bambi McKenna Sails On the Britannic To Join Lady Rutter

Mrs. David Stewart Hendrick, of Washington, announces the marriage of her daughter, the former Lillian von Matsch, and Sir Frederick Pascoe Rutter.

The wedding took place in England on July 1 and shortly afterward, the couple went on a honeymoon trip to Le Touquet, France. They will be at home after August 1 at Sir Frederick's home, Coombe Ridge House, Kingston-on-Thames, Surray, England.

Lady Rutter is a sister of Mrs. Royal McKenna, of Washington. Miss Bambi McKenna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McKenna, sailed Saturday on the Britannic for England, where she will join her aunt for several weeks. She may also visit relatives in Paris before returning in September.

Miss Martha McKenna accompanied her sister to New York and spent several days there with Mrs. McKenna's sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles Astor Bristed.

Italian Attache Guest on Sail

Count Ettore Filo della Torre, assistant Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, will be among the distinguished honor guests of the President's Cup Regatta Association on its midsummer Gold Cup royal moonlight sail tonight on the City of Washington.

Among those who will entertain guests on board will be Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Morris, sr., who will have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bergelt, Miss Irene Carlin and Andrew J. Morris, jr.; E. C. Baltz, who will have as his guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Robert Dwyer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Keane; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leveau, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Greenleaf, and other well-known regatta fans.

In addition to the Fun Fair, and other amusements on board, there will be dancing throughout the trip, to music by a popular Washington orchestra. The sponsors committee announced that tickets will be available at the pier of the Wilson Line tonight at 7 o'clock for those who have neglected to purchase tickets in advance.

Ada Scrivener, Hugh E. Carroll Wed in Arlington

Decked with many colored lights, the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Scrivener, in Arlington, Va., was the scene last night of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ada Mae Scrivener, to Hugh Edward Carroll, of Florida.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock in the evening, with the Rev. Perry Mitchell officiating. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lewis Sholtes, of Arlington.

A background of shrubbery, banked with many flowers, made an improvised altar for the exchange of vows. The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white mousseline de soie frock with a low square neckline, tight basque and full skirt. Her short tulle veil was caught with white roses and she carried a bouquet of roses, lilies of the valley and baby's breath.

Miss Dorothy Chisholm was maid of honor and only attendant. Her teal blue frock was of taffeta and she carried pink roses. She wore roses in her hair.

Frank Carr served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for members of the wedding party and immediate family.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Clifford Paulson have announced the birth of a son, Thomas Lynn Paulson, on July 6, at Columbia Hospital. Mrs. Paulson is the former Miss Emma Louise Danielson.

Arrives From N. Y.

Mme. Andre Cattaui, wife of the former Secretary of the Egyptian Legation, has arrived from New York to visit her mother, Mrs. Guy W. McCord, for several days.

Col. Lombard To Make Tour Of New England

The Military Attache of the French Embassy, Col. Emmanuel Lombard, will leave Washington the first of next week for Boston and a tour of the New England States.

Charles Francis Lombard, son of Col. and Mme. Lombard, is now at Camp Idlewild, near Lakeport, N. H. Mme. Lomabrd, who is remaining in town for most of the summer season, plans to join Col. Lombard and their son in New England around September 1, and they plan to have a holiday together then.

Mrs. Eaton Weds Again

Of interest to Washington was the marriage Wednesday of Mrs. Genevieve Jacoby Eaton, of Norwich, N. Y., and Princeton, widow of Warren E. Eaton, to Herbert E. Warren, of Fairlee, Vt.

The bride, who was graduated from Wellesley College, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Jacoby, of Washington. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Leonebel Jacobs in New York City, with the Rev. Lloyd S. Charters, of Norwich, officiating. Only immediate relatives witnessed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren will leave in September for Lausanne.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Warren, of Fairlee. He is a graduate of Bowdoin College and studied in Europe at the universities of Paris, Grenoble and Marburg.

Mrs. Warren's first husband, who was one of the most active sponsors of motorless flight in the United States, was killed in a glider accident in Florida in 1934. The flight headquarters of the Soaring Society, at Elmira, N. Y., of which he was president, now bear his name as a memorial.

Mary Latimer Has Tea for Virginian

Miss Mary Latimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Latimer, of Burnt Mills Hills, Md., entertained at tea yesterday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock in honor of Miss Anne Warriner, of Blacksburg, Va., who is visiting here. Miss Warriner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Warriner.

Miss Nancy Brewster and Miss Clara Cary assisted the hostess in pouring.

Other guests were Miss Marcia Nelson, Miss Helen Hamblin, Miss Virginia Edelblut, Miss Alice Cowing, Miss Jacqueline Welsh, Miss Marion Myer, Miss Carol Mitchell, Miss Betty Rowdon, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Phyllis Walker, Miss Sally Fleming, Miss Virginia Bell, Miss Dorothy Swingle, Miss Betty Swingle, Miss Christine Pitcher, Miss Mary Helen Callander and Miss Margaret Staebner.

Craigs Sojourn In Bar Harbor

Gen. Malin Craig, who is now on leave and will automatically retire as chief of staff in September, is now in Bar Harbor, Me., where he and Mrs. Craig recently arrived by motor.

The Craigs will leave soon by motor for the West, stopping at Fort Sill, Okla., to visit their son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Malin Craig, jr., and their two grandchildren. Later they will go on to San Francisco for an indefinite stay.

Miss Roffe Has Guest

Miss Frances Roffe, daughter of Col. and Mrs. A. W. Roffe, of Fort Myer, has as her guest Miss Betsy Wyche, daughter of Col. and Mrs. I. T. Wyche, of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Mrs. Reed in France

Mrs. Thomas H. C. Reed is in Paris, France, and will return to her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue late this fall.

Kingmans Go To Squam Lake For Vacation

Col. and Mrs. Snow Also to Spend Summer At Ashland, N. H.

The Assistant Chief of Engineers of the United States Army, Brig. Gen. John J. Kingman, accompanied by Mrs. Kingman and their daughter, Miss Jean Kingman and Miss Ann Kingman, will leave Washington Sunday morning for a vacation.

They will spend August at Rockywold Camp, Squam Lake, Ashland, N. H.

Col. William A. Snow, of the Engineer Corps, and Mrs. Snow, will leave tomorrow for the same camp, and will remain until after Labor Day. They have given up their house at 2818 Thirty-sixth place and will make their home at 1870 Wyoming avenue this fall.

Col. and Mrs. Snow's son, William J. Snow 2d, is at Camp Kayebun, Alton Bay, N. H., and will remain there for the summer season. Their daughter, Miss Beggy Snow, is in Edgerton, Mass., visiting her maternal grandmother, Mrs. C. L. Payne.

Col. and Mrs. Snow will stop at Edgerton on their way to New Hampshire to visit a few days. They will then take their daughter to Squam Lake.

Maj. Gen. William J. Snow, retired, and Mrs. Snow, father and mother of Col. Snow, are now at their summer home, Vista Cottage, in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., and will return to Washington in the fall.

Col. and Mrs. Snow will return in the fall for Peggy to continue her studies at the National Cathedral School, and their son will enter the Episcopal High School in Alexandria.

'Ned' McLeans Parents of Girl

From Colorado Springs, Colo., comes the news that Mr. and Mrs. "Neddie" McLean are the proud parents of a 7½-pound girl, born Thursday evening at 6 o'clock.

Harry G. Meem, father of Mrs. McLean, who before her marriage was Ann Carroll Meem, kept the telephone buzzing last night with the announcements. Most important of all was a call to Bar Harbor, Me., to Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean—who was delighted to be a grandmother!

Mrs. Meem, who is with her daughter in Colorado Springs, reports that both mother and child are doing very well. Eleanor Meem, who, with her father, plans to leave on August 10 for Colorado, is just a bit upset over the news because she would have preferred to have her new niece arrive today—as it is her birthday.

Srta. de la Campa Is Engaged to Charles Ruth, Jr.

Senor and Senora Adelardo de la Campa, of Havanna, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Senorita Graizella de la Campa, to Charles H. Ruth, jr., of this city.

The bride-elect is the niece of the Secretary of State of Cuba, Senor Miguel de la Campa, and is a cousin of Senor Carlos Blanco, former First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy in Washington, now stationed in London.

Mr. Ruth, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ruth, is a graduate of the University of Virginia, and for several years has been associated with the Washington Star.

Miss Hutzler, P. W. Ridgeway Wed

Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Hutzler, of Martinsburg, W. Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Virginia Rose Hutzler, to Paul W. Ridgeway, in Woodstock, Va., July 22. The Rev. F. H. Strieby officiated.

Following a brief trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ridgeway will go to Morgantown, W. Va., where he is completing work on his master's degree. At the end of the term, they will return to Martinsburg.

Mr. Ridgeway, a graduate of Shepard State Teachers College at Shepherdstown, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ridgeway, of Martinsburg. He teaches athletics at Bunker Hill High School. The bride is a member of the faculty at West Virginia College of Beauty Culture.

Kimono Bows To West's Lead, Stylist Finds

Intricate Costumes Of Occident Influence Japanese Designs

By Martha Ellyn.

THE JAPANESE kimono, so exquisite of line, color and material, has bowed to Western influence with its intricate and sophisticated costumes, according to Mrs. Dorothy Edgers, authority on styles for Japanese women. Mrs. Edgers is a designer of women's clothes for Takashimaya, an exclusive department store in Tokyo. She adapts our fashions to fit the Oriental women.

Mrs. Edgers, who is in Washington visiting her parents, was born in Tokyo and has lived there all her life. She told in an interview of the interest Japanese women show in everything modern in clothes. They wear our hats, whether they are a feather in the cap, half-hoods to cover the back hair, the ones that pitch forward, the beret style or the old-fashioned beaver felt.

Sports Influence Dress

"Adopt, adapt and adept" might well be the Japanese motto in regard to their attitude toward modern dress. Perhaps the strenuous out-door sports in which the Japanese women are participating has influenced their dress, for the women play tennis and golf; go skiing and skating and swimming, and do a great deal of mountain climbing.

Mrs. Edgers came to California when 17 to enter the University of California and to study clothing and design. Following her graduation, she returned to Tokyo to enter the fashion field and was for some time the editor of the Japanese Advertiser.

All women's clothing in Japan is made to order, says Mrs. Edgers, but even though they are custom built, most of the dresses may be purchased from $12 to $15. Although they have adopted our style of dress, they still cherish many of the Oriental customs. You can tell a woman's age by the colors and patterns she wears in her clothing. Only the young girls wear the very bright colors—pink, red and rose are for the girls under 20. They are the ones who wear the large patterns of bright colors and chox stripe. The women of 30 wear powder blue and lavender and the older women wear gray, black, brown, navy and dark purple, made up in smaller patterns, such as polka dots and pin stripes.

Easy to Please

This Japanese stylist finds the women very easy to please, but extremely hard to fit, because they are so short and their shapes are most unsuited to Western styles. Everyone wears the same styles and they do not mind seeing the same models on each other. Fashion shows are popular in Japan and the women order from the styles worn by the models. Women and large Japanese dolls are used for models. The Japanese women do not wear much jewelry and most of the pieces are made of glass. They prefer to have a jacket of some type to wear with their evening dresses.

Tradition and convention formerly regulated the woman's coiffure as well as the color of her kimona. The married woman previously wore her hair in one large puff at the top of the head, the size of the puff diminishing as her age increased, while her unmarried sister secured hers in two loops. The hair was stiffened with oil of camellia and held in place with a comb and lacquered pins whose number, size and variety differed with the wearer's age. Such a coiffure necessitated a wooden headrest for sleeping. But even the Japanese hair dress has undergone drastic change, and the page boy bob is now very popular, although about 20 per cent of the women wear curls. Everyone has permanents.

Stockings Cease To Run, Thanks to March of Science

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS because of a run in silk stockings just at the time when you want to be perfectly groomed are at end, thanks to science. You will not need to repeat such experience, for manufacturers have achieved a triumph in perfecting stockings which render them streng, smooth, more elastic, and resistant to injurious perspiration. This success has resulted because of a protective invisible film which is applied to each strand of silk. Even repeated washings do not remove this protective film.

These stockings are not run-proof, not snag-proof, but hundreds of wear tests have shown that they have a very much higher average of wear than stockings of the same construction not impregnated with this patented film. The film which covers each tiny strand of silk eliminates friction, greatly lessening the possibility of runs and snags and insuring increased mileage. Combined beauty, wear and comfort of these exquisitely sheer hose makes such luxurious stockings practical for daytime wear.

For a Japanese Lady

Dorothy Edgers who designs smart clothes for Japanese women, adapting Western style trends to Oriental tastes and conventions, is shown above displaying a special creation which the Japanese approve. The dress is of black crepe made with shirring to achieve front fullness. The accompanying jacket—made with the long sleeves which Japanese ladies insist on for evening occasions—is of salmon-colored velvet, hand embroidered in multi-colored sequins. And note Mrs. Edgar's midsummer selection—neat, cool and infinitely chic. Of navy blue sheer with very full sleeves, it fastens in front with bright red glass gadgets and matching belt clasp

Too Much Weight Is a Handicap Even to Young Children

WHEN SHIRLEY TEMPLE and the Dionne quintuplets—whose health is even more closely guarded than that of the average child—go on diets to reduce, the fact is emphasized that even in childhood overweight is a health handicap.

Like all the movie stars, Shirley watches her weight as a matter of course. At least, it is watched for her! But, recently, Dr. Dafoe decided that the quints were overweight and he restricted the sugars and starches in their diet. In one month the five famous little girls lost from one-half pound to one and three-fourths pounds each!

As a rule, overweight in childhood is apt to be dismissed as something that will be outgrown. If the habit of overeating is firmly established, however, it will grow up with the child. That is one reason why it is extremely important that children form the right food habits and that their parents help them. We do not always instinctively choose what is best for us.

Doctor Should Advise

A certain amount of overweight in children represents a safety margin. But weight more than 15 per cent above the ideal for age and height calls for a reducing diet, even for the growing child. Since requirements for growth and development as well as the repair of body tissues must be met, the restricted diet of the child must be planned more carefully than that of the adult. Moreover, there is a wide variation in the energy requirements of the growing child, and the family doctor should be consulted as to the restriction in calories.

Protein, which supplies material for growth and repair, is obtained from milk, eggs and lean meats, and these should be included in normal amounts. The minerals and vitamins, essential to health and normal growth, are furnished in the milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables, of which there should be an optimum. The diet must also include whole grain cereal, whole wheat bread and some butter.

When these foods are listed, there remains very little to restrict except the sugars and starches, but they make an amazing difference in the calories. Usually these foods are in the form of such extras as jams, jellies, sugar, cream, candy, ice cream sodas, pastries, and if large quantities are eaten, a child will fail to get the fruits, vegetables and milk that it really needs. It is not unusual for an overweight child to be poorly nourished.

Glands Important

There are, of course, overweight children with glandular disturbances, and it is of the utmost importance that they be given medical care. Even the Fat Lady in the circus might have been healthily slim had her condition been treated in childhood.

Most overweight children, however, respond readily to proper diet. Scientific experiments with overweight children have shown that they not only lose their excess weight, but often exceed their expected growth on the improved diet. In every case, a marked improvement in the child's health has resulted.

Here are two lists of "do's" and "don'ts" which will help you to plan a well balanced menu for your child.

DAILY ESSENTIALS

3 glasses whole milk
1 egg
1 potato
¾ cup whole grain cereal
3 slices whole wheat bread
2 to 3 cooked vegetables
1 citrus fruit, such as oranges, grapefruit, or tomato or pineapple, for vitamin C.
1 teaspoon codliver oil.

RESTRICTIONS

Nothing except fruit between meals
No dessert except fruit
No gravies
No fat meat
No fried food

Cottons Held Best For Housedresses

In buying a housedress, or material to make one, it is wise to choose fabrics that are sun-fast and tub-fast, and if possible preshrunk. One day's wear is all anyone can expect of a housedress, or for that matter, from any work-a-day garment before it goes into the washtub if it is to give lasting service and keep its wearer trim.

A housedress should be constructed to permit freedom of movement without fussy trimmings that may come off in the wash. The one-piece apron style which laps over in front and ties neatly in the back is a practical fashion because it can be put on and taken off in a jiffy and can be opened up flat for easy ironing.

Cottons, on the whole, are most suitable for a housedress. Ginghams, chambrays, crepes, percales, and seersuckers, in gay monotones and prints are inexpensive, easy to launder, and long-lasting, provided they are put into the wash before soil becomes ingrained.

How to Train Your Dog

A GREAT DAY when you choose a dog—bring him home to be one of the family. And a day of questions, too! How to care for him? What does a dog want and need? Know right answers to your questions, avoid common mistakes, and it's simple to keep your dog happy, healthy.

Does raw meat make a dog vicious? No, he may have raw or cooked meat from the time he is 3 months old.

Are bones "good for him?" Avoid bones of lamb, fowl, birds and fish. Bones that splinter may harm stomach and intestines.

May your dog drink water immediately after a meal? Let him wait an hour. Keep an eye on young puppies—likely to drink excessively in warm weather and after play, weaken their digestion.

Do all dogs have fleas? Unlikely that yours will if you groom him regularly, keep his sleeping quarters clean.

Can you inoculate against distemper? Inoculations by competent veterinarians have been highly successful.

Many more important questions on dog care are answered in our 40-page booklet, "How to Raise and Train Your Dog." Gives an expert's advice on feeding, grooming, training, what to do for dog ailments. Has directions for 20 tricks, lists breeds of dogs.

Out of Patience With Philandering Husband, Woman Solicits Strong Denunciation of His Conduct

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It has been quite some time since you have given a discourse on the middle-aged philandering husband. I would be very grateful for a good, strong statement from you, and also for any suggestion you might make for dealing with such a husband. My patience as well as tactics are about exhausted, after nearly nine years of it. If a man's "dangerous age" is just a passing phase, it would seem that my husband would have begun to grow out of his by now, and would be "acting his age" again.

But he isn't, and I find my respect and love are fading, along with my patience. Yet I hesitate to precipitate a crisis, on account of my children, although they are grown. I might add that I am neither a frump nor a careless housekeeper and I have tried to see the "illness" side of his susceptibility. Perhaps I have "tried too hard," as the psychiatrists say. I await your suggestions. WAITING.

DEAR WAITING: You cannot truthfully hide behind your children's skirts, in pointing the finger of scorn at your husband. If your children are grown, they are—or should be—sufficiently independent of parental guiding strings to be able to stand on their own feet, emotionally, socially and financially. And the course which their parents' future lives may take should not unduly affect their lives. Be honest with yourself and admit you are remaining with your husband primarily to protect your own economic and social security. After all, that's a good enough reason—if it should be that you don't have a better one, such as, for instance, the fact that you love him in spite of his faults.

If you have, for nine years, employed every strategy which loving patience and high hearted hope could devise, in an attempt to reform your philandering husband; and if these efforts have come to naught, then I think you may as well admit that his case is hopeless. He is a dyed-in-the-wool philanderer, and as such you will have to take him or leave him. Strong statements from me are not going to alter his course an iota; and I do not make strong statements out of sheer pleasure in rhetorical exercise.

I have on my desk at the moment a book entitled, "Conquering Tomorrow," written by Helen Johnson Keyes—a book which has recently come to me from the publishers. Dedicated to "the 15,000,000 women in the United States who are 45 years and older," this book discusses the problems which women of middle age must face and conquer in order to insure tomorrow's happiness. Your particular problem appears to have been overlooked, but the book as a whole preaches the following victorious philosophy—declared on the title page in the words of Maurice Maeterlinck: "The things that differentiate the happy and strong from those who weep and will not be consoled, all derive from the one principle of confidence and ardour."

It is this philosophy which you must embrace, if you would face discouraging obstacles and create a happy future in spite of them. Whether you continue with your husband, philosophically adjusting yourself to his shortcomings, or whether you leave him, you can only create happiness for yourself by employing this "principle of confidence and ardour," and applying it to such materials as you can command. Because this little book is chock-full of suggested "patterns for happiness" for the older woman, I think you should read it. Since your husband has ceased to be a source of happiness, you must find other sources of supply—and this book was designed to be a friendly guide in just such a search.

Tipping the Porter

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I happened to read your advice of July 23 to the girl who is about to take her first long train trip—to the West Coast. . . . And if, as I assume, the young lady is a person who would like to make her money go as far as possible, she is certainly going to be discouraged by your suggestion that a Pullman porter's customary honorarium amounts to $1 a day, more or less. You say, "Custom decrees 25 to 50 cents a day for perfunctory services and 50 cents for preparing a berth." This I would call an extravagant dictum.

During the nineteen-twenties, when the prosperity myth was still alive and tips were large, I was a commercial traveler with an unlimited expense account and under no necessity, therefore, to economize, except as common sense suggested. I traveled a great deal on Pullmans, but I never paid porters 50 cents every time they made up a berth, nor 25 to 50 cents for perfunctory daytime services. Nor did anyone else of my acquaintance, unless they were making a supreme effort to "put on the dog," and impress somebody. Furthermore, I was never conscious of receiving poor service on this account, nor of being considered unusually niggardly. And the average tip has shrunk since the golden twenties!

I don't believe this young woman is eager to be "typed" as a "person who will expect some service, and who is prepared to pay for it." I believe that she is, rather, a somewhat timid, inexperienced traveler, who would like to know how to tip conservatively, without being thought a "cheap skate." In my opinion, she could halve your tipping estimate (except for the 10 per cent to the dining car waiters), without showing inexperience or seeming tight-fisted. In fact, usually it is the inexperienced, rather than the experienced, traveler, who over-tips. Give the poor girl a break! Very truly yours,

H. W. T.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

A Woman's New York

New York's Panhandling Pigeons Do Well; Some Scarcely Can Fly

New York, July 27.

ONE of our town's more interesting phenomena (and definitely not sinful, Governor) is the various collections of panhandling pigeons which haunt some portions of mid-Manhattan. These bloated moochers are to be found at the Public Library at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, in Madison Square, about the portals of the Grand Central Terminal and on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral. Central Park, naturally, has a huge herd stealing popcorn from babies.

ALICE HUGHES

Most of these organized gangs of our feathered friends depend on kindly bird-lovers, usually old ladies and gentlemen with time to kill, for their daily rations. And they seem to do pretty well, since they are so fat I wonder they can get off the ground at all. I've never been able to understand the crowd at Grand Central, where all the people seem to be in a crazy rush to catch trains or to find subways or hotels. But they appear to do all right, too.

Now a new factor has entered the Gotham pigeon situation, and the funniest yet. I have never thought city pigeons very smart, but at last I have respect for the intelligence of one covey—which has fastened itself to one of my favorite restaurants, on Madison avenue and Forty-ninth street. The darlings strut about the sidewalk before the open door, and when the coast is clear the more daring walk right into the place and beg for peanuts from the bar.

Of course, the head-waiter, horrified, gives them the bum's rush, cussing them out in 17 obscure Balkan dialects, but when he goes away they come right back in, to the huge delight of the customers, and probably of themselves. It is my hunch that this crowd of tramps is part of the St. Patrick's herd, since the Cathedral is only a block and a half away. Maybe the summer visitors haven't been stuffing them well. But it's a howling sight to see them waddle into this swank beanery and do their mooching act. At last I've met some really smart pigeons.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Flash! More terrible trouble in dizzy Europe. It is reported that the Duke of Windsor and our plump pal, Elsa Maxwell, the writer and party tosser, aren't pals any more, because he didn't like something she wrote about him. All the tragedy there is in the Old World, and now this has to happen! Why don't we just give ourselves up? . . .

The Gentler Sex

Elsa Maxwell Is on Cool Terms With Duke of Windsor

Mrs. Harry Richman, the handsome blonde wife of the singer, and the girl who was Hazel Forbes, rich Ziegfeld girl before her marriage, turned up at La Conga, rhumbaden, the other night wearing a white crepe gown, a white fox cape, and one of these leprechaun hoods on her yellow head. Hoods and snoods have certainly swept the nation, these months. As they say at election time, "As Maine goes, so goes the wimple!"

MUST BE the nervous weather, for Love and Marriage are taking a frightful beating here just now. Two headlines read "40 Charmers Lit Banker's Last Day" (some light, I'd guess), and "Beaten for Ten Years, Says Wife, Suing Dealer in Silks and Socks." And then Little Italy went into hysterics when Torsillo Locapria, 60, married Carmelo, 16. Crowds threw rocks and hollered till the cops came. Fine didoes going on in the world of amour!

Fought-Over Project Is 12 Per Cent Completed

Air view of the site of the $3,000,000 memorial to Thomas Jefferson at the Tidal Basin gives an idea of what's going on behind the high board fence raised around two sides of the project. What appears to be an inner circle are columns to support the walls of the memorial room, which is 80 feet in diameter. The raised platform of the memorial itself can be seen within this area. The next circle is made up of pillars for the outer wall, and in the outer circle are pillars for the retaining wall on which the memorial will rest. The pillars are being constructed on metal cylinders, filled with concrete, which have been driven into bed rock. Foundations are now completed and the memorial is 12 per cent finished

Shorts Too Revealing, Fined $50

"I'm Still Going to Wear Them"

Pretty and shapely Mrs. Leslie Alexander, a young bride, and daughter of a clergyman, was fined $50 yesterday in a court at Nettleton, Ark., for "displaying nudity in public places." What really happened was that Mrs. Alexander wore the shorts she is shown wearing above in public. Her action caused a storm of protest in the little village and split it into two camps —the "shorts" and the "longs"

Professional football, like the flying machine and the starlings, is apparently here to stay. No passing fancy but a permanent fixture on the Nation's sports calendar are football's dough boys and their doings. There's nothing shy about them either. They're burgeoning all over the sports pages full in the face of big league baseball which traces its ancestry back nearly 100 years.

POVICH

That the baseball magnates don't like it, is apparent enough. This is supposed to be the peak of their season—July and August—and they find the football fellows in strong competition for the press notices two months before the gridiron season opens. Clark Griffith is the only clubowner who openly inveigs against football as a midsummer topic and his tone is softened somewhat by the fact that his club will probably make more money from its cut of the Redskins' gates this season than it will from the 154-game baseball campaign.

It isn't merely idle talk that the football people are creating in midsummer either. The Philadelphia Eagles, featuring Davy O'Brien, opened their 1939 training season two days ago, and before another week has passed three more National Football League teams will move into training quarters. The Redskins will entrain for Spokane, Wash., the Chicago Cardinals will be heading for the coolness of Duluth, Minn., and the Pittsburgh Pirates will pitch camp at Two Rivers, Wis.

O'Brien Couldn't Resist Pro Offer

George Marshall says he is getting $10,000 from the Spokane Chamber of Commerce to grace that town with his Redskins for a month of preseason training and if that is no exaggeration then pro football is truly in the big leagues. Because the New York Giants, who received ten grand as a guarantee from Baton Rouge, La., last winter to train there are the only baseball club to command such an attractive offer.

Professional football is making good, too, in the player market. Davey O'Brien, who said he wouldn't play pro football after graduating from Texas Christian U. last spring as the most publicized collegian in the land, couldn't resist the offer of the Philadelphia Eagles. A $12,000 contract fetched him and thus new interest is needled into the pro league.

Sid Luckman, Columbia's super player of last year, similarly looked down his nose at pro football last winter, has also come around. The pros brandished enough money under his nose to cause him to change his mind, and he'll be in the uniform of the Chicago Bears.

Pittsburgh folks last winter were taking all bets that Marshall Goldberg would join the pro ranks this year. They thought Goldberg meant it when he said there wasn't enough money in the pro league to interest him. His father was ready to take him into a prosperous movie-house business and college coaching jobs were beckoning. But the betting now is that when the Chicago Cardinals set up camp at Duluth next week, Goldberg will be among them.

How will they go in the pro league—O'Brien, Luckman, Goldberg? Only time can answer that question. The fact that they were big-shot stars in college ranks is hardly a recommendation. Too many all-Americans were flops in the pro league where the tackling is harder, the blocking more wicked, the passing much better and football sense more in demand.

Goldberg Figures to Uphold Reputation

The man among the trio who figures best to uphold his college reputation as a great football player is Pitt's Goldberg. In the first place, he's built for it—a strapping 200-pounder with a terrific turn of speed. And because he played three years on Pitt's varsity he has been better groomed for the vicious type of play he'll find in the pro ranks. Pitt schedules rarely offered Pitt players a breather.

There is no excuse yet for the belief that O'Brien and Luckman, whose forward-passing exploits in college perhaps equalled Sammy Baugh's, will ever succeed in the pro ranks to the extent that Baugh did. The transition from campus gridirons to the professional arenas is a difficult one. The college star who makes it without any loss of luster is the exception.

O'Brien and Luckman will discover in the pro ranks what Baugh discovered and conquered. They won't get the same protection back there on their passes that they did in college, and they'll be forced to adapt themselves to it. College coaches surround their passers with three and four blockers. The pros don't. The fewer the blockers, the more men down field eligible to catch passes, the pros reason and thus the pro passers are left very much to their own resources once the ball is snapped.

Sammy Baugh has demonstrated that he could surmount that obstacle. He led the pro passers in 1937 by a wide margin, was second last season. But he had to throw a good percentage of his passes while literally running for his life. That sort of experience will be new for O'Brien and Luckman. Now they're in a different league.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, July 27.—Not that it matters, anyway—inasmuch as the Australians are a better bet to win the Davis Cup this year than the Yankees are to win the pennant—but it is going to be difficult to pick the American team which is destined to have its ears pinned back next month in the cup matches.

CONSIDINE

Unless Bobby Riggs can win the singles title at Newport, the next big tournament, he will not be handed the No. 1 singles berth on a silver platter. Not only was he routed recently by Adrian Quist, the No. 2 Australian player, but in the meanwhile he has incurred the wrath of some of the brasshats in the U. S. L. T. A., for his manner of living.

Riggs' defeat Wednesday by Frank Guernsey, an Orlando kid, can be laid partly to his recent transatlantic boat ride. But not wholly. Over a long stretch he is probably the best amateur in the country, but he's not the overpowering type of champion that Budge, Vines or, of course, Tilden were. They were odds-on choices in every tournament they entered. Riggs never will be. He has unaccountable lapses, such as last September when he was bumped out of the national singles by Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, D. C.

Writer Ranks Hunt No. 5 in U. S.

On a plane—give and take a few aces—now stand Riggs, Mako, Elwood Cooke, Don McNeill, Hunt, Wayne Sabin, Frankie Parker and Bitsy Grant. A shade under them would be Jack Kramer, Guernsey, Gardner Mulloy, Sidney Wood and perhaps Johnny Doeg. All of them, except Mako, are mediocre doubles players. The futility of trying to dip into that bunch and pick out a doubles combination that could beat the flawless team of Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist, can be appreciated by recalling that Bromwich and Quist rather easily defeated Mako and the incomparable Budge in last year's challenge round. And Budge and Mako were world champs.

As for singles, Riggs beat Quist in last year's challenge round. But though he won the Wimbledon championship, Bobby doesn't seem to be the player this year that he was last summer. And Quist, thanks to a new service, is measurably better. Bromwich beat Riggs in the 1938 cup matches in four sets, finishing the match off in 6—0, 6—2 style. No one seriously doubts that Bromwich is the world's No. 1 amateur today. He is being kept under blankets just now to keep him from going stale, but when he is unleashed he could take on two or three of our leading guys in an afternoon and whip them.

Since the outcome of the U. S.-Australia match is such a foregone conclusion that everyone is forgetting that Australia first will have to beat Cuba and then Germany for the right to challenge America for the cup, it might be sensible for our Davis Cup committee to gamble. In Gilbert Hunt it has a player who, for short periods at least, is the most brilliant shot-maker since the palmy days of Dick Williams. In baseline rallies he stands yards closer to the net than any other player in the game today. His favorite volleying position, however, is midcourt, from which he either makes a miraculous half-volley placement or misses the ball entirely. He has the best wrist in tennis, and incomparable reflexes.

Unpredictable as Dizzy Dean

Hunt is an unpredictable as Dizzy Dean, whom he resembles in many intrinsic ways, excepting formal education. He is an extraordinarily gifted mathematics scholar and teacher, but somewhere in his curious make-up is a streak of daffiness that occasionally prompts him to remove his shoes in the middle of a match, and entertain his galleries by picking up objects with his toes. This, we might add, is done with a strange faraway look in his brooding black eyes, and an air of complete detachment. But shoeless or shod, when he is hot he is the hottest thing in an otherwise cold and clammy crop of cup defenders. At his hottest he could beat even Bromwich; even Budge, we think, for Hunt makes cross-court shots that no mortal could reach. But, of course, there would be no way of guaranteeing that he'd be hot. Or even that he'd show up for the match.

Before the time comes to face the Australians some semblance of precedence might have been arrived at, by the process of eliminative tournaments. But even if there does come a definite No. 1 guy and a No. 2, and a doubles team, it will be pretty much for naught. The futility of it all, however, will not affect the players to such an extent that they will not try furiously to win a place on the team, and fight like blazes against the surge of the Australians.

But all this industry will have little to do with patriotism. They will be fighting fundamentally for their right to remain career amateurs, and stay on the cuff of the U. S. L. T. A. and the clubs that house and feed them. They will be playing, too, for 1940, when we will have to send the first of what promises to be a long series of argosies to Australia, in search of Davis' sterling birdbath.

Armstrong, Hawaii, in Semifinals

Gordon and Molinari, Both Coast Players, In 36-Hole TestToday On Baltimore Course

By Merrell W. Whittlesey
A Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Md., July 27.—Andy Szwedko, a powerful steel mill worker from Pittsburgh, was the East's hope for the national public links championship as California monopolized the play here today at Mount Pleasant by qualifying two for the semifinals as the other berth went to Hawaii's Arthur Armstrong.

Armstrong, who needs only a guitar to fit perfectly into the floor show of the Waikiki Night Club a few miles from the course, was the idol of the fairways as the Baltimore fans took to the 21-year-old shipping clerk from Honolulu, runner-up, in this tournament four years ago.

He just wore his opponents down with par golf in the morning against Steve Doctor and in the afternoon against Michael Cestone, a braggadocio mail man from Mont Clair, N. J., winning both matches, 3 and 2.

California, apparently the birthplace of public links champions, sent 22-year-old Phillip Gordon, insurance office clerk, and Jim Molinari, scout car cop, into tomorrow's 36-hole tests.

Gordon, who ousted Washington's Claude Rippy in the first-round play two years ago, didn't even get a good workout, as he required only 28 holes to win his two matches. Ken Peterson, Dayton, Ohio, was a 5 and 4 first-round victim, and Roy Dolce, who qualified via the playoff, and is No. 13 in the tournament, went out by the safe margin in the fourth round, both to one over par golf.

Molinari, a 6-foot-3 policeman, who bends away over when hitting a tee shot and is nearly double in his awkward putting stance, scored 6 and 4 over Johnny Krisko, of Dayton, in the morning third round, second biggest margin of the tourney, and then accounted for Steve Furgol, Utica, N. Y., in the afternoon.

Furgol, who hits the ball with an accent on his right side, due to a broken left arm that failed to mend properly, and thus hooks all his irons, let one get away on the seventeenth hole, and lost, 2 and 1. Three down and four to play, he took advantage of two mistakes by Molinari on the fifteenth and sixteenth, but couldn't make the grade.

Szwedko, who reached the semifinals on a previous occasion, took care of 16-year-old Carl Dezern in the morning, 3 and 2, and then stopped Louis Cyr's second straight march to the final round by a 3 and 2 count. He was two and four over for the respective rounds, but he didn't have to do any better as his opponents were well over par. Cyr reached the fourth round by ousting the sentimental favorite, Philadelphia's 54-year-old city champion, George Bradley.

Molinari's three under par round against Krisko was the first real

Clint Brown Plays In 39th Game This Season; Foxx Homers

By International News Service

Boston, July 27.—With Clint Brown, Chicago relief ace, participating in his thirty-ninth game of the season, the White Sox came from the rear to defeat the Boston Red Sox, 12 to 7.

C. BROWN

Brown was credited with the victory after having come to the mound with one out and the bases filled in the sixth inning. He fanned Joe Cronin and retired Vosmik and stopped the Red Sox without a run or hit the rest of the way.

Luke Appling paced the Chicago attack with four singles. The White Sox smashed out 15 hits off Woody Rich, Denny Galehouse and Emerson Dickman. Galehouse was the losing hurler.

Jimmy Foxx blasted his twenty-fourth homer of the year with no one on in the opening inning.

Tigers Defeat Nats, 8-1; Masterson Routed

Paul Trout Gives Locals 5 Hits; Giuliani Helps Griffs Lose By Committing Two Costly Errors

By Shirley Povich.

Trouble in the ugly form of three-base hits beset young Walter Masterson early yesterday afternoon and he lasted only two and a fraction innings against the Detroit Tigers who extracted an 8-1 victory from the Nats. Nineteen-year-old Masterson pitched triples, chiefly, and staked the Tigers to a 7-0 lead before he was mercifully withdrawn from the arena.

Another reason why the Tigers won the ball game was a young man named Paul (Dizzy) Trout, late of the American Association, who turned in a five-hit pitching job against the Nats. A stocky right-hander, Trout pitched no-hit ball after the fifth inning.

Before Alex Alexandra could be rushed into the ball game in the third inning to do the brilliant relief job that he did, the Tigers had rushed three runs across the plate in the first inning and four more in the third. They were dealing mainly in three-baggers which were swatted by four of their cast—McCoy, Greenberg, McCoskey and Tebbetts.

Two errors by Catcher Tony Giuliani didn't help the Nats either inasmuch as they figured directly and indirectly in four of the Tigers' runs, but there was nothing tainted about the Tigers' three-baggers, two of which collided with the fences.

Too late, Alexandra made his appearance. After halting a Detroit uprising in the third inning by fanning Croucher with a man on third base, the Venezuelan pitched three-hit ball in the last 6⅓ innings. He yielded a single run in the fourth inning, and then turned in five consecutive scoreless sessions.

Six of their nine hits the Tigers

Bob Feller Hurls For Tribe Today Against Griffmen

The Nats will be treated to another bit of Bob Feller's specialty on the mound for Cleveland today at Griffith Stadium when they open a three-game series with the Indians. Ken Chase will start for Washington.

FELLER

Scheduled to start against Philadelphia in Shibe Park yesterday, the Cleveland pitching ace was given a rest by rain which forced cancellation of the game. Washington will get the honor, and Bobby will have the pleasure of performing for a Ladies' Day crowd.

In his last appearance against the Nats—in Cleveland—Feller allowed Washington to push over two runs in the first inning and then shut them out for eight innings to win, 11-to-2.

Sandlotters To Have Hand In 'Stone Day'

National Federation Tourney Final Will Precede Nat Game

The National Federation of Amateur Baseball final championship game will replace the first half of the Detroit-Washington doubleheader scheduled for the "Johnny Stone Day" program September 17, it was announced yesterday.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, said the amateur play-off game had been scheduel prior to the game with the Tigers honoring Stone for his 11 years of service with Detroit and Washington.

The National Federation game will start at 1 p. m., and the Washington-Detroit game will follow at 3 p. m. There is Nation-wide interest in the amateur play-off, and the fans will be treated to a doubleheader just the same.

Ruled out of baseball by illness, Johnny will be on hand for the game, and Griffith and Owner Walter O. Briggs, of the Detroit Club, will present him with a check in appreciation of his service with their teams. The Nats-Tigers game, originally scheduled for the affair, will be played the following day—Monday.

Grant, McNeill, Parker Score; Hunt, Parker Paired Today

By the Associated Press.

Sea Bright N. J., July 27.—J. Gilbert Hunt, Washington's unpredictable and often brilliant tennis player, continued his upset march in the fifty-second Sea Bright invitation tournament here this afternoon and advanced with two seeded stars—Frankie Parker and Bitsy Grant—and unseeded Don McNeill into the semifinal round.

Hunt, 21-year-old George Washington University student and the country's ninth ranking player, eliminated Frank Guernsey, jr., upset conqueror of Bobby Riggs in the third round, 7—5, 7—5, and preserved his record of not having lost a set.

Hunt displayed too much experience for the two-time intercollegiate champion from Rice Institute and repeatedly drew him out of position with drop shots intermingled with sweeping placements to the corners. Both players were over-cautious and seldom rushed to the net to attempt a shot.

With his new forehand drive a valuable weapon, Parker turned back Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg., 6—4, 7—5, and Grant, by the identical score, whipped Jack Kramer, 17-year-old Montebello (Calif.) schoolboy. McNeill posted a 6—3, 13—11 win over former National Champion John Hope Doeg.

Rain Slows Play

With rain soaking down the parched grass courts, play in all divisions was conducted under adverse conditions that saw the contestants sliding around the turf and vainly trying to control a sodden ball.

Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrew Fabyan, internationalists, who did not elect to compete in singles, gained the women's doubles final by beating the Philadelphia pair of Cecile Bowes and Edith Clark, 6—0, 6—). Their final opponents will be Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of New York, and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, who scored a surprising 6—4, 6—1 triumph over the Californians, Dorothy Tay Bundy and Dorothy Workman.

Tomorrow's matches will be highlighted by the semifinal contests pairing Parker against Hunt and Grant against McNeill.

Net Sallies Fail

Sabin, seeded seventh in the draw, carried the battle to Parker, who was rated two notches higher, but the 23-year-old Pasadena (Calif.) sharpshooter was not found wanting. Realizing he was no match for the steady Parker in a baseline test, Sabin stormed the net only to find Parker returning his best shots and frequently steaming over passing shots that left him helpless at the barrier.

With the score tied 4-all in the first set, Parker broke Sabin's service in a long game and held his own to run out the set. It was the same story in the second set, the break again coming in the ninth game. Sabin, undaunted, evened matters by crashing through Parker's delivery, but found himself outstroked in the eleventh and twelfth games.

Kramer, who upset Elwood Cooke in the third round, found his smashing game to no avail because of the weight of the wet ball. Grant simply kept the ball in play and let his younger opponent fall into errors. In the second set, when both players donned spiked shoes, Kramer moved into 4-1 advantage, but lacked the control to sustain it.

McNeill's victory over Doeg came as no surprise, as the French champion split even in a foreign tour in six matches with Baron Gottfried von Cramm. The Oklahoman ran out the first set with the loss of three games. Doeg, who has a penchant for long-drawn-out sets because few players are able to break his powerful service, made a game bid for the second set. He carried it to 24 games before his faltering ground strokes betrayed him against the sure shooting of McNeill.

The Wimbledon champions, Cooke and Riggs, paced the field into the semifinal round of the men's doubles. They turned back Guernsey and Russel Bobbitt, of Atlanta, 6—1, 5—7, 6—1.

Parker and McNeill, seeded behind the Cooke-Riggs duo, eliminated Kramer and Welby Van Horn, a felow Californian, 6—1, 6—4, while Sabin and Gene Mako, the third seeded combine, won a hard earned 3—6, 6—3, 6—3 triumph over Hunt and Ernest Sutter, of New Orleans.

Finishing their match in a driving rain, the Australian team of Adrian Quist and Jack Crawford was beaten by Doeg and Gardner Mulloy, of Coral Gables, Fla. The scores were 3—6, 9—7, 6—4.

Cumberland to Present Steeplechasing for First Time

Race Course Will Open On August 8

Merry-Go-Round Layout 3-8 of Mile Long; Third Event On Each Day's Card

By the Associated Press

Cumberland, Md., July 27.—Cumberland's new "merry-go-round" course will present steeplechasing to race fans for the first time next month.

The course, to be used first at the August 8-19 meet, is laid out completely in the half-mile track infield. It is approximately ⅜ mile long, so the steeplechasers will cover it about five times t each 2-mile event.

The five jumps will be covered by each racer five times, more or less, depending on whether he finishes. The track management said the advantage of having the course in the infie' was that spectators will have a close-up view of all the action in the race.

Four of the jumps will be over brush, one over water. Two brush jumps will be in the backstretch and two in the homestretch, with the water jump directly in front of the grandstand. This will be lined with tar paper instead of concrete. The paper will keep the water from leaking out and avoid serious injury to horses which may fall in.

George A. McCann, who designed and supervised the jumps at Delaware Park, near Wilmington, and at Roland Park, near Pittsburgh, designed the Cumberland course.

The steeplechase will be the third race on each day's program, and there will be eight instead of seven races, as in the past.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GRAND WALTZ, $32.20, $10.40, $8.20; TIME O' WAR, $4.10, $2.90; FAIR HAIRED, $3.70.

GRAND WALTZ, well up in the early running, rallied to wear the pacemaker down entering the homestretch, was kept under pressure and held TIME O' WAR safe at the end. The latter, away poorly, worked his way between horses to offer contention at the turn, made a stout bid midway of the homestretch, but weakened nearing the close from his early efforts. FAIR HAIRED set a good pace, but failed to withstand the first two. MAMIE'S LAD came gamely in the final drive. OSOFREE raced evenly. KIN MAG could not reach a forward position. DUNFORT weakened after a half mile. GROUCHY was outrun. LADY MOWLEE had no mishaps.

SECOND RACE—Bel Air course. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate in chute. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:35. Off 2:38. Winner, N. J. Fillman's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ELEGANT DAME, $76.80, $24.50, $15.60; SAIL BY, $9.00, $5.20; HANDLEY, $4.00.

ELEGANT DAME, going in her best form, gained a short lead early, but was unable to get clear, rallied gamely to a hard drive and outstayed SAIL BY approaching the finish. The latter was a stout contender from the start, rallied gamely in the closing stages and fought it out courageously. HANDLEY badly messed about in the early racing, finished stoutly in the last quarter mile. PRETTY PAL worked her way forward gradually after meeting with interference after the start. HONEYMAID failed to go with the leaders and weakened. DOLLED UP could not stay. NURSERY broke poorly and was never dangerous. BURSTING propped after breaking forwardly. WHITE SWEETS had no speed.

Daily Double, Grand Waltz and Elegant Dame, Paid $831.50.

THIRD RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $500; allowances. The Prospect Hill Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:00. Off 3:05½. Winner, T. T. Mott's ch. g. (7), by Pick of the Circus—Pop Cane. Trained by Judy Johnson. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 5:19. (19 jumps.)

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRATTLER, $3.90, $3.10, $2.70; DUN LUCKY, $4.10, $3.20; ITSAMAID, $2.50.

PRATTLER, away badly and far out of contention for the first mile, gained steadily to enter contention nearing the fourteenth fence, finished determinedly under punishment while coming wide in the final drive and in a stout finish was up in the last strides. DUN LUCKY, saved back of the pacemaker for 1½ miles, moved to the front when ready, stalled off a stout effort from ITSAMAID and fought it out gamely. His rider lost his right stirrup iron and could not do his mount full justice. ITSAMAID, going off the pace, made a stout challenge at the fourteenth fence, then weakened. JUSTA BUD tired after a mile. QUAKERSTREET quit badly when causing. TAM O' SHANTER was away badly and lost rider at the second jump. BAD HARVEY fell at the same fence.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:30. Off 3:40. Winner, L. C. Leith's br. f. (4), by Milkman—Ex Ray. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $276; second, $76; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46, 1:11 2-5, 1:26.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MILRAY, $85.60, $22.00, $7.80; WAY OUT, $4.10, $2.90; SCOUTALLOW, $3.10.

MILRAY, outrun for five furlongs, worked her way to the leaders nearing the homestretch, won WAY OUT down inside the final furlong and was under severe pressure at the end. WAY OUT set a good pace, stalled off stout contention from COLONY and fought it out gamely. SCOUTALLOW was well up from the beginning, stayed around in the late stages and held on well while finishing lame. COLONY forced a steady pace after losing command, but tired badly in the stretch run. WORTHOWNING finished with good energy. GOANTELL could not threaten. FIRE MOUNTAIN stopped. DUNBANE broke down and was pulled up.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:06. Off 4:12. Winner, H. M. Gilbert's dk. br. f. ENGLE'S LAD	(Mills)	115	10	9	9¹	10	10	10	10	19.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FACULTY, $37.10, $14.80, $11.80; PRAIRIE MAN, $7.80, $3.50; BUBBLEWORTH, $3.20.

FACULTY moved up fast after going five furlongs to reach the leaders, went to the front when straightened into the homestretch, then held on stubbornly to outstay PRAIRIE MAN. The latter, lacking early speed, settled in stride after five furlongs and finished full of run in the closing drive. BUBBLEWORTH was close up from the start, made strong challenge and held on gamely. ALICE DODGE, allowed to drop back made strong challenge and held on gamely. MARTHA'S QUEEN was unable to menace. WALLI quit badly. AUTUMN ECHO can do better.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. The Capitol Limited. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:40. Off 4:42½. Winner, Bernard Bondi's b. (8), by Abomasus—Petty Cash. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:18 2-5, 1:21 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $10.10, $4.60, $3.60; MISS DOLLY KAY, $6.30, $4.00; NAY NAY, $4.70.

SMALL CHANGE was hurried to the front, met a stout effort from GROUCHNEUR nearing the final turn, saved ground to draw clear midway of the homestretch, but had to be kept under stout urging to the end. MISS DOLLY KAY, away in a tangle and in trouble at the first turn, improved her position swiftly on the outside, then finished wearing the winner down at the close. NAY NAY was in the first flight all the way and held on well. SCHLEY BUCK made up ground steadily. LADY BUCK was done after racing forwardly for five furlongs. VERITAS raced evenly. GROUCHNEUR quit badly. LULA KHAYYAM showed early foot. MABEL BEYOND pulled up lame.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:16. Off 5:14½. Winner, W. Boyle's b. f. (4), by Scout—Raynham Rose. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $276; second, $76; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:15, 1:41 3-5.

GOLD D'OR	(Vassell)	113	10	10	Wheeled					10.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOUT ROSE, $6.00, $4.20, $3.80; BELLTHORN, $13.80, $8.00; TROSTAR, $5.00.

SCOUT ROSE, permitted to settle in stride after lacking early speed, improved her position on the outside when moving forward, was CLYMENE'S undoing at the homestretch, then came out gradually. BELLTHORN had good speed while setting the pace, was unable to shake off CLYMENE, but contended courageously to the finish. TROSTAR finished with good speed while saving ground in the late stages. CLYMENE was used up racing with BELLTHORN and failed to stay after setting that short lead. JACAM had no excuses. PRINCE PETTIE crowded over and caused some grounding after the start. He weakened early. NATIONAL was outrun and lost ground. MAD DASH showed nothing.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:41. Off 5:43¼. Winner, A. L. Leith's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE SWAGMAN, $8.80, $3.10, $2.70; PENCADER, $3.50, $3.10; CHAMPTLEURY, $4.20.

THE SWAGMAN moved up strongly after going five furlongs, reached the lead at the final turn, saved ground and rallied to a hard drive approaching the finish. PENCADER went in his best form, was a stout contender in the early racing and fought it out stoutly while under severe punishment. CHAMPTLEURY was prominent from the beginning and held on determinedly when placed to a hard drive. FLEET WIND, shuffled back early, closed with good speed when clear. LIGHT ACTION finished tamely. ABBOTT'S LAST tired after six furlongs. BRIGHT LIGHT broke poorly, was jostled off his feet then flattened out. EARLY CALL fell back when his rider lost his stirrup irons.

Bordagaray's Double in 11th Helps Reds Beat Bees Twice

Cincinnati Wins Twice, 6-1 and 9-8

Craft Hits Tenth Homer in First Game; McCormick Hits 16th in Final

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, July 27.—Frenchy Bordagaray knocked the fat out of the fire in the eleventh inning of the nightcap today to give Cincinnati both pieces of a double-header with the Boston Bees. The scores were 6 to 1 and 9 to 8.

Harry Craft hit his ninth homer in the first game. Frank McCormick got his sixteenth in the second and Max West and Al Simmons added their tenth and fifth, respectively. McCormick got a total of five hits in ten tries and scored five runs.

Ties Score in Ninth

The Reds' infield and pitching went to the dogs in the second and the fighting Bees tied it at 8-all in the ninth on two singles and a double by Max West.

McCormick led off the Reds' eleventh with a double. Hershberger fouled out. Wally Berger was purposely passed to get at Bordagaray, who slapped out a single to the satisfaction of the capacity ladies' day crowd.

Both teams were ragged afield, the Bees making three errors and the Reds the unheard-of total of five.

Derringer Triumph

The first game was a typical Paul Derringer victory, with the big Kentuckian giving never a walk. He allowed eight hits but only one run.

Deacon Danny Macfayden did almost as well, with Craft's homer accounting for the only Red run until the eighth. Then Werber walked, was sacrificed to second, and came in on Gamble's single. McCormick and Lombardi singled and Errickson went in. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and after Craft had fouled out, Dongiovanni doubled and Myers singled for five runs.

Cubs Beat Dodgers, 3-1, Behind Bill Lee

Chicago, July 27.—Even Manager Leo Durocher's thirty-third birthday wasn't inventive enough to pull the Dodgers over the Chicago Cubs today and the invaders lost, 3 to 1, as the Cubs evened the series at two games apiece.

Big Bill Lee pitched a five-hit job to rack up his eleventh game of the season, and Durocher's triple was the lustiest blow the Dodgers struck.

The Cubs scored twice in the fourth off Tot Pressnell, who started, and their last run came in the eighth off relief pitcher Red Evans.

The Dodgers' lone tally came in the sixth on singles by Hudson, Walker, who was making his debut as a Dodger, and Camilli.

Pinch Homer, Bases Loaded, Beats Giants

Padgett Wins Game For Cardinals, 9-4, With Blow in 7th

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 27.—Pinch Hitter Don Padgett smashed out a home run with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 9-4 victory over the New York Giants today. That gave the Red Birds the series by two to one.

Cliff Melton was the losing pitcher, the defeat being his fourth straight and his tenth for the season. He has won five others.

Curt Davis, aiding his own cause with two hits and two runs batted in, was credited with his thirteenth win of the year, though needing help from Bob Bowman.

Phils End 7-Game Losing Streak, Win, 9-8

By International News Service

Pittsburgh, July 27.—The Philadelphia Phillies today closed their series with the Pirates by scoring a 9-to-8 victory to end a losing streak that had carried through seven games.

The Phillies piled up a five-run edge with one run in the third and two apiece in the fourth and fifth, knocking Bob Klinger out of the box. But the Pirates got to Max Butcher in the sixth and before they were through they had made seven runs and Butcher was no longer around.

65 Marlin Boated At Ocean City; New Record Set

A new world's record marlin catch was pulled in yesterday at Ocean City, Md., when 65 white marlin were boated in what turned out to be the realization of a fisherman's dream.

It was the second time in ten days the port record has been broken. A record of 38 for one day was set last year, raised to 40 ten days ago and shattered yesterday by the marlin fleet of about 30 boats.

The Lev-Lou, skippered by Capt. Lev Raymond, caught five, had nine on and 26 strikes—"something anglers dream about all their lives," a veteran fisherman said after the haul.

Capt. Chester Gray, on the Hilda, had five on, but threw four back, because they were branded with Bureau of Fisheries tags—meaning their habits and physiology are under governmental observation.

McCoy Hurt In Free-for-All At Arena

Nanjo Singh's "cobra deathlock" defeated Jim Clinstock in 17 minutes last night at Turner's Arena, but was overshadowed by a melee featuring the general public versus Bibber McCoy in a nonscheduled match, which ended with Bibber retreating into the dressing room, a 3-inch gash in his head.

After bouncing a wrestling gentleman known only as Raoul on his ear and winning an unpopular decision in 12 minutes, Bibber was mobbed as he came out of the ring.

Bibber seized a spectator who was heckling him and made a nasty face at him. Then the lights went out for Bibber as someone hit him very hard on the head with a blunt instrument. When Bibber came around he claimed it was a cop, and issued a challenge to all cops in the place, but luckily they had gone home. A doctor bandaged Bibber's head.

A woman spectator received a sprained foot in the scramble and was treated by the house physician. McCoy's wound was not thought to be serious. A goodly portion of the 900 spectators were involved in the fracas.

In the preliminaries, Rudy Strongberg defeated Hank Metheny in 17 minutes with a scissors; Red Ryan beat Chief Chewaki with a body slam, and Pete Managoff drew with Maurice LaChappelle.

Motorcycle Races Slated Tonight

Promising to avoid the confusion that occurred when only seven starters showed up for the midget auto racing debut Tuesday night, Promoter Jimmy Frattone yesterday announced that "at least 18" motorcycle speedsters will appear at the Capital Speedway, New York avenue and Bladensburg road northeast, when motorcycle racing makes its debut.

RRiders from New York, Philadelphia, Paterson, N. J., and Chicago will enter the 16 events beginning at 8:30 p. m.

Miss Gestring Loses National Diving Crown

Helen Crlenkovich Victor at Des Moines; Dorothy Evans Fourth In 100-Meter Swim

By the United Press.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 27.—Helen Crlenkovich, 18-year-old San Francisco, Calif., diving star, late today won the national 3-meter springboard diving title from Marjorie Gestring, 16, Los Angeles, Calif.

Judges at the Women's National A. A. U. swimming meet, which opened today, gave Miss Crlenkovich 135.89 points to 133.97 for the former champion.

In capturing the title, Miss Crlenkovich achieved a goal she set in the 1935 A. A. U. meet when she placed second to Miss Gestring. She already holds the national indoor 3-meter crown.

The new champion, who works nights as a cashier at a San Francisco hotel and spends her days taking a pre-legal college course, exhibited nearly perfect form to clinch the title.

Miss Gestring, who won the 3-meter Olympic championship in 1936, was visibly disappointed by her close defeat, but was among the first to congratulate her conqueror when the results were announced.

Barbara Cook, Jeffersonville, Ind., placed third with 104.02 points.

Esther Williams, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, won the 100-meter free style championship, swimming the distance in 1:09. Her time was considerably slower than the record of 1:06.8, set by Helene Madison, former Washington A. C. star, in 1932.

The defending A. A. U. champion, Virginia Hopkins, a teammate of Miss Williams, finished sixth and last. Miss Williams turned in a faster time, 1:08.5 in the semifinals.

Doris Brennan, Providence, R. I., came in a close second. Other finalists, in the order they finished, were Dorothy Leonard, Worcester, Mass.; Dorothy Evans, of Philadelphia and Washington; Helena Tomska, Detroit, Mich., and Miss Hopkins. Two Multnomah Club entrants from Portland, Oreg.—Nancy Lewis and Brenda Helser—failed to qualify.

Mary Ryan, 14, swimming for the Lakeside Civic Club of Louisville, Ky., took the 1-mile free style title with a time of 24:12.8. The national record of 23:11.5 is held by Mrs. Katherine Rawls Thompson, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who is not competing because of illness.

Nancy Merki, of the Multnomah Club, trailed close behind Miss Ryan, being clocked at 24:36.8. The third-place winner, Helen Rains, Women's Swimming Association, New York, was timed in 25:18.2. Mary Ann Walts, Louisville, was fourth, and Lois Wenzel, Wilmette, fifth.

Herndon A. C. Defeats Lou Blue's Team, 10-6

Pushing over five runs in the ninth inning, the Herdon (Va.) nine last night defeated Lou Blue's Baseball School in a well played game at Ballston Stadium, 10 to 6.

Garvey started for Herndon, but was relieved by McDaniels, the winning pitcher. Otis Printz was charged with the loss.

Talent Search Wears Down Turner-Ahearn

All Tired Out After Signing Mann, Dudas, Now Hunt More Heavies

Relaxing after the strenuous task of signing up Nathan Mann and Steve Dudas for Washington's first noteworthy heavyweight fight in several years, Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn yesterday prepared for the search for more talent to make it an "all-heavyweight" night August 7 at Griffith Stadium.

Turner has announced that it will be a card of the big guns of boxing, but the problem of finding enough of the beefy gentlemen to fill in the preliminary spots probably will bring him more headaches than the Mann-Dudas coup. Baltimore's Al Lohman and Maynard Daniels, Marine Reserve fighter, probably will be solicited for an appearance.

Mann, 24-year-old New Haven fighter, is training at Madam Beys' camp in New Jersey, the 25-year-old Dudas' home State. Steve is training at Stillman's gym in New York under the eyes of his new managers, Joe Gould and Jimmy Braddock.

Ahearn conceived new honors for Mann and Dudas yesterday with the announcement that Joe Jacobs is putting both boys on his "understudy" list for Bob Pastor—the idea being that if Pastor meets with any dire accident before stepping into the ring at Detroit with Joe—Champion Joe Louis—in September he can call on Mann or Dudas to do the job. Mann holds the distinction of remaining with Louis three rounds in 1938.

John Cobb to Seek New Speed Record

London, July 27 (AP).—John Cobb, speed king, hopes to do 6 miles a minute on the Bonneville salt flats in Utah next month.

"I feel fairly confident that with the modification made to my car I shall be able to reach a sped of at least 6 miles a minute," he said today.

Nats Call in Loane; Welaj to Springfield

Bob Loane, a .331-hitting outfielder from the Nats' Springfield Club, of the Eastern League, was summoned to the Washington club yesterday coincident with the departure of Outfielder Johnny Welaj to Springfield.

A husky right-handed hitter, Loane has been the property of the Nats for several years and in 1936 was given a one-day tryout by the Washington Club. He was one of the few players retained by the Nats when Clark Griffith sold the Chattanooga Club to Joe Engel.

At Springfield this season, Loane led the league in hitting for three months and has swatted 11 home runs in addition to a generous sprinkling of doubles and triples.

"I have visioned Loane as a Washington outfielder for several years," said Griffith yesterday, "but I did not want to take him from Springfield which is fighting for the Eastern League lead. He can go and get a fly ball and he'll have the best throwing arm of any Washington outfielder."

Welaj, who came to the Nats from Trenton and won an outfield job with his impressive showing in the South, failed to add power to the Nats' attack. He batted only .280 for 43 games. He will be given another trial in Florida next spring.

The Nats' pitching staff, already numbering only seven, was further depleted yesterday when Joe Haynes joined Harry Kelley in the Georgetown Hospital. Haynes will undergo the removal of his tonsils today. Kelley is being hospitalized for an inflamed knee.

Hurls No-Hitter

Torres Gives 2 Hits As Charlotte Wins, 10-1

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 27.—Behind the two-hit pitching of Gil Torres, Charlotte walloped Winston-Salem, 20-1, here tonight in the Piedmont eLague. Centerfielder Ferrell, a relative of the Nats' catcher, Rick Ferrell, led the Charlotte attack with four hits in as many trips.

Señor Fernando
LÓPEZ PORTA
of Havana, Cuba, says
"Naturally, I prefer a genuine Havana cigar. I have rarely smoked anything else. Therefore, you can imagine my pleasant surprise, on tasting your new Blended-with-Havana WHITE OWL, to have found the unmistakable full-flavored richness I like so well."
J. López Porta
In Havana they like the taste of this brand new Blended-with-Havana cigar

New INVINCIBLE
Your choice of 2 shapes
Another "10¢" feature—now yours for 5¢ . . . a choice of shapes to suit your smoking taste. A long, trim, new Invincible. And a rich, full-bodied, new Club House shape. You get the same amount of tobacco—the same mild blend in either one—only the shape varies.
5¢
New CLUB HOUSE
BLENDED with HAVANA
New WHITE OWL

AFTER we'd perfected our new Havana blend, we wanted to test it—to make sure it had the true Havana taste. That's why we took it all the way to Cuba. For where but Havana itself would smokers know better the true flavor of Havana tobacco? We selected prominent Cubans—real connoisseurs of cigars . . . gave them some of the new White Owls to smoke. Without exception, they all praised the rich Havana flavor of this new cigar.

It's an old trick to put a mere dash of Havana in a cigar and say it's "Blended-with-Havana." But there is no trick about this cigar. It has a generous helping of Havana—your taste will tell you. It's a really good grade, too. Maybe this sounds unbelievable for a 5¢ cigar. Well, we are America's largest buyers of Havana tobacco and we know what we are talking about. Fact is, it's the same type Havana tobacco that is used in popular cigars costing 10¢ and more. Try one of these new cigars today.

Erny Pinckert, Johnston Sign With Redskins

Contracts Nos. 32 And 33 Put in Safe; Edwards Still Out

Jack Espey, business manager of the Redskins, put contracts Nos. 32 and 33 in the safe last night as he announced the signing of Jimmy Johnston, Washington University halfback, and the veteran Erny Pinckert.

Johnston, who has been voted into the All-Star game in Chicago on August 31, was an All-Pacific Coast selection last year. Jimmy is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 190 pounds.

Pinckert, one of the outstanding blocking backs in the National Professional League, is one of two original members of the team. Turk Edwards, who as yet has not signed his contract, is the other. They have been with the team for seven years.

Johnston's signing is the tenth draftee that has come to terms with the club, out of a possible 15.

The Redskins will entrain for Spokane next Wednesday, where they will open practice on August 6. After playing an Intra-squad game on August 23, they will play the Pacific Coast All Stars on August 28 in San Francisco and then play an exhibition in Los Angeles on September 4. From there they move to Boston for another exhibition against the Eastern All-Stars on September 11. The team will return to Washington on September 12.

The Redskins will play their first league game on September 17 in Philadelphia and then open here at Griffith Stadium against the New York Giants on October 1.

Great Britain May Discontinue U. S. Polo Matches

London, July 27 (AP).—British polo authorities estimated today their team lost 24,000 pounds sterling or around $112,000 in losing to the United States in the international series at Meadow Brook and decided the possibility of future trips to America are "definitely remote."

The officials gave three reasons for the loss; poor showing of their team, slump in gate receipts both in California where the team trained and at Meadow Brook, and the low prices paid for British ponies after the international series.

Though this is the first time the team has lost money in the United States, the reserve fund of the Hurlingham Club is said to be only half of this year's loss. The remainder will be paid by polo enthusiasts who guaranteed the expenses.

Lorton Nine Loses 15-Inning Game, 8-6

After tying the score with a five-run rally in the eighth inning, the Lorton Blues lost a 15-inning game to Berwyn A. C., 8-6, at Lorton, Va. Berwyn scored in the eleventh, the score was tied by Lorton again in their half, but Berwyn pushed over the winning runs in the fifteenth. Lebola struck out 11 men for the Blues.

Greyhound Sets New Trot Mark At Old Orchard

By the Associated Press

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 27. Greyhound, 1.55½, world's champion trotter, breezed over the kite-shaped mile track here today in an exhibition race against time in 1.57½, lowering the track trotting record of 2.01, which he himself set four years ago. Under "a mild drive" by Sep Palin, the gray gelding's fractional times were 0.29 for the quarter, 0.59 at the half and 1.28 for the three-quarters.

Open Diving Meet Is Set For Monday

Entries for the men's open diving meet to be held Monday night at the Airport Pool are being accepted by Hardy Pearce, pool manager. It is the annual airport event of this kind sanctioned by the A. A. U.

Jimmy Russell, crack Baltimore driver who was forced to withdraw from the meet two weeks ago, entered to defend the laurels he won here last year. Keen competition is promised Russell and other out-of-town entrants by Bill Tarbett, the local ace who is in excellent form now.

Tarbett won the competition at East Potomac Pool this week, as well as first honors in the combined swimming and diving meet at the Airport Pool on July 17.

All entry blanks must be sent to Pearce by midnight Saturday. The entry fee is 25 cents. Contestants must be registered with the A. A.U.

Mississippi Girl Wins Tennis Title

Milwaukee, July 27 (AP).—Frances Grossnickle, comely young star from Columbus, Miss., captured the Western Junior Girls' tennis title by defeating Marion Woolhiser, of Winnetka, Ill., in the finals today, 7—5, 6—3.

Miss Woolhiser yesterday eliminated the defending champion, Mary Lou Beyer, of Detroit, in an upset victory.

Muriel Magnusson, of Minneapolis, retained her championship in the girls class (15 years and younger) which she won last year, with a clear-cut win over Beverly Pawlak, also of Minneapolis, 6—1, 6—1.

Veterans Advance In N. C. Golf Play

Asheville, N. C., July 27 (AP).—A trio of experienced campaigners and a 15-year-old youngster today advanced to semifinals of the women's invitation links tournament at the Biltmore Forest Country Club.

Medalist Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, Ga., and Jane Cothran, veteran Greenville, S. C., star, registered one-sided second round decisions, but Mrs. Alberta Neblett, of New Orleans, and little Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., won only after 17 holes of strenuous competition.

Bryant A. C. Pitcher Wins 2 Games, 9-6, 8-2

Here's a good tip for the major leagues to be on the lookout for in 1945—Bill Grossaerth pitched both ends of a double-header, 18 innings, yesterday for the Bryant A. C., a team of juniors, against the Bon barbers and won, 9-6, 8-2, at the Reservoir diamond.

The Bryant nine is seeking games with other junior teams. Call Dupont 0048.

Roosevelt Pitcher Hurls No-Hit Contest

A no-hit, no-run game was claimed yesterday by Alvin Oremland after his 1-0 victory over Bureua of Standards for the Roosevelt Boys Club in a District Recreation Department softball game at Roosevelt Stadium. Oremland struck out eight men, four in succession, for his second consecutive victory.

Man of the Month

By Walter Johnson.

Alex Alexandra was charged with neither a defeat nor a victory yesterday but he was the most potent performer for the Nats in their 8-1 loss to the Tigers and merits the chief award in the Man of the Month contest. Ten points were distributed as follows:

To Alexandra, four points, because he stopped a Detroit rally as a relief pitcher in the third inning and then pitched three-hit ball to the finish, shutting out the Tigers after the fourth.

To Cecil Travis, three points, because he contributed a two-bagger to the Nats' five-hit attack and played a spectacular game defensively.

To Mickey Vernon, three points, because he saved the Nats from a shut-out by opening the third inning with a triple against the center field wall. The totals:

Bill Ackerman's Column

Frank Edwards, fishing with Capt. Lawrence Rye on the Commodore off Ocean City on Tuesday, had a big fish on for six hours and ten minutes, that was thought by all on board to be a blue marlin. The jumps, up to the time the hook pulled out, were so far off, that there was no way of being sure. The one fact, generally agreed upon, was that the head of this fish was larger than that of a marlin, and if this is true it could only have been a broadbill swordfish.

ACKERMAN

That the big fish are out there, and in greater numbers than we have known since the inception of the big game fishing five years ago when the inlet blew through at Ocean City, there is no doubt. In one day's fishing alone, in the tide-rips north and east of Winter Quarter Light Vessel, there were more than a half-dozen big makos hooked, while large bluefin tuna have been consistently cleaning the rigs of marlin fishermen.

Further off, and with any run of fairly settled weather many of the boats are going to be found making the long trip to blue water, the sea is fairly alive with schooled fish. Feeding on them are makos, the greatest distance jumper of all sport fishes, black tip sharks until one wonders where they all come from, and big long-finned or Pacific albacore and tuna.

There is little need for local anglers to go to the Jersey Coast this summer to get them, when they are to be had so close to home and in numbers comparable in every way to to those found on the famous tuna ridges between Beach Haven and Brielle. At Ocean City you are in them almost before you are out of sight of the inlet.

We can't understand why some anglers prefer tuna when so many of the flashy-fighting white marlin are around, but many do. So we venture the guess that it will not be long before the boats start chumming for them, or use baits they will take far more often than the squid—the usual marlin bait, that is often dragged across the rolling backs without attracting the slightest attention.

The fight of the tuna, above school size—and most of those taken this year have been far above the average school size of 30 pounds—is a long-drawn-out affair. When the fish is fairly hooked the combat isn't shortened much by a full-set drag for the size line being used. Just a question of time and work, it's well worth while at any time the white marlin aren't around.

Small sailfish are again being netted, which isn't anything new, because it has happened for the last several seasons. But the first large one ever taken on a rod and reel was caught on Capt. Jim Whaley's Em-Pries II last August.

What is out of the ordinary about the few caught this week is that Capt. Levaymond got possession of one weighing but 6 ounces and turned it over to Al Pflueger, of Miami, who is mounting it for this lucky fisherman. Now to those not in the know, this might seem hardly out of the normal course of events—at the best, just another small job for his great plant in Miami. But, when you consider that he himself hasn't such a specimen in his Marine Museum in Miami which ranks second only to the American Museum of Natural History in New York, and that all the specimens of this fine sport fish ever taken that were so small can almost be counted on the fingers of one hand, then the magnitude of such a gift can begin, in a way, to be approximated.

That we appreciate this most remarkable token goes without saying, and when it arrives we hope it will be possible to display this tiny Istiophorous Americanus so that everyone can enjoy it with us.

For the past several weeks boats fishing out of Chincoteague have been reporting catches of white marlin, particularly Capt. John Cass, of Miami, who was chartered by a recently formed association for the promotion of deep sea sportfishing off the Virginia coast.

Why they should bother with the marlin schools around Winter Quarter was more than we could understand, because these grounds were pioneered by Paul and Jack Townsend several years ago. They are, so thoroughly known to Ocean City marlinmen now, that there is little left for any stranger to learn, regardless of how good a big game fish guide he might be.

When Wilson Meek, secretary of the Virginia Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, went out last week with Capt. Ernest Richardson and brought back two white marlin that were caught just north of Chesapeake Light Vessel, and reported losing a third after a tough battle, we were more than enthusiastic about the happening. We have contended for the past two years that white marlin were to be had, for the hunting of them, off the Virginia Capes.

We noted during the past winter, from an old diary in the possession of Dr. Bill Wilkins, of Alexandria, the catch of a white marlin off the Virginia Capes more than 50 years ago, and by a woman aboard a fishing schooner. That seems to take the edge off several recent claims for the first fish.

That they are taking these sporty fish in Virginia is a good thing, for the present fleet at Ocean City is hardly able to take care of Northern marlin anglers now. What it will be in another year is hard to imagine. So another marlin port in the section around Cape Charles would, without conflicting with Ocean City, be a point of easy access for anglers from Richmond, Norfolk and the whole Piedmont section of Virginia and North Carolina. Anglers, that aren't going to Ocean now, because of the distance.

One last word before we leave Ocean City—it is useless to call today or tomorrow for information as to available captains, for there aren't any to be had. The well known ones are booked several weeks ahead for week-ends and as much as ten days for mid-week days. If you have a favorite guide, get him on the phone now and make a reservation for the first day suitable to both. If we can be of any help, give us a ring.

For bay fishermen there still is little choice as to the best fishing for hardheads. Just pick your favorite spot and fish it in the morning or evening, and there is every chance that the catch will be well worth talking about. Hardheads are larger, fatter, more numerous and sportier in the taking than we can ever remember. Soft crabs or peelers are still the best bait.

Several small schools of blues were reported near Northwest Middles over the past week-end, but they turned out to be trout. As far as we know, blues aren't being caught anywhere in bay waters, and probably won't be until late August, the usual time for them to arrive in off Sharps and in the mouth of the Choptank and Eastern Bay.

Rockfishing seems to be the best fishing at the present time, and by way of chumming with green or shore shrimp. If it even that was off for the first three days of this week at Solomons, where they are taking to it in a big way, having brought in some real catches. There is every reason to believe it will pick up again this week-end after the shift of wind and settling of the weather.

Catches of rock with trolled lures have been picking up in the Chester, Eastern Bay and around Piney Point.

The lot of the bass fisherman at this time of the year isn't a bed of roses. With far less rainfall than is usual for the mid-summer season, what there is seems to come at the wrong place. The Potomac and the Shenandoah were both streaky and rifled, although fishable in some areas. With no more rain it shouldn't be too hard to find water that will be all right to fish with lures, although there is no doubt but what the most fish will be found in the creels of the bait fishermen.

It was largemouth bass that was the centerpiece of the Ike Walton Monday luncheon at the Neptune Grill this week. Caught by Abner Roe (the largest weighing 4 pounds and 4 ounces) and flanked with Golden Bantam corn caught by Waltonian Joe Cox, Jr.

Bill Dier of the First Precinct is all set for another try at his shark fishing off Cape Charles, while Stanley Bennett of Arlington, Va., is just back with a channel bass weighing 50 pounds and 6 cobia weighing from 12 to 47 pounds.

The 6-thread record for marlin held by Bob Mankowski for many years has been taken over by Ed Lowe, jr., with the catch of a 184-pounder off Coronado. Almost at the same time from Tommy Aitken we learn that the 827-pound blue marlin taken off the North Carolina coast several weeks ago is a new United States Atlantic coastal record.

There is every probability, from last minute news from Ocean City, that more marlin records will be broken this week. On Wednesday, from a sea that was almost a dead slick at noon, twenty-nine marlin were caught. The largest, weighing 103½ pounds, was taken by Capt. Chester Gray on the Hilde. This is the second fish of this weight for Gray this season. They are running second to the 103½-pounder caught by Capt. Crawford Savage for top honors. The fish are schooled in an area almost five miles long and two wide.

Paul Townsend is back from the North Carolina coast, where in spite of a sea almost as flat as the floor, next to nothing was accomplished due to a little trouble with one of the motors. He and Jack did fish a day and a half with Hugo Rutherford on his Mako III, and this trip was unproductive, due also to motor trouble.

General Motors Net Triples In First Half

Profit of $100,992,531 Equals $2.24 a Share; Sales Up 41.4%

By The Post Food Editor.

New York, July 27.—Giant General Motors Corporation today reported net profits of $100,992,531 for the first half of the year, more than triple the $33,020,019 earned in the first six months of 1938.

The half year earnings, after payment of dividends on preferred stock, were equal to $2.24 a common share, contrasted with 66 cents a share in the like period a year ago.

Boosting profits were thumping net sales of $739,4400,883 for the first half, a rise of 41.4 per cent over the $522,777,124 in the opening six 1938 months.

To push new cars down the assembly lines the corporation in the half employed an average of 228,-482 workers, a jump of 20.1 per cent over the 190,258 a year ago.

For the three months ended June 30, net profits were $47,814,603 or $1.06 a common share, compared with $53,206,716 or $1.18 a common share in the March quarter and $24,-786,002 or 52 cents a common share in the June quarter of 1938.

The latest quarter's net sales were $371,632,580, a jump of 36.5 per cent over the $272,264,537 in the like 1938 period. In the March quarter this year sales were $367,768,303.

C. & P. Telephone June Revenues Up to $1,025,192

Operating revenues of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. for June, amounted to $1,025,192, and operating expenses for the same period were $725,057, according to a statement yesterday of Charles A. Robinson, general manager of the company.

In June, 1938, operating revenues were $953,187, and operating expenses were $888,991. Taxes for the month were $95,312, or $2,547 more than in June a year ago, and interest deductions amounted to $42,475, resulting in a balance before dividend of $166,020.

The cost of telephone plant in service at the end of June was $46,-195,899. There were 245,723 telephones in service on June 30, a decrease of 184 telephones during the month. Users in Washington made 29,574,000 calls during the month, an increase of 3,125,000 over June, 1938.

Reserve Banks Cut Treasury Investments

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board announced last night a $27,000,000 decline in the investments of the 12 Federal Reserve banks in 91-day Treasury bills, making a decrease of $75,796,000 in this type of holdings in the last month.

As these short-term securities mature, the banks are declining to buy new ones because the discount on the bills is so small they earn practically nothing. The lendable excess reserves of banks on July 26 were estimated at $4,490,000,000, the same as a week previous.

Engineering Awards 13% Below Year Ago

New York, July 27 (AP).—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday totaled $42,-134,000, Engineering News-Record reported today. The amount was 4 per cent below the previous week and 13 per cent below the volume for the corresponding week last year.

Public construction rose 12 per cent above a week ago but private awards declined 35 per cent. Engineering construction for the year to date has totaled $1,738,693,000, a gain of 18 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Lockheed Deliveries Set 6-Month Record

New York, July 27.—Setting an all time high for any comparable period, the past six months deliveries of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation reached a record figure of $12,500,-000 in a preliminary estimate made made by Robert E. Gross, president.

The sales volume represents an increase of approximately 145 per cent over the previous record high of $5,111,699 reported for the first half of 1938 and with sales of $10,-274,503 reported for the entire year 1938.

Wheat Prices Advance With Mill Buying

Impetus Given By Orders From Bakers And Millers

By the Associated Press

Chicago July 27.—Millers and bakers, attracted by low wheat prices, added fresh fuel today to this week's sharp market recovery.

Buying orders in conection with wheat and flour sales, taking the form of removal of hedges in the futures' pit, helped to lift wheat prices as much as 1⅛ cents, extending the week's rally to around 4 cents a bushel from 1939 lows established Monday.

Other grains rose with wheat, corn in particular deriving strength from the hot weather. Closing prices were at or near the day's highs in all pits with wheat 1⅛ to 1½ cents higher than yesterday;; September, 64½@63⅜; December, 65⅝@65½; Corn was ¼ to 1½ cents up; September, 41⅛@41¼; December, 42¼. Oats, ⅝ to 1¼ cents up; rye, 1⅛ to 1½ cents higher, and lard unchanged to 3 cents higher.

Baldwin to Pay Interest in Stock

Philadelphia, July 27 (AP). — The Baldwin Locomotive Works directors voted to pay coupons due September 1, on the refunding mortgage 6 per cent bonds in preferred stock instead of cash. For each $30 coupon on the $6,470,900 of these bonds one share of 7 per cent cumulative $30 par value preferred stock will be issued. Dividends on this stock will accumulate from September 1, 1939.

The board declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $1.05 per share on the 7 per cent cumulative $30 preferred stock heretofore issued in exchange for coupons due March 1, 1939, on the company's consolidated mortgage bonds and refunding mortgage bonds.

The company reported a consolidated net loss of $1,988,666 for the year ended June 30, compared with a net profit of $64,059 for the year before. The figures included the company's subsidiaries, including the Midvale Co., of which Baldwin owns about 61 per cent.

Films May Halt Far East Business

New York, July 27 (AP).—Unless the Shanghai dollar recovers from its current low of between 8 and 9 cents in terms of the United States dollar, or Chinese duties are revised, American film companies may soon have to suspend Far East operations, Delbert Goodman, Far Eastern manager of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, said today.

Chinese import duties, coupled with a maze of re-import levies payable in the Chinese customs gold unit of around 40 cents in terms of the U. S. dollar, is lifting Far East operating costs close to prohibitive heights, he pointed out.

Terminal Rail Plans $7,000,000 Issue

By the Associated Press.

The Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis asked the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for permission to issue $7,000,000 of refunding and improvement mortgage bonds.

The new issue would refund an equal amount of 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds maturing October 1 next. The new bonds, to be sold through competitive bidding, would bear interest of not more than 3½ per cent.

Securities Hold Firm in Face of Treaty Abrogation With Japan; Government Issues Lead Moderate Bond Rise

New York, July 27.—The calm manner in which security markets accepted the State Department announcement of an intention to abrogate the Japanese trade treaty in six months was surprising. Those who are convinced that we are in a bull market accepted the firmness in the face of this development as proof positive that nothing can stop a market once it has changed its trend.

A more plausible explanation would be that the prospect of interference with the trade between the two nations in six months will lead to a rush of orders in the interim.

In any event the market took the surprise announcement of the State Department in its stride. Stocks were irregular during the early hours but then started to firm and, judged by the composite average, the list was 0.17 point higher at the close. Trading was on a more restricted basis than recently, but this again reflected a complete lack of anxiety over the Japanese development. Only 816,770 shares changed hands on the big board, which made it the smallest day since last Thursday.

Japanese Fear Trade Effect

Abrogation of the trade treaty, entered into in 1911, does not necessarily involve cessation of trading between the two countries but it is a move which could lead to such a condition. Certainly the Japanese regard it as such, judged by the Tokio dispatches today, and there are many in the United States who have opposed our trade dealings with this important customer ever since the beginning of the invasion of China. Possible means of economic retaliation are being considered by Japanese officials.

No Boycott in View

It is unlikely that on the expiration of the treaty next January that any boycott will be placed on exports to Japan, for that would be regarded as a definite move of hostility. But the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today, that the Treasury Department is studying the desirability of stopping all purchases of Japanese silver and gold contains the hint of a method that could be used to limit Japanese purchases of American goods. For if we did not take the gold and silver, the Japanese could not buy, except to the limited extent to which their exports of other goods supplied them with dollar exchange.

Interim Orders to Rise

In the six months' interim, however, it is reasonable to suppose that Japan will buy all that she can finance. Purchases of scrap steel and cotton particularly will be rushed, and it may have been this temporary stimulus that traders were thinking about today.

Trading was featured by strength in the public utility section. The power and light shares, for some years, have been the stock market's forgotten man but of late these securities have been edging their way out of the cyclone cellar.

Reasons are varied. Investors have taken heart from some of the things said in Congress while the spend-lend bill has been under discussion. They are convinced that when and if this bill becomes law, it will contain provisions prohibiting the Government from entering into competition with private industry. And this affects the public utilities vitally, for they have had to bear the brunt of such competition. Power and light investors also note a definite move toward coordination of private and public power facilities. This is illustrated particularly in the case of the Texas properties of the Electric Bond & Shar system and those of the lower Colorado River Authority. In addition, utility earnings have been improving.

Steel Report Pleases

The Street was pleased by the earnings statement of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, released after the close. Eugene G. Grace, president, after announcing the cheerful income figures and the declaration of the first dividend on the common since December, 1937, revealed that the company's automotive customers have covered their sheet requirements through December 31, and that general users are covered through the end of this quarter.

Profit Maxim Low

Mr. Grace reiterated that the profit margin is too small under the present prices, adding that at the current rate of operations the industry is making no money to speak of, considered in the light of its capitalization. He revealed that Bethlehem's bookings since the price war of last fall have been more than $5 under the prices established in June, 1938.

Bond Trading Improves

Some firm spots appeared today in the listed bond market, but most issues merely idled at former levels. United States Treasury issues were marked slightly higher, but there was little interest in best corporate liens. Baltimore & Ohio bonds were favorites in the speculative section on good earnings and progress with the reduced interest plan. Foreign dollar issues were irregular. Turnover in all listed bonds was $5,-780,000.

The market for United States Government bonds reflected fresh inquiry for long-term issues, whereas short-dated bonds, or "rights," continued to drift lower. The long bonds were up 5-32 to 10-32 point for the day, and only small distances now separate the levels from all-time highs. Short bonds drift lower because of the conviction that "rights" will receive less gravy than heretofore on refundings.

New Corporates in Demand

Bankers continued to distribute the available new offerings of high grade corporate issues, which went quite well at small recessions. Highest grade listed bonds were neglected in these circumstances. Medium priced rails were quiet and slightly better. B. & O. issues were up from fractions to five points, while other borderline rails were idle. Local traction issues, holding company bonds, convertibles and other special groups were dull.

Panama stamped 5s fell 2¾ points in reaction from the recent excitement. Other Latin-American default bonds were quiet and soft. The Japanese group dipped on the abrogation of the trade treaty, but declines were not large. Polish and German bonds improved, while Italian issues remained neglected. Best rated foreigns tended to drift slightly lower.

Treasury Sells $61,000,000 HOLC Refunding Issue

By the Associated Press

Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday private investors have purchased, to date, approximately $61,-000,000 worth of the maximum $100,-000,000 of Home Owners Loan Corporation bonds that the Treasury underwrote in a recent HOLC refunding operation. On June 1, the Treasury, no behalf of the HOLC, offered a series of 1½ per cent 6 to 8 year HOLC bonds in exchange for an old HOLC issue maturing August 1. To give the HOLC cash with which to pay off owners of the old bonds who did not accept the exchange, the Treasury offered to buy, for cash, $100,000,000 of the new issue.

All of the $61,000,000 already purchased by private investors was sold, Morgenthau added, at prices of $102 or better per $100 unit.

Exchange Extends Arbitration Setup To Other Cities

New York, July 27 (AP).—Governors of the New York Stock Exchange acted today to extend to cities outside New York machinery for settling by arbitration disputes involving member firms.

Out-of-town governors, it was explained, have agreed to co-operate for the setting up of arbitration in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and San Francisco. Panels of business and professional men, from which arbitrators may be drawn, will be selected from residents of those cities.

"This additional expansion by the exchange of its arbitration facilities," the announcement said, "will measureably reduce nonmembers' arbitration expenses by avoiding the necessity of having both principals and witnesses come to New York."

Net Gain Reported By Curtiss-Wright

New York, July 27 (AP).—Curtiss-Wright Corporation and subsidiaries, airplane manufacturers, reported today for the quarter ended June 30 net profit of $1,672,647, equal to 14 cents a share in the June quarter last year. For six months profit was $3,370,804, equal to 29 cents a share, compared with $2,181,862 or 14 cents a year ago.

Wright Aeronautical Corporation, controlled by Curtiss-Wright Corporation, reported for the June quarter net profit of $1,099,301, equal to $1.83 a capital share, compared with $1,081,958, or $1.80 a share in the comparable period last year. This brought six months earnings to $2,331,036, equal to $3.88 a share, against $1,668,247, or $2.78 a share a year ago.

Seaboard Railway Reports Increases

Norfolk, Va., July 27.—Total operating revenues for the Seaboard Railway for June amounted to $3,162,044, a gain of $383,518, or 13.80 per cent over June a year ago, L. R. Powell, jr., chief executive, announced today.

Freight revenue amounted to $2,486,528, an increase of $242,332, or 10.80 per cent over the same month last year. Passenger revenue totaled $385,412 as compared with $278,766 for June last year, an increase of 38.26 per cent, and was higher than any corresponding month since 1929.

Insurance Sales Here Up for June

New Business Gains 12% in Month, 8% in Half

By Thomas M. Cahill.

In an impressive ending for the first half of 1939, Washington agents wrote 12 per cent more new insurance during June than in June, 1938, and sent the gain for the half-year to 8 per cent. The June rise doubled the 6 per cent increase for the country, but the half-year upturn was 4 per cent below the national average advance of 12 per cent.

Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, of Hartford, Conn., reports new business in the Capital totaled $5,-481,000 in June, while the half-year figure reached $32,052,000. More than half the companies, 56 per cent, increased their business last month in the local area.

Maryland agents wrote $7,874,000 new business in June, 3 per cent more than a year ago, and $49,062,-000 in the first half-year, 8 per cent, or the same gain as Washington registered. Virginia agents secured $6,-916,000 paid-for business in June, 5 per cent better than a year ago, and in the first half-year wrote $44,549,-000, which is 9 per cent above 1938.

A. B. A. Convention Plans

C. W. Beerbower, of Roanoke, Va., chairman of the State secretaries' section of the American Bankers Association, has announced plans for the coming annual convention at Seattle. In a letter to Donald W. Larson, secretary of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, he states the section program will be featured by many discussions of the secretaries' leading problems.

D. C. Home Mortgages Up

Home mortgages in the District of Columbia accepted for insurance by the Federal Housing Administration in May numbered 66 and amounted to $356,300, as compared with 26 in May, 1938, amounting to $168,100, the Federal Housing Administration reports. In the first five months of the year, number of insured mortgages in the District reached 188, and the amount involved totaled $1,046,000, the report added.

Insured home mortgages in Maryland in May numbered 241 and amounted to $1,032,900, compared with 244 in the month last year, when the amount was $1,077,750. For the five months they numbered 907 and totaled $4,025,600. Virginia reported 269 in May, involving $1,281,000, against 212, amounting to $1,084,900, in May, 1938.

Security Traders Nominees

Ernest E. Blum, of Brush, Slocumb & Co., San Francisco, chairman of the nominating committee of the National Security Traders Association, has announced nominees for 1940, as follows: President, Edward D. Jones, of Edward D. Jones & Co., St. Louis; first vice president, James J. Lynch, of H. D. Knox & Co., Boston; second vice president, J. Earl Jardine, jr., of William R. Staats & Co., Los Angeles; secretary, Edward H. Welch, of McGuire, Welsh & Co., Chicago; treasurer, Phillip J. Clark, of Amos C. Sudler & Co., Denver. The election will be held at the convention in New York City, August 22 to 25, inclusive.

Cotton Reacts, Futures Dip 35 to 60 Cents

New York, July 27 (AP).—Cotton futures bobbed nervously today as traders tried to gauge future market direction. Closing prices were down 7 to 12 points after early gains of as much.

New season's highs were hit for some deliveries in early dealings as demand from trade, Wall Street and outside interests forced prices higher.

Around the 9-cent level for December, however, offerings piled up and buying lost its edge as traders apparently decided the recent heavy trade and foreign demand had about reached a peak for the time being.

Small selling orders were enough to make a dent in the price structure. When buyers still kept to the sidelines, pressure increased and final prices were near the day's lows.

Bank Clearings Gain Sharply Over '38 Week

Total for 22 Cities Is at New High For Last Five Weeks

By the Associated Press

New York, July 27.—The volume of bank clearings during the week ended July 26 rose to the highest in five weeks and topped last year's total by a good margin, as transactions at New York went above the comparative 1938 figure for the first time in the past seven weeks.

Bank clearings for twenty-two leading cities for the current period, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., amounted to $5,197,256,000, or 11.7 per cent greater than the $4,651,-240,000 recorded for the same 1938 week.

Clearings for the latest week increased $326,071,000 above the total for the July 19 week, contrary to the trend last year, when a similar comparison for the two like periods disclosed a drop amounting to $714,-421,000.

A rise of 16.4 per cent for the week brought the New York turnover to $3,147,012,000, representing an advance of 10.3 per cent over the $2,853,828,000 last year. Clearings for the twenty-one outside cities aggregated $2,050,244,000, against $1,-797,412,000 for the corresponding 1938 week, a gain of 14.1 per cent.

Bank clearings at leading cities, together with percentage gains over a year ago, follow:

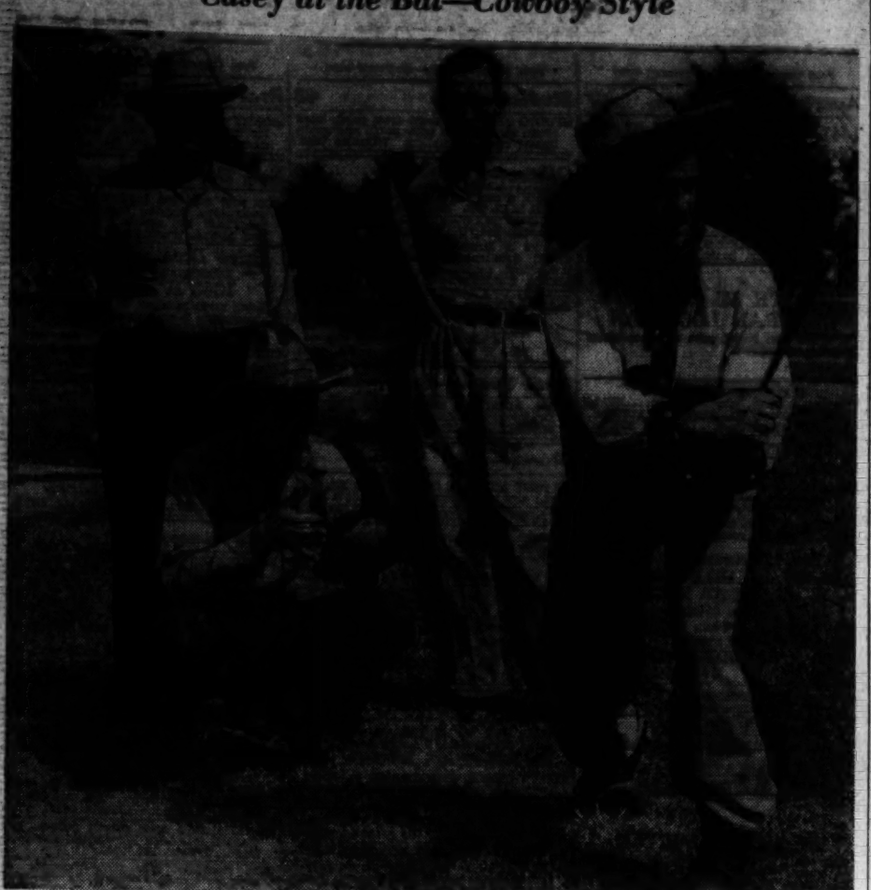
Casey at the Bat—Cowboy Style



Here's portion of the Oklahoma Cowboy softball team which plays Tru-Blu at Ballston tonight practicing for their Casey at the Bat specialty to be rendered before the contest. Umpire is Oscar Rikli, manager, while Charley Crites catches, Carol Rikli bats and Oliver Rikli recites

Enid Cowboys Play Tru-Blu Ten Tonight

Ballston Scene of 8:30 Softball Game; Okla. Lads Go Sightseeing

Manager Oscar Rikli and 11 rough-riding cowboys from Enid, Okla., reported here yesterday for their 8:30 o'clock intersectional softball game with Tru-Blue's ten at Ballston Stadium tonight.

Quartering here overnight, the visiting Westerners spent the day sight-seeing and were received on Capitol Hill by Senator Josh Lee, of Norman, Okla., and Representative Phil Ferguson, of Woodward, Okla., during the afternoon.

Ferguson yesterday accepted an invitation to attend tonight's game and will throw out the first ball.

Members of the Oklahoma State Society and Southwestern fans generally are expected to swell the attendance tonight.

Victorious in 30 of 37 games thus far this season, the Cowboys tonight are to start 17-year-old Carol Rikli on the mound. John Hoy, personal protege of Abe Rosenfield, and one of Washington's fast-rising stars, is to oppose him.

Hailed as the king of Southwestern softball pitchers as a result of five no-hit and six one-hit games credited him thus far this season, young Rikli is endowed with a fast ball and a deceptive delivery.

There will be a special program of entertainment scheduled for 8 o'clock. Cowboy songs and tap dancing by Raymond James, blindfolded pistol shooting for accuracy, and a team recital of "Casey At the Bat" over the voice amplifiers will comprise this routine.

Adams Lone U. S. Man in Canada Golf

St. Bruno Que, Quebec, July 27 (INS).—Ted Adams, of Chillicothe, Ohio, today remained the sole survivor for the United States after a 2-and-1 victory over Bill Taylor, of Montreal, in the Canadian amateur golf championship.

Adams will meet Henry Martell, of Edmonton, Altoona, tomorrow in one bracket of the semifinals, while Ken Black, of Winnipeg, and Phil Farley, of Toronto, will clash in the other match.

Ted D. Adams, of Boston, protege of Art Ross, Boston Bruins' hockey coach, was eliminated by Martell, 3 and 2. J. O. Levinson, of Kennebunk Beach, Me., was beaten by Black, 2 and 1.

Holzer Hurls No-Hitter For Naval Air Nine

Ban Holzer pitched a no-hit, no-run game for seven innings yesterday to win, 7-to-0, for the Naval Air Station nine over the Treasury in a Government League game on the North Ellipse. To top his performance, he knocked a triple.

Relay Team Runs Across Atlantic—Their Feet Hurt

New York, July 27 (AP).—Four fellows who ran all the way across the Atlantic Ocean in five days arrived today. They said their feet hurt.

They did their running on the decks of the liner Europa, and covered 845 miles from Southampton to New York, which somebody said was a record for a marathon relay team.

One fellow would run for two hours, then rest six while another ran. The runners were fed tea and cakes by a steward who ran alongside them. No mileage figures for the steward was announced.

There was one American, George R. Harris, r., 19, son of a Pittsburgh doctor, on the team, and three Englishmen. One Englishman got seasick.

Tigers Rout Masterson, Triumph, 8-1

packed into the first three innings before Manager Harris deduced that Masterson was ineffective. The first man to face the rookie—McCoskey—delivered a single to left and the next man to face him—McCoy—swatted a three-bagger to right center. After Higgins contributed a long sacrifice fly, Hank Greenberg banged a triple to center and was out at the plate trying to stretch the blow until Giuliana dropped the relay after tagging him.

Tigers Hike Lead

That 3-to-0 lead of the Tigers burgeoned suddenly to 7-to-0 in the third inning, which McCoskey opened with a triple down the left field line. McCoy's long fly brought him home and then with two out the Tigers commenced again. Greenberg drew a walk and Bell moved him to second with a single to right. On an attempted double steal, Greenberg was safe at third and Bell at second all because Giuliani threw the ball wide of Buddy Lewis for an error. And when Higgins walked, the bases were full.

Whereupon little George Tebbetts then delivered the most destructive three-bagger of the game. It was a drive over Case's head against the centerfield wall and three of his pals scored. Masterson went to the showers and Alexandra finally got the side out by fanning Croucher.

The Nats made their first—and last—run in the third inning. Mickey Vernon led off with a three-bagger against the wall in center and scored on Giuliani's single to center. With two out, Lewis contributed a useless single to right.

Giuliani was the only member of the Washington cast to make more than one hit. He drove out a pair of singles, to offset, in part, his pair of errors. The only Washington athlete to reach base after the fifth inning was Sammy West, who drew a useless walk in the ninth inning.

blast of sub-par golf in the tournament, and it stacked the crouching cop as the favorite to reach the final round against Armstrong. He meets Gordon tomorrow, while Szwedko and Armstrong are lower bracket opponents.

Ted Gwin, whose 25-foot birdie putt on the eighteenth accounted for District Champion Andy Oliveri in the second round, made up for it by three-putting enough greens to lose to Furgol, a metal polisher on a "vacation," in the third round.

Thus far three galleries have had to walk with the matches for their thrills, as the four semi-finalists have made a habit of turning them in early. Armstrong is a total of 16 up on four opponents, Gordon, 11 up; Molinari, 15, and Szwedko, 11. The latter shows the least margin but match for match he's had the toughest competition.

Armstrong, co-medalist and the only real championship looking golfer left in the field, is logically the outstanding tournament favorite, but Baltimore's bluecoats are back of Molinari. Szwedko has his share of the backers while Gordon has apparently advanced unnoticed, maybe because of his easy march to the round of four.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, July 20, 1939. Notice is hereby given that under authority granted in public act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, authorizing the closing of streets, roads, highways and alleys in the District of Columbia, and in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914 (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress), approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 158, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the board room of said Commissioners in the District Building on MONDAY, AUGUST 14, 1939, AT 10 O'CLOCK A. M., to interested property owners to determine as to any property rights which may be affected, or as to the equity, justice or advisability of closing the street and alley area, and concerning the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, all in the District of Columbia, and described as follows: 1. Closing U street between 1st and 2nd streets sw. 2. Closing B street west of Burns street se., and a public alley running south from said B street in Square 5402, and closing part of Ridge road southeast of Anacostia road se.; and providing for a dedication for widening Anacostia road and Ridge road southeast, and for other additional street area in Parcels 198/30 and 203/21. 3. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Southeast section, bounded on the north by East Capitol street, on the northeast by Burns street, on the south by D street, proposed, and on the southwest by Ridge road, affecting B street, C street, Anacostia road, and other proposed street area in the southeast section, all as shown on said plan. 4. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the northwest section bounded on the north by Van Ness street, proposed, on the east by Fordham road, on the south by Upton street, proposed, and on the west by the Dalecarlia reservoir grounds, affecting the location of a proposed street in Parcel 8/13. 5 Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the northwest section, affecting Potomac avenue, proposed, from Nebraska avenue to Weaver place nw., and providing for the elimination of a proposed street, being approximately an extension of Cushing place, from Sherrier place to Potomac avenue, proposed. Maps showing the street and alley area proposed to be closed and the additional land proposed to be acquired by the District of Columbia, and maps showing the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, are on file in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, Room 405, District Building (same being known as maps 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240 and 2241), and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing, and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street and alley closings, as shown on above-mentioned maps. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAVID McCOACH, JR., Commissioners of the District of Columbia.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

A good many post-mortems are caused by the excessive subtlety of some players. So deep are their plots, and so cleverly camouflaged to prevent the enemy from learning the secrets of their cards, that the poor partner is left floundering in a haze. He is supposed to be able to decipher this mysterious code, but frequently it proves too much for him, he makes a wild, hopeless stab, and the outcome is a fizzle.

Such a super-clever player is always imagining either the adversaries or the partner has made a psychic; that some one around the table is withholding strength for a great penalty double, or that the kibitzers have contrived to send an army of redskins to scalp him.

Such a case is sent by "Ahreff." The subtlety of the player concerned resulted in his partner playing the hand at four hearts and being set when four spades was lay-down. It takes real brilliance to get in such a mess; a dull or stupid player couldn't do it. The cards are shown in today's box.

Ahreff says:

"The accompanying hand is an example played at the Brooklyn Heights Bridge-Club. Todd Harrison and A. A. Jaynes held the East-West hands.

"North and South were set two tricks. The other tables made four or five-odd in spades. One pair ventured and failed to make six. If spades suited North for the trump, why did he not count up his hand for six playing tricks, with spades trumps, and bid four? (The queen of his partner's suit, three aces, and two ruffs in hearts). Instead of this he doubles, and his partner cannot imagine what the double means, or what he is expected to do.

"In the post-mortem North explained that he thought South's spades call might be a "sike," and he wanted to know South's best suit. Well he got it, and then supported it with a singleton although the adversaries had first bid the suit!"

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

HOT WEATHER and careless campfire builders are working alarm bells overtime in the National Forests as blazes arising from these two sources put 1939 conflagrations a notch ahead of those last year. Forest rangers are losing sleep over a 7 per cent rise in man-caused fires. Sparks from picnics have caused 4,474 as against 4,032 for 1938.

According to a Department of Agriculture report, sweltering weather is keeping Roy Headley, chief of the division of fire control in the Rockies, out of a transcontinental trip. He has to stay home to mind his own bailiwick, as dry skies continue.

VACANCIES recently posted on the chief clerk's bulletin board, Patent Office, include:

Assistant clerk-stenographer, CAF3, $1,620.

Underclerk-typist, CAF1, $1,260.

Assistant engineering draftsman, SP4, $1,620.

Junior electrical engineer, P-1, $2,000.

Junior clerk-stenographer CAF2, $1,440.

THE ICE CREAM situation won't vary a quart until the summer is over. At the request of manufacturers, the Food and Drug Administration is going to keep its fingers out of chocolate, vanilla and raspberry until the peak season for the industry is past.

Things the Food and Drug moguls will worry about are grades, standardization of containers, amount of bacteria allowed per cubic centimeter, and amount of air in the ice cream. Air, according to those who know, is to ice cream what water is to milk. Food and Drug wants to be sure that you're not paying mostly for air.

In the meantime cautions the F. and D., "An important thing to remember about ice cream grades is that they measure only purity, and that an ice cream may be as sterile as a surgeon's scalpel and as pure as distilled water, and still be a poor quality ice cream." If your frozen dessert is low in butterfat content, then it isn't grade A.

Right now, most people are asking only one question. "How cold is it, and do I get a second helping?"

JUSTICE CHAMBERS, personnel chief for the Maritime Commission, is back doing business at the same old desk after spending three weeks over at the Procurement Division in connection with the reorganization work which will turn Procurement into the central purchasing unit for all Government departments. Chambers, during his temporary assignment served as assistant to head man George Landick, jr.

ALL THIS BRISTLING talk about "Whose Suez is it?" gets an interesting slant from a report made by United States Vice Consul R. T. Cowan, at Port Said to the Commerce Department.

According to Cowan's findings, it might appear that the Italians are coming out the small end of the argument. At any rate they aren't doing much coming through the canal.

British tonnage represented over half the traffic using short-cut Suez during 1938. Italy was second-best at a mere 13.4 per cent. Furthermore, passengers shipped through Suez showed a marked decline in those of Italian nationality.

The Romans just aren't the world travelers they used to be.

WONG YUCK CHOR writes to the Civil Service Commission. Says the gentleman from Kwangsi Provincial Government, China:

"In spite of the undeclared war which is being waged, our internal reforms and reconstructions are going on at even greater speed. One of our recent projects in this province is to build up our civil service.

"America has contributed much to the modern merit system and we beg to write to your commission for advice. We will much appreciate it if you will be kind enough to furnish us with full information about civil service procedures of the Civil Service Commission of the United States.

"Your kind co-operation will aid us in our internal reconstruction."

Which shows how far the C. S. C. candle throws its light in this world.

A WELL-OILED EGG, says the Department of Agriculture, will keep as good as new for six months. Developed by the Bureau of Chemistry and Engineering, the vacuum-carbon dioxide oil treatment consists of drawing air out of the eggs in a vacuum, dipping them in mineral oil and then forcing the oil through the pores of the shells by releasing the vacuum with carbon dioxide. And not a shell broken, either.

APPLAUSE: For Cabell Phillips, WPA press man who makes the pages this week of the "Readers Digest" with an article entitled "Mobilization Day." Phillips who has been public relations aide at WPA since 1935, was formerly with Time and Fortune magazines.

TRAVEL: Mary Hall, Carrie Kent, Estelle Miller and Katherine Waple (Numbering section, Bureau of Engraving and Printing), are back in town after annual leave at Montreal, Quebec, and the Gaspe Peninsula. Their return route included a visit to the White Mountains.

Baltimore, July 27 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh paid a visit today to the Glenn L. Martin aviation plant. He flew a single-seated Seversky Army pursuit ship.

PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL

THE YEARLING

By Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings

Chapter LII

PENNY SAID, "That'll be fine. And you kin depend on me for meat. I'll git a turkey if I have to hatch one."

M. K. Rawlings

Ma Baxter said, "What about the cow and dog and chickens? We cain't all come off and leave 'em, Christmas or no Christmas."

"We kin leave enough for the dogs and chickens. They'll not starve in a day. And I got a idee Trixie'll be fresh and we kin leave the calf to nuss her."

"And lose the calf to a blasted bear or panther."

"I kin fix a corral inside the barn where nothin' wont bother 'em. Now if you want to stay home and keep off the creeturs, you stay, but I mean to have Christmas."

"And me," Jody said.

Ma Baxter said to Grandma, "I got no more chancet agin 'em than a rabbit agin a pair o' wild-cats."

Penny said, "Now allus seemed to me 'twas Jody and me was two rabbits agin one wild-cat."

"You make a mighty good race of it," she said, but she had to laugh.

It was settled that they would come for Grandma to go to the doings, returning to her house to spend the night and the next day. Jody was elated. Then the thought of Flag came over him like a dark cloud in a sunny sky.

He burst out, "Now I jest cain't come. I got to stay home."

Penny said, "Why, what ails you, boy?"

Ma Baxter turned to Grandma Hutto.

"Hit's that tormented fawn o' hissen. He cain't bear it out of his sight. I never knowed a young un so crazy for a live thing to mess with. He'll go hongry to feed it, he sleeps with it, he talks to it like it was a person—oh, I've heered you, out in that shed—he don't think of nary thing else but that troublesome fawn."

Penny said gently, "Don't make the boy feel like he has the smallpox, Ory."

Grandma said, "Why can't he bring it along?"

HE THREW his arms around her. "You'll love Flag, Grandma. He's so smart, you kin learn him like a dog."

"'Course I'll love him. Will he git along with Flag?"

"He likes dogs. He plays with ourn. When they go on a hunt, he slips off another way and meets up with 'em. He loves bear hunt good as the dogs."

Praise of the fawn tumbled from him. Penny stopped him, laughing.

"You tell her all them things, you'll leave nothin' good for her to find out about him. Then she mought find out some o' the bad."

"They's nothin' bad about him," he said passionately.

"Only jumpin' on the table and knockin' the tops off the lard cans and buttin' over the 'taters, and into ever'thing worse'n ten young uns," Ma Baxter said.

She went into the garden to look at the flowers. Penny took Grandma aside.

"I been worryin' about Oliver," he said. "Them big bullies ain't drove him off 'fore he was ready to go, have they?"

"It was me drove him off. I got tired o' him traipsin' off on the sly to see that gal. I said to him, 'Oliver,' I said, 'you jest as good go on back to sea, for you ain't a mite o' good to me nor a mite o' comfort.' He said, 'I ain't a mite o' good to myself. The sea's the place for me.' I never figgered the gal'd foller him."

"You know Lem Forrester's rarin', don't you? Do he ever come here drunk, remember he ain't human when he gits to sullin'. Ease him off the best you kin."

"Now I shore as the devil won't waste no time lootlin' him. You know me better'n that. You know I'm made outen whalebone and hell."

"Ain't the whalebone gittin' a mite limber?"

"'Tis, but the hell's hot as ever."

"I'd depend on you to back most men down, but Lem's different."

Jody was all ears. Now that he was at Grandma's again, Oliver seemed real once more. It was satisfying, however, to find that she had lost patience with Oliver, too. He would show his displeasure when he saw him again, but he would forgive him. He would never forgive Twink.

The Baxters gathered up their baskets and bags and purchases. Jody tried to guess which sack contained his Christmas surprise, but they all looked alike. The distressing thought came to him that perhaps his mother had really wanted him to see if old Caesar had broken loose and had bought nothing for him at all. All the way home he sounded her out on the subject.

"You jest as good ask questions o' that wagon-wheel," she said.

He took her evasion as a sure sign that she did have something for him.

THE COW freshened the week before Christmas. The calf was a heifer, and there was rejoicing on Baxter's Island. It would take the place of the one the wolves had killed. Trixie was no longer young and it was necessary to raise a heifer soon to replace her. There was little talk at the house except of the coming Christmas. Now that the calf was born, the whole family would be able to be away for overnight on Christmas Eve, for the nursling would take care of the milking.

Ma Baxter baked a fruit-cake in the largest Dutch oven. Jody helped her pick out hickory nut meats for it. It took all day to bake it. For three days the cake was all there was of life; a day for preparing it, a day for baking it and the day after for admiring it. Jody had never seen a cake so huge. His mother bulged with her pride.

She said, "I don't go to the doin's often, and when I do go, I aim not to go scarce."

Penny presented her with the black alpaca the evening the cake was done. She looked at him and at the material. She burst into tears. She dropped into a chair and threw her apron over her head and swayed back and forth with every appearance of grief. Jody was alarmed. She must be disappointed. Penny went to her and laid his hand on her hair.

He said, "Tain't the lack o' will I don't do sich as that for you all the time."

Jody understood then that she was pleas'. She wiped her eyes and gathered the alpaca in her lap and sat holding it for a long time, now and then stroking it lengthwise.

She said, "Now I got to move quick as a black snake to git this made in time."

She worked day and night for three days, her eyes bright and contented. She was forced to call on Penny for help in the fitting. He knelt humbly, his mouth full of pins, and took up and let out as she directed. Jody and Flag watched, fascinated. The dress was done and hung under a sheet for clean keeping. Four days before Christmas, Buck Forrester stopped by. He was good-humored and Penny decided that he had imagined any mistrust. Old Slewfoot had visited Forrester's Island again and had killed a two hundred and fifty pound blue male hog in the nearby hammock. The kill had been in battle and not for food. The hog had put up a mighty fight, he reported. The ground was torn up for yards around. One of the boar's tusks was broken off and the other was wrapped with old Slewfoot's black fur.

"Hit's a good time to come up with him," Buck said, "for he belongs to be hurt."

They themselves had not discovered the kill until the day after it had happened. It had been too late to follow. Penny thanked him for the information.

"I reckon I'll set a trap inside the lot, jest to scare him," he said. "We-all are fixin' to go to the river for the doin's." He hesitated. "You fellers comin'?"

Buck too, hesitated.

"I reckon not. We don"t fool much with them Volusia jessies. No fun goin' if we wasn't drunk, and Lem'd likely pick a fight with some of Oliver's friends. No, reckon we'll git Christmas-drunk to home. Or mebbe Fort Gates."

PENNY was relieved. He could imagine the distress of the river folk if the Forresters had rolled into the prim and Christian gathering.

He oiled his largest bear trap. It was 6 feet in width and weighed, he said, nearly 6 stone. The chain alone weighed 2. He planned to shut the cow and calf together inside the stable, barricade the door and set the trap just outside. If old Slewfoot came to make Christmas dinner of the new heifer while they were all away, he would have to take the trap first. The day passed busily. Jody polished again the necklace of Cherokee beans. He hoped his mother would wear them with the black alpaca. He had nothing for a gift for Penny. He worried and puzzled and in the afternoon went to a low place where pipe-elders grew. He cut a reed and made a pipe stem, and cut a bowl from a corn-cob and fitted it. The Indians who had once been here had made pipe-stems of the reeds. Penny had told him, and he had always meant to make one for himself. He could think of nothing for Flag. He admitted to himself that the fawn would be satisfied with an extra piece of cornbread. He would make him a halter of mistletoe and holly.

That night Penny stayed up after Jody had gone to bed. He occupied himself with a mysterious pounding and slapping and scraping that had something to do, no doubt, with Christmas. The three days left seemed like a month.

No one, not even the dogs, heard any sound in the night. When Penny went to the lot in the morning to milk Trixie, and then to the calf's stall to turn it in to the mother to nurse, the calf was gone. He though it had broken down its bars. They were intact. He went into the soft sand of the lot and studied it for tracks. In a straight line across the criss-cross of cow and horse and human trails, the track of old Slewfoot stretched inexorably. Penny came to the house with the news. He was white with anger and frustration.

"I've had a bait of it," he said. "I mean to track that crestur down if I foller him clare to Jacksonville. This time, hit's me or him."

He went immediately at the business of oiling his gun and preparing shells. He worked rapidly, his manner grim.

"Put me some bread and 'taters in a bag, Ory."

Jody asked timidly, "Kin I go, Pa?"

"If you kin keep the pace with me and not holler quits. If you give out, you got to lay where you fell or come on back alone. I ain't stoppin' before nightfall."

"Must I shut up Flag or leave him foller?"

"I don't give a blasted rap who follers. Jest don't nobody look to me for mercy do the goin' git rough."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Price vs. Byrd Angle Livens Primary Race

Cather-Harrison Contest Heads List Of Hot Battles

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 27.—With the Democratic primary only five days off, chief interest centered today on a dozen General Assembly contests in some of which political observers professed to see a tug of war between supporters of Gov. Price and "Byrd organization" forces.

Heading the list is the race between Senator T. Russell Cather, of Winchester, a supporter of the Governor, and Burr P. Harrison, Commonwealth's attorney of Frederick County, which is generally predicted to be a close one.

Another that has attracted widespread attention involves the effort of David K. E. Bruce, son-in-law of the late Andrew Mellon, to unseat the veteran Berkeley D. Adams as Charlotte County's member of the House of Delegates. Both Adams, whom Gov. Price recently named to his commission on the budget, and Bruce are reported making thorough campaigns.

Glass' Son Is Aspirant

Another incumbent, Senator Charles E. Burks of Lynchburg, is opposed by Carter Glass, jr., son of the senior Virginia United States Senator, in a contest that finds friends of both predicting victory. A heavy demand for mail ballots apparently presages more than usual interest in the scrap.

In Norfolk a five-way contest for two Senatorial seats leaves the prognosticators wary. Senator Vivian L. Page is given the advantage of being an incumbent, but few observers will risk a guess as to who the pair of winners will be. The field includes former Delegate Ralph Daughton, member of the State boxing commission and president of the Piedmont Baseball League; former Delegate Delamater Davis; W. Taylor Johnson, long a Norfolk political leader, and former Congressman Joseph T. Deal, who never has lost an election in Norfolk.

Gilliam Is Price Ally

Former Senator Robert Gilliam, generally classed with the Price-friendly candidates, is opposing Senator Morton G. Goode, chairman of the State hospital board, in another lively battle in Dinwiddie and Petersburg.

A close race apparently is in prospect in Mecklenburg and Brunswick with Y. Melvin Hodges, former member of the House, running against Senator H. B. Moseley. While considerable interest also has developed in the contests between Senator Major M. Hillard and Earle Cadmus, former delegate, in Norfolk County and Portsmouth and South Norfolk; and in Newport News between Major George B. Collings, former delegate, and Col. E. Schlater Montague, for the seat left vacant when Senator A. L. Bivins resigned to become commonwealth's attorney.

Senators Harvey B. Apperson and Leonard G. Muse, of the twenty-first district, face a vigorous campaigner in former Senator R. J. Noell, of Radford, who is fighting for one of the two seats from the extensive district which includes Roanoke, Roanoke County, Radford and Franklin, Floyd and Montgomery Counties.

Massenburg Faces Fight

House floor leader G. Alvin Massenburg, of Hampton, and James Bland Martin, of Gloucester and Mathews County, face opposition from J. P. White and Richard J. Brooks, respectively, both of the latter employes of the Commission of Fisheries.

Five Democrats are seeking the twentieth district nomination in another round robin. The incumbent, Republican Thomas J. Wilson, says he will run again "if the people want me to."

In Craig and Botetourt, four are seeking the House seat vacated by present banking commissioner Milton R. Morgan, and in Richmond six are running for three Senate places and 14 for 6 House nominations.

Still another fight is on for the Senate seat of Dr. J. Belmont Woodson, of Amherst and Nelson, who is not running for re-election. Five are on the primary ballot.

There are a number of additional contests, but in most cases the campaigns have been apathetic.

Daredevils to Perform At Clinton Carnival

When the Clinton Volunteer Fire Department holds its first carnival from tomorrow through August 5, "daredevil motorcyclists" will crash through a flaming board barrier.

Other features will include an acrobatic act by the tumbling team of the Surrattsville High School. H. F. Bradley, fire chief, heads the committee on arrangements. The other members are Allan Penn, Francis Costello, Robert M. Bankert, E. R. England, Millard Schultz, Thomas V. Miller and Peter W. Schmitz, jr.

Mackay, Muralist, Dies

New York, July 27 (AP).—William Andrew Mackay, 63, mural painter who as a dollar-a-year man during the World War designed the camouflaging of the American merchant marine, died of a heart attack today in an uptown subway station.

Seven Federal prisoners slugged four guards and escaped in this Department of Justice bus Wednesday near Fredericksburg, Va. They rode about side roads until they commandeered an automobile driven by Mrs. Ruby Lee Thurston, of Guinea. The fugitives were believed hiding in Culpeper area yesterday, although an all-night vigil failed to reveal any fresh clews

150 Wild Ponies Are Penned As Chincoteague Celebrates

Keen Competition Marks Gala Affair, With Boat and Horse Races Climaxing Annual Affair Given by Virginians

Chincoteague, Va., July 27.—Albert F. Jones, commander of the Sixth District of the Coast Guard, awarded a score of prizes tonight to winners of contests in Chincoteague Island's annual pony penning day.

Competition was keen in the pony races, wild pony rides and boat races which drew visitors from as far distant as Washington State, Oregon, New England States, Florida and Texas.

Technically, the pony penning day continued late tonight because of the carnival features lasting until midnight. The penning day program, however, ended at dusk.

150 Ponies Penned

In recent years, the penning has been the climax of the annual ten-day carnival staged by Chincoteague's Volunteer Fire Company.

A total of 150 ponies were penned this morning, the largest number in recent years. Many were purchased by buyers from Connecticut, New York and New Jersey.

The pony penning at one time was a purely local event. Ben Scott, 101 years old, said today the pony penning had been held annually as long as he could remember.

Beats Cousin in Race

Hagerstown, Md., July 27.—Lewis Spessard, 15, won the annual soapbox derby here yesterday and the right to represent Hagerstown in the National Derby at Akron, Ohio. He defeated his cousin, Bobby Krause, in the final heat.

'See-Them-Bathe' Tourists Irk Duke

Cannes, France, July 27 (U.P.).—The Duke of Windsor protested angrily today to police against "snoopers," particularly against a Cannes Tourist agency which operates a fleet of "rubberneck boats" and advertises $1.56 excursions to "See the Windsors bathe."

The excursion boats halt off the coast of Windsor's castle de la Croe, and sightseers, using field glasses, watch the couple in their private swimming pool.

The prefect replied he was helpless to keep away the excursion boats.

Arlington Candidates Invited to Talk at Parley

Candidates for the Arlington County (Va.) board and county judgeship, subject to the Democratic primary Tuesday have been invited to speak at a public precinct meeting tonight at the home of Richard C. L. Moncure, 6730 North Washington boulevard, East Falls Church.

Moncure said he was sponsoring the meeting in behalf of Edmund D. Campbell, one of the 11 candidates seeking nomination for the county board of five members.
